

100 EDITORS ATTEND NEWSPAPER MEETING

Seattle Press Club Entertains Visitors
—U. of W. Asked to Hold Like Convention.

(Special to Emerald.)
UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Nearly 100 editors of the Pacific Northwest were present at the opening session of the newspaper institute, which opened yesterday morning at the University of Washington, under the joint auspices of the Washington State Editorial Association and the department of journalism of the state institution. President Thomas Franklin Kane delivered the address of welcome. He accentuated the service which the press renders in the world, comparing its faults to its virtues, as a grain of dust to a mountain. He expressed his gratification for the publicity the press of the state had given the university. Arthur A. Smith, president of the Washington State Press Association, replied to President Kane's welcome. Seneca C. Beach, of Portland, speaking of printing as a profession, said: "If you find fault with your paper, you find fault with your community." He contended that the way to get rid of an unworthy paper was "not to buy it or to patronize it."

Job Office Discussed.
Harry S. Stuff, of the Stuff Printing Concern, spoke on the "Job Office," and Louis Jacobin, of Concrete, led in the discussion which followed. W. E. Brown, of Seattle, spoke on the topic, "The Newspaper Office," and Fred W. Kennedy, director of the University printing plant, and others discussed it. F. A. Hazeltine, of South Bend, who is next to the oldest newspaper man in the state, spoke on the economics of the print shop. Advertising and circulation will be the general subjects of discussion for this morning and afternoon.

The newspaper men were entertained at 6 o'clock Dutch luncheon by the Ad Club.

An invitation by the Seattle branch of the United Typothetae of America for the members of the Washington State Press Association to attend the Pacific coast cost congress in this city July 14 to 16, and an enthusiastic demand that the University of Washington should next year hold a newspaper institute like that now in progress, were the features of a reception later in the evening tendered the visiting editors by the Seattle Press Club. J. B. Nelson, Associated Press correspondent, was the master of ceremonies.

"Don't on any account neglect to repeat this meeting next year," said Seneca C. Beach. "I can see very clearly the nucleus on which we are building. I can see, too, that the university is the logical place. Do not by any means drop this from the university. Next year, if you have a meeting, you will have a much larger attendance."

TROPHIES WORTH $500

Three Footballs Taken From U. of W. and Seven Columbia Banners Among List.

In the University gymnasium there are at present about forty trophies, including cups, footballs, and banners won by Oregon's track and football teams in various contests since 1900. The estimated value of these trophies is about $500.

Three of the footballs among the seventeen in the cabinet were won from Washington University, the last one being taken in 1908, when Oregon last held the Northwest championship.

Oregon has won every Columbia University indoor meet that has thus far been held, and there are as a result, seven banners on the walls of the gymnasium. With these hangs a much faded and tattered banner representing Northwest football championship for 1900.

Besides the trophies in the gymnasium, there are numerous individual trophies won by a number of Oregon's star athletes, which if placed among the trophies now on exhibition, would greatly augment the already creditable showing.

SOCIETY

BY BESS LEWIS

University society has been of as informal a nature this week-end as it was formal last week. All the dances and parties have been most informal with the exception of the To-Ko-Lo banquet at the Osburn, Wednesday, which was quite an elaborate affair. Society's activity is gradually becoming weaker, and by next week, will be almost asleep until after the opening of second semester.

The To-Ko-Lo banquet in the Japanese tea room of the Osburn Hotel Tuesday evening, was a successful affair. The room was decorated with pink carnations. Music was furnished by Hendershott's orchestra. The evening was spent in various forms of entertainment, while much amusement was furnished by the reading of telegrams from President-elect Wilson, Governor West, and other notables. Those present were the Misses Mildred Gerig, Tula Kinsley, Florence Kendall, Helen Hamilton, Rose Basler, Agnes McLaughlin, Marguerite Rankin, Pauline Coe, Valene Eastham, Maud Mastick, Helen Cate, Catherine Carson, Grace Bean, Myrtle Gram, Ed Geary, Clark Hawley, Tom Boylen, James Pack, Carl Fenton, Robert McCornack, Wallace Caulfield, Charles Reynolds, Fred Hardesty, Vernon Motschenbacher, Hawley Bean, Bert Jerard, Aaron Gould, John Black, Delbert Stannard, Wallace Benson, Donald Rice, and Jessup Strang.

