WHAT WILL THEY DO?

With the approach of the Freshman dance Saturday night, we are moved to wonder whether the usual crush in the hall will be repeated, and to speculate just why a girl persists in peeping coyly from the dressing room, until she catches the eye of her escort in the struggling mass of men outside, before she ventures to cross the threshold, and why they all try to use the single door leading into the small outer hall, which is sure to be crowded. Why can they not, after getting their wraps, come bravely out on the main floor, and there meet their escorts? How much more convenient it would be for all concerned.

Every one recognizes that the present system is bad. This being the case, it is only common sense to change it. If the upper-class girls of the different sorority houses, for example, take the lead, enough others will follow to relieve the crowding and confusion at least. But will they do it? If the committee in charge of the dance asks them to we believe that they will.

And anyway, why doesn't someone bribe the janitor to lock the outer door of the women's dressing room and unlock the main doors at the south end of the building sometime before the last dance. Both would tend to divide the crowd and prevent the present confusion in the west hall and stairway.

BISHOP PADDOCK

One of the most potent sources of education is communion with men. The acquaintanceship with men of action, of achievement and of superb mental ability is of inestimable influence in broadening the sphere of knowledge, in rationalizing the viewpoint and in developing the character along all lines.

During the remainder of this week we have the opportunity to form such an acquaintanceship. Bishop R. L. Paddock has extended an invitation to the students of the University to meet and to talk with him. Do not hesitate because you have no vital problem or question to discuss, but make it a point to call during the hours that he has so kindly set aside. A few minutes with such a man cannot fail of having a lasting value to any student.

FOURTEEN COLLEGE WOMEN ENTER CHI OMEGA CONTEST

Fourteen women of the University have entered the competition for the Chi Omega prize essay contest of twenty-five dollars. This prize is to go to the woman, who in the opinion of the three judges chosen from the Faculty, writes the best essay upon any phase of social service work.

The papers must be handed to Miss Burgess on March 21, the prize being awarded on April 5. Those who are taking part are: Effie Rhodes, Lena Newton, Eleanor McClaine, Ruth Stone, Elizabeth Busch, Carin Degermark, Ludella Whittlesey, Mrs. Billington, Lucile Abrams, Evangeline Husband, Alice Farnsworth, Beatrice Littlefield, Lida Garret, Mary E. Baker.

FORMAL DRESS FOR MEN FROWNED ON BY LAUREANS

Dress suits should be abolished at all Varsity affairs, so decided the Laureans Tuesday evening. The affirmative was represented by Kimmel and Foster, the negative by Goodmin and Blackaby. The affirmative brought out the points that formal dress is undemocratic, since it excludes students without dress suits, and that there is produced a false tendency to caste distinction among the students. The negative's argument that dress suits are necessary in college functions to familiarize the student with them on future occasions, was answered by the fact that there is not enough embarrassment attendant upon donning formal togs to need rehearsal. Their other argument that the wearing of dress suits gives prestige to the University among visiting preppers was refuted by proof that such a prestige is not the kind which a college would wish.

Another headliner of the program was W. J. Holt's talk on "Personal Experiences Tending to Show Why It is Profitable to Attend University."

Harvard's crew work is scheduled to commence next Monday, when all candidates are requested to report. The early start of training is due to the large number of races to be participated in and the need of training to fill the positions vacated by graduation.

President Maclean, formerly the head of the University of Idaho, has recently been inaugurated as head of the University of Winnipeg. The ceremony of investing him with his new executive authority was participated in by 900 students.

EIGHTEEN HOUR LIMIT ATTACKED BY STUDENT

To the Editor:—Why is it, in an institution of higher education, that a student cannot receive credit for as many hours as he can conscientiously carry? By the time a student has attained his third year in college, cannot his major professor judge whether he can handle twenty hours or not? Here is an example: A certain Junior in this University carried eighteen hours last semester, his grades the spring semester last year permitting this. Then, in order to obtain instruction in the education department without interfering with the studies prescribed in his major course, he wishes to take two more hours than he took the previous semester. How were his grades? Not the best, no, but out of eighteen hours thirteen hours of S and five of M are not bad, considering that not one hour of the eighteen was a so-called "pipe." He interviews his major professor, who says, "go ahead. You can certainly handle them and do the work, but I don't believe the Faculty will allow you the credit."

Then the student petitions to carry two more hours when he has proven conclusively that he can handle eighteen.

The petition is turned in to the Registrar, referred to the "committee," but never even so much as reaches the Faculty for a vote. It is "killed in the committee."

The student is told that he cannot carry the extra two hours. What an incentive this is for a student to work hard, be loyal to his University, and support its Faculty when that same University and that same Faculty will not allow him to make the best of his time here, which in all probability will be limited, and to fit himself for an emergency in case he cannot follow his desired profession and might be forced to teach in the High Schools of Oregon?

