THE GREEN CAP FOREVER

Perhaps the first noteworthy action of the Freshman class, certainly the first action worthy of favorable comment, was taken in the recent class meeting, when the vast majority, comprising all the real red-blooded Freshmen, sat summarily and crushingly upon the few obstreperous and class-spiritless members, who were inclined to disdain the class emblem; namely, the green cap.

It is difficult to imagine a student of the University of Oregon so peppy and so lacking in loyalty to his class that he is no longer proud and happy to identify himself with his classmates. The class of 1916 is to be complimented highly upon its demonstration of the fact that there are few (most likely none since the recent class meeting) of this type of student within their organization.

At most Universities the Freshman classes have fought for the privilege of wearing the green cap and have jealously guarded this prerogative. Woe to the presumptuous Soph who would dare for a moment to desecrate the emblem by placing it upon his inflated bean.

We admit that the Sophomore yearlings may sometimes be altogether too cocky with their numerous infantile honor societies and such things (having just changed from a milk to a bran-mash diet). Nevertheless, such a condition should make the worthy Freshmen all the more anxious to uphold the ancient and honorable traditions of the University.

All hail to 1916. After a few more exhibitions of class loyalty and ginger we will be constrained to imagine that there may be some real timber in the class after all.

TWO Y. W. C. A. OFFICES SOUGHT BY SAME WOMEN

Political jockeying for the presidency of Y. W. C. A. became evident Monday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Association, when the nominations closed for the coming year, with two prominent sorority women, Miss Ruth Beach, '14, and Miss Edith Clements, '15, both running for president and vice president.

Miss Beach is at present at the head of the Y. W. C. A. social committee, while her opponent, Miss Clements, has been prominent in the Association work.

The other nominations were Miss Maud Mastick, '14, secretary, and for treasurer, Miss Mienie Poley, '15, and Miss Barbara Booth, '14. Nominations may be made up till tomorrow noon by giving the names of other candidates to Mrs. Fletcher or Miss Lena Newton. The tangle will be straightened out Monday afternoon at the regular Association meeting, when the election will be held.

CARROLL WAGNER CUTS SCALP IN GYMNASIUM

Carroll Wagner, '15, had three stitches taken in his scalp this morning about 10 o'clock by Bill Hayward, as a result of striking his head on a door of a steel locker in the Men's Gymnasium while putting on his shoes after a gym class.

EDITOR GIVES TALK ON COUNTRY PAPERS

S. L. Moorhead of the Junction City Times Speaks to Class in Journalism.

"What the people clamor for is not always the right," said S. L. Moorhead, editor of the Junction City Times, in his address before the Department of Journalism Monday, "but it is up to the newspaper man to decide what is right and stay by it."

"In cases dealing with the individual," he continued, "the rich are too apt to have the preference but I always try to apply the Golden Rule to all with whom I come in contact."

Mr. Moorhead gave several reasons why country journalism is preferable to city work. Among these reasons are: being one's own boss, being a whole unit instead of a part of a great machine, having the right to arrange one's own time, and being a potent factor in one's own community. "Nothing of any public importance," he said, "goes on in a small town without the help and co-operation of the country editor. To be a successful newspaper man in the small town," said Mr. Moorhead, "one must be able to do anything from setting type to collecting bills. This matter of collecting is an art in itself and one which a man must know in order to prosper."

"In writing for a country paper," he said, "one must be able to write on any subject from births to deaths. Some things are easier to write than others, and often one does not feel equal to writing in the best form, but in this work the writing must be done acceptably four weeks out of the month and twelve months out of the year in order to be successful."

DR. CLARK CORRECTS OLD HISTORICAL ACCOUNTS

In the current issue of The Quarterly of The Oregon Historical Society appears an article by Dr. Robert C. Clark, entitled, "How British and American Subjects United in a Common Government for Oregon Territory in 1844." "This paper is," Dr. Clark writes, "an attempt to correct and supplement existing accounts; to make needed additions to the existing accounts of the movement on the part of the settlers of the Willamette Valley to establish a government in the years 1841-1843; to explain the influences opposing this enterprise; to give more definitely the sources of the first constitution; and lastly, to tell how a union of all the people of Oregon territory south of the Columbia River,—British and Americans,—was brought about in 1844." This is possible because of the discovery of new material in the way of letters of the Hudson's Bay Company, and in a more thorough investigation of sources already known.

PROFESSORS ADDRESS ENGINEERING CLUB

Extemporaneous Speaking for Engineers and Turbo-Generators, Are Subjects.