The long postponed Student Body dance will be given this evening at the Gymnasium. It is to be very informal and is hoped to be a model of its kind. An innovation in the serving of punch has been devised by Fen Waite, chairman of the committee in charge, in providing parafin drinking cups in place of the usual punch glasses. The programs are simple and music will be furnished by Hendershott's orchestra. The patronesses are: Miss Ruth Guppy, Miss Pearl Bonisteel, Mrs. R. H. Deaborn, Mrs. P. L. Campbell.

Sigma Chi entertained with an informal dinner.

PRINCETON REVISES ENTRANCE REQUIREMENT

Princeton University has made several radical changes in its requirements for entrance by reducing the number of subjects in which the student who has shown marked ability during his preparatory years must take examination, and to students from a foreign country who wish to take further work in an American college.

This modification favors those who decide to enter college late in their preparatory courses. By these rules, students of merit will be required to take only a part of the examinations, if they can get proper recommendation from their principal. By making liberal conditions in accepting Asiatic languages in place of Latin, the University hopes to get a larger percentage of Asiatic students.

Coach Stagg, who is director of the department of Physical Culture and Athletics, has just completed twenty years of service for Chicago University. He is an alumnus of Yale, having spent six years in that institution. While there, he won five baseball championships for Yale by his remarkable pitching. He also was a member of the football squad and was chosen as all-American end.

formal dance, Friday evening. Those who enjoyed the fun were the Misses Mae Norton, Valene Eastham, Mabel Smith, Erma Campbell, Elsie Guernsey, Leola Ball, Lois Parks, Joe Moorehead, Bess Lewis, Catherine Carson, Grace Bean, Lenora Hansen. Miss Eve Stinson acted as chaperone.

The Sigma Nu underclassmen entertained Friday evening with a card party at the home of Bryant DeBar. Johnny Parsons was the winner of the prize. Their guests were: Gertrude Buell, Florence Kendall, Lyle Steiwer, Mildred Fraley, Pauline Coe, Mildred Gerig, Hazel Tooze, Mildred Healey, Mildred Gram, Helen Hamilton, Peggy Driver.

The Lambda Rho sorority entertained with a Five Hundred party in honor of the visiting Delta Gamma delegates this afternoon. Those present were Eleanor McClain, Helen Hamilton, Lucille Davis, Hazel Tooze, Florence Cleveland, Ruth Beach, Minnie Pole, Gertrude Miller, Ellice Shearer, Gertrude Buell, Jessie Purdy, Blanche Powell, May Smith. Their patronesses were Mrs. Alexander Martin, Mrs. J. B. Bean, Miss Amy Dunn, and Miss Lucile Robards.

Miss Louise Brace, Miss Pearl Cady, and Miss Emily Hayward, of Delta Gamma, are visiting at the Lambda Rho house this week-end.

Lambda Rho entertained its guests with an Oregon luncheon, Saturday.

The Beth Reah sorority initiated this week-end Misses Effie Rhodes of Portland, Mildred Riddle of La Grande, Eylar Walker of Portland, May Smith of Hood River, Vera Williams of Eugene, Jeanette Wheatley of La Grande, and Lucille Watson of Spokane.

Mrs. A. R. Sweetser entertained Saturday afternoon for the Delta Delta girls.

Madge Fulton is spending the week-end at the Gamma Phi Beta house.

The literary and medic departments of the University of Michigan are disputing a question whether the medical students shall take a certain number of years in the college of arts, making their total number of years in college necessary for graduation, seven instead of six.
