"Miss Forbes plays with brilliant finish and has excellent execution."

MISS CARRUTHERS TELLS THE Y. W. C. A. OF WORK IN SIAM

The Y. W. C. A. meeting in the Shack on Monday afternoon was one of the best attended of the year. The program was opened by Edith Baker as leader. A song by Myrtle Gram was followed by the main feature of the afternoon, a talk by Miss Carruthers, a missionary from Siam. She wore the costume of a Siamese woman. Miss Carruthers gave an outline of the work in Siam and then concluded by hoping that others would feel the need for their personal work in that foreign land.

BARGAIN SALE CONCERT CLUB'S SECOND SHOW

Every town was taken by the University warblers, and there reception would seem to indicate that the reputation given the club of being the University's best advertising medium, is actually the case.

The proposed trip to Corvallis, to have been taken the next day after the concert here, has been postponed again, on account of a dance that has been scheduled to take place in the Benton county city that same evening. The junket to the Aggie stronghold will take place later in the year.

For this concert, Manager Geary has indulged in an elaborate advertising campaign in Eugene and the vicinity. According to the contract with Manager Smith of the local opera house, the theatre management has undertaken a share of the advertising to insure a good house at the popular prices that have been offered.

LEGISLATIVE TERM SHORT, SAYS EATON

1. The number of the committees should be reduced.

2. The members of the committees should be selected by the House through a committee on committees, consisting of five members elected from the House. No two of these shall come from the same legislative district.

3. All committees should meet according to a schedule and attendance should be made compulsory.

4. All bills should be considered by committees in the order that they are received.

Another bill which Mr. Eaton intends to introduce, is one which compels a two-thirds majority to pass a bill after the tenth day of the session. This reform is expected to insure prompt attention to business by the legislators. The earlier the business is completed, the easier it will be to pass the bills. Hon. Eaton said, moreover, that aside from the above, other reform measures will doubtless be acted upon.
