

WILL CONSIDER COACH

No Candidates for Baseball Job—
Washington Track Problem Still Unsolved.

At the next meeting of the Athletic council a baseball coach will be decided upon, although there are as yet no candidates in the field for the job. However, Captain Chandler will call the first practice about March 1.

No recent developments have occurred in regard to the Washington track muddle. Manager Horr assured Bill Hayward, when the latter was in Seattle recently, that former Manager Zednick's contract would be adhered to.

Manager Geary says concerning the matter: "I have received nothing from Manager Horr in regard to breaking off negotiations. The whole proposition is merely a rumor from Portland, and not to be considered seriously, as Washington has always been honorable heretofore in dealing with us."

CAMPBELL WILL SPEAK

Oregon Alumnus on Oregonian Staff
Will Address Journalism Class
Friday.

Herbert Campbell, '03, who now has a position as copy reader on the Portland Oregonian, will speak to the students of Journalism classes next Friday on the work of a copy reader on a newspaper. Mr. Campbell has worked on some of the largest papers of the Northwest and at one time was telegraph editor of the Seattle P. I.

Mr. Campbell was familiarly known as "Freshie" Campbell while he was a student here at the University. A story is out to the effect that President Campbell and "Freshie" Campbell were once the only Oregon representatives at a football game between the U. of O. and U. of W. One was yell leader and the other was the rooster, thus upholding the dignity of the University. It is said that after the game the Oregon supporters painted the town "red."

The initial track enrollment at the University of Pennsylvania was one hundred men. Coach Ward was much pleased with the quality of the material.

in Fenton's place. If Bradshaw plays center, Captain Sims and Don Rice will be used as guards, leaving Walker, Boylen, and Brooks for the forward positions. If Walker should be played in the center position, Captain Sims and Bradshaw will be the guards, while Boylen and Brooks will be used as forwards.

Coach Hayward has been trying out Vesper in a forward position the last few practices, and may possibly use him during the games.

Reports from the University of Washington show that although the present team is one of the strongest ever turned out at the Northern institution, it is also the youngest in point of age of the individual players. Captain Byler, whose remarkable playing has been so conspicuous this year, is only 19 years old. Savage, the all-Northwest center, is only 19, as are McFee and Fancher, the two guards. Olson is the oldest man on the team, being 22 years old.

GRADUATES IS FELT

State and in their stead provides for a system of Superior Courts. This system is being tried out in a number of states at the present time with good results. Jack was also a strong backer of the Workmen's Compensation Act, spoke twenty minutes in favor of it, and was one of the few speakers who spoke on this measure to receive applause. It was largely through his efforts that this bill passed the House. Frank Mitchell, of Baker county, has come before the public eye in his support of the Blue Sky Laws, which have passed both houses and which, it is predicted, will bring the State from $30,000 to $40,000 from fees and other taxes on corporations. These laws require all corporations to be registered and besides the revenue which will be derived from them, they will greatly decrease the number of fake schemes and shady corporations that annually rob the public.

Anderson Credits Laureans.
"Andy" Anderson, from Clatsop county, is a member of the educational committee, and is known for his ever watchful eye for "niggers in the woodpile." He became prominent from his participation in the fight that was waged between the upper and lower elements on the Columbia river, which have had trouble for years over fishing rights. He also discovered the attempt of outside interests to interfere with the piloting of boats at the mouth of the Columbia and exposed their plans. "Andy" was a leading member of the Laurean Literary Society while in the University, and he gives the credit for his success largely to the training he received in this society.

Reams is Prominent.
Representative Clarence Reams, of Jackson county, one of the few Democrats in the lower House, and a strong ally of the Governor's, is, along with the other Oregon men, becoming prominent in public life. The Road Bill, which recently passed both houses and represents a compromise between these two branches of the State government, really inculcates the principles of a bill which he introduced at a former session of the Legislature.

Among the others also noteworthy are "Dud" Clark, a reading clerk in the House, Ben Huntington, reading clerk in the Senate, Allen Eaton, senator from Lane, and Harold Clifford, who is clerk of a prominent board. Clifford is practicing law at Baker, Oregon, when his presence is not required at the State Capitol.

gon trip but only took in $281 on the home concerts, while generally the amount received is about $400. At the time of the first concert many of the students had gone home for the holidays, while during the bargain concert the heavy rain kept many away.

Pat Cecil, who was manager of the Glee Club last year, made the best showing next to that of Mr. Geary.