At a meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, Thursday evening, talks were given by Professor Reddie on the "Value of Extemporaneous Speaking," and by Professor C. R. Reid on the "Design of the Turbo-Generator."

Professor Reddie said, that any man, no matter what his occupation, should be able to express himself before an audience without becoming nervous and embarrassing to himself and his audience as well. One of the reasons for the decline of debate was that the people are relying, to a great extent, on the newspaper to settle their questions.

C. A. McClaine was scheduled to give an address, but was prevented by sickness from attending. His place was taken by Professor Reid, who said, "The design of turbines has been standardized by the following three types: (1) A 2-pole 15,000 revolutions per minute generator, which are built up to 25,000 kilowatts in capacity; (2) A 2-pole 36,000 revolutions per minute, designed with a capacity up to 5,000 kilowatts; (3) A 4-pole 18,000 revolutions per minute, with capacities of between 5,000 and 20,000 kilowatts.

The great difference in design of these generators is to get rid of the heat generated in them by the losses. A turbo-generator of a given size will be only a small fraction of the size of an ordinary generator or one of like capacity driven by a reciprocating engine. To provide sufficient heat radiation, forced air ventilation is acquired by blowers running at a high rate of speed. Designers do not believe it to be practicable to design a turbo-generator of a capacity larger than 25,000 kilowatts, at the present time, but it is quite possible that at some future time designs will be made to admit of larger capacities.

FIJI AND SIGMA CHI MEET IN FINAL GAME

Roberts and Hampton did the basket shooting for the Dorm, while Briedwell at guard, and Steidl at center for the Sigma Chis, and Neill of the Dorm, gave a good account of themselves.

Kappa Sigma put up a gallant fight in defending the Hayward trophy, but were put down and out by the Dormitory by a 4 to 1 score. The game was amusing from start to finish and kept the crowd in an uproar. Neither team displayed basketball ability, but good football form was shown. Such huskies as Neill, Roberts, Bean, King, Still, Thatcher, and Storie, furnished the excitement in the rough and tumble game. Lyons and Hampton scored for the Dorm, while Cowden saved his team from a shut out by tossing a foul.

EMERALD BASKETBALL CUP GOES TO OREGON CLUB

After much parliamentary and unparliamentary discussion, both with-in meeting and without, the Emerald cup has finally been awarded to the Oregon Club by virtue of their victory over Kappa Alpha Theta Monday afternoon, by a 17-14 score. The Kappa Kappa Gamma team forfeited the game which they were to have played the Thetas yesterday and the series was declared closed with Monday's game. This decision was arrived at yesterday by a meeting composed of Dr. Stuart, Miss Thompson and representatives from each of the sororities playing in the league.

PRESS ASSOCIATION MEETS HERE FRIDAY

The second meeting of the Willamette Division of the State Press Association will meet in Eugene tomorrow. At this session President Hofer, editor of the Oregon Manufacturer and president of the association, will announce the Advisory Board of the Department of Journalism. This board will be composed of seven practical newspaper men from various parts of the state and its object will be to advise and promote the growth of the newly established Journalism Department. From them it is expected that practical suggestions will be given, they will visit the University to inspect the work done by the newly fledged journalists, and co-operate with Professor Allen in this branch.

There were about twenty editors from the Willamette Valley in attendance at the first meeting of the organization and it is thought that about the same number will be here tomorrow.

The morning session at the Commercial Club will be given over to the business of the Association. Addresses on the phases of newspaper work will be given at 1 o'clock in the Journalism rooms. The speakers are Colonel E. Hofer and O. R. Ball, manager of the American Typefounders Company.

The last time that the editors were here they were entertained at the various fraternity and sorority houses, every effort was made to leave with them a good impression of the University, and the result was many complimentary articles in many papers the week following. It is asked that invitations again be extended to the visitors.

1913 COACH IS YET UNCHOSEN

Concerning Leonard Frank, Arthur Geary explains that the Minnesota man has not as yet applied for the Oregon position. His name has been suggested by one Professor Thorpe, head of the Journalism department at Kansas, saying that he will probably be available.

HONORABLE R. A. BOOTH IS TONIGHT'S Y. M. C. A. SPEAKER

Hon. R. A. Booth will speak tonight at the regular Y. M. C. A. meeting in Deady Hall on "The New Industrialism." This subject deals with the relation of Christianity to modern industrial progress. Mr. Booth is a strong supporter of higher education. It was through his gift of $10,000 that the $250,000 endowment fund for Willamette University was made possible.