Disappointed Petitioner.

An organization of prominent citizens of Montana has been made, which calls itself "the Association for the Creation of a greater University of Montana." Its principal purpose is to secure the consolidation of the four higher institutions of learning, as they claim that the present system is "financially and educationally wasteful." The institutions supported by the State of Montana are the School of Mines at Butte, The Montana State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts at Bozeman, The University of Montana at Missoula, and the State Normal School at Dillon. The supporters of the plan maintain that its adoption would result in a first class institution for the state, with first class equipment and would keep Montana high school graduates in the state to pursue their higher education. The plan is receiving strong support throughout the state.

Statistics have been compiled, showing that the captains of the major sports of fourteen of the best known preparatory schools are preparing to enter college next fall. Yale University is the most popular choice, getting eighteen captains, Harvard gets seven, while Princeton comes third with four. In all these preparatory schools only four colleges were mentioned. Of the fourteen football captains, six will enter Yale, three to Princeton, and two have Harvard in mind. In baseball Yale will draw eight stars, four possibilities going to Harvard and one to Princeton. Four track captains will go to Yale and Harvard and Princeton's share will be one each.

Practical work is to be carried on by the Sociology department at Syracuse. A building and land valued at $50,000 has been placed at the disposal of the head of the sociology department. This building will be open to the general public and classes will be formed in dairy, domestic sciences, languages, particularly English, and other practical subjects. Any students in the university can give his or her services to the settlement. The different classes will be conducted by one or more students. Many of the Presbyterian churches of Syracuse have united in backing the work.

WILL FEATURE MUSIC AT Y. M. C. A. STAG MIX

Japanese Readings Promised by Jokichi Tominago—Cock Fights Scheduled.

The stag mix at the Men's Dormitory tomorrow evening, which is held under the direction of the Y. M. C. A., will consist of a program of two parts, the first part will be composed largely of music. Bert Jerard and Harold Grady, two popular Glee Club men, will be heard in vocal duets. Their reputation as first class entertainers has already been established, so something of high quality can be expected from them. Other men who will furnish entertainment for the lovers of music are Kinney Miller, of the Eugene Y. M. C. A., and Jerry Martin, a former Glee Club man of the University.

Another feature of this part of the program will be Japanese readings by Jokichi Tominago, a Freshman from Seattle.

The second part of the program will be under the direction of Ed. Bailey, one of Oregon's all-Northwest football men. This part will consist of cock fights, hot hand and pillow fights. A silver cup is given to the winner of the cock fight. This cup is now held by Elmer Spencer of Cottage Grove.

After these events have taken place, refreshments, consisting of hot chocolate and cake, will be served. Arrangements are being made to entertain the largest crowd ever gathered at a get-acquainted party at Oregon.

WHAT THE COLLEGE EDITORS ARE SAYING

PACIFIC-IDAHO DEBATE BRINGS RECRIMINATIONS

"Seldom does it become necessary for a college paper to express itself in no uncertain terms upon matters concerning relations with other schools in intercollegiate functions, but occasion demands that the attitude of Pacific's student body in regard to the recent debates with the University of Idaho be expressed.

"Pacific had had in the past noteworthy reputation in forensic contests and her few defeats have been accepted in the good grace of an honorably defeated contestant, but in all regard for simple fairness, the student body is justified in taking up the cry of unfairness over Friday night's contests. From reports, we find that the correspondence with the Idaho University preparatory to the debate was of anything but a satisfactory nature, and the final decision as to judges for both debates have aroused faculty, students, and friends of Pacific. As to platform etiquette our visitors seemed to need considerable primary instruction.

"We can and do take a fair defeat uncomplainingly. The proceedings of both the Idaho debate council and debaters before Friday evening was, to put it in mildest terms, unsatisfactory to the students of Pacific and future relations will be entered into most guardedly."—Pacific Index.

"THE ART OF DANCING"

"Some of us make lots of fun of the dancing class in the Gym. But in reality it is a mighty fine thing and the girls who are doing the work are more public-spirited than most of us would-be wits.

"Here at Ohio State dancing is the all-important social diversion. Here, too, is society open to all. To get the full benefits of the University the social side of the life should not be neglected. And so in order to mix around with the rest dancing is the one thing best suited and most easily accomplished.

"The Freshman who is awkward and timid and ill at ease when he gets in too close proximity to the representatives of co-education—though we must confess they are mighty few—ought to drop over to the Gym on Monday nights and allow the ladies to tow him about until he is able to put on sail and steer about the hall without ballast."—Ohio State Lantern.