This report will be submitted to the Executive Committee next Saturday.

tenth of the world's wealth comes through natural products, and only one-tenth by human labor? Our problem is to get back to the soil, and to bring the farmers into closest contact with out cities."

Convict Labor Beneficial.
"Today it costs thirty cents to the ton per mile for the farmer to market his produce. That cost can be reduced to one-third its present figure by scientific road-building. It has already been demonstrated what can be done with the convict labor of the state. The further use of this under expert supervision will solve the problem. You are not only putting the labor to the best advantage, but you are making a man of the convict. A man likes to be trusted, and if you awaken the self respect of these men, they are well on the way of reform. Of course, I realize that there will be dirt roads as long as I live, but these roads can be properly drained, graded, and crowned."

Confers With Judge Thompson.
"Don't blame your county courts and supervisors. It is not their fault that the roads are in their present condition. It will take the co-operation of all to improve them; and expert knowledge to do the thing right. I was talking today with Judge Thompson of this city, and he showed me road models he had in the courthouse. It is his hope that this University might be made the training ground for expert road engineers, who will be trained in the proper and most economical construction of highways."

Oregonians Speak Best English.
Mr. Hill congratulated the people of Oregon on speaking the best and most clear cut English, that he has heard anywhere in the whole country. "Education, and the love of God, of country, the right love of woman, are among the main influences working for the uplift of the people today." Another change that the speaker regarded as progressive, was the success of the woman suffrage propaganda in Oregon, and other states. Mr. Hill was accompanied by Regent Frederic V. Holman, who introduced him as a citizen of the world, right-hand man to Jim Hill, the empire builder, and inspector of the trans-Siberian railroad. He also mentioned the fact that Mr. Hill has recently been selected by unanimous votes as president of the American Roads Association. Mr. Hill has traveled over Europe and all over the United States, studying the problem of roads.

ished. "You've created enough disturbance for one day."

"Yes, I told Sommer and he's got away," replied Ash excitedly through the instrument in a stage whisper. "How's that! Found the auto? I guess I'd better stop Sommer."

Slamming on the receiver as he dropped the instrument, he too rushed from the room after knocking Waldo Miller off a chair in his haste, and dashed across the campus on the run. The professor again called for order; then suggested that as an exercise the students write a news story of what had occurred. He turned to his desk for paper, and the moment his back was turned, three student newspaper correspondents, members of the class, made a dive for the exit, and they too were watched pursuing the path of the others in a mad haste.

Finding Ash and Sommer in a boat house near the campus, they demanded the story.

"It's none of your business," replied the others who refused to reply to questions in spite of protests.

"Well," finally declared one of the reporters, "you're going to tell us what's happened, or you're both going into the mill race."

The two confederates then confessed. In the meantime the journalism students were writing their versions of the affair, with permission to use what methods they chose to locate the story. Over the phone the Eugene newspapers and police were aroused. The garages were questioned. Someone recollected that a Springfield street car had passed just as Sommer had left. The officials of that city were sought, but it took an hour for the members of the class to realize the "stall."

ings for education rather than entertainment.

Saturday evening, Professor R. H. Dearborn, professor of electrical engineering, will address the Portland union of Steam Engineers at their local headquarters. He will arrange for conferences and talks of higher and technical sort for those desiring it.

DeCou Talks in Men's Resort.

On the same evening, Professor E. E. DeCou, professor of mathematics, will speak at a men's resort at the corner of Fourth and Burnside streets conducted by the First Presbyterian Church of Portland. His subject will be, "The World's Peace Movement." This is a new phase of the extension work, aiming to reach the men in all walks of life.

Professor O. F. Stafford, head of the chemistry department, will address the Oregon section of the National Chemical Society in Portland, Saturday evening.

Tomorrow evening, Dr. Rebec lectures before an audience in Astoria, on "New Higher Education," under the auspices of the Civic League and Women's Clubs.

Dr. Rebec to Tour State.
Early in March Dr. Rebec will make a circuit of appointments for lectures in Umatilla county, before citizen meetings, and high school students, on the same subject. After this series, he will tour the whole state about the middle of March, with the purpose of bringing the University into contact with the people of the entire state, and showing the value of higher education to the high school students. His first step on this latter trip will be to Oregon City.

The effect of the work of Women's Clubs in the state on the University is shown by a meeting of the Young Men's Progressive Business Club in the Portland Commercial rooms, which owed a great measure of its effectiveness and co-operation to the initiative of the Portland Women's Clubs. Prompted by the action of the women's clubs of the state, the Progressive Club passed resolutions in favor of heavy appropriations for the University.
