

YELL LEADER APPEALS TO OREGON ROOTERS

Blackman Would Organize Excursion to Basketball Games With O. A. C. Next Week.

A good crowd of rooters have assembled at the last two games with W. S. C. to encourage the team by concerted rooting, but there were still many vacant seats in the bleachers, and there were lots of fellows sitting in reserved seats with university girls, who would otherwise have filled those seats. There were also many men, who were not at the game at all.

The influence of organized rooting on the Oregon players is good. The men on the team themselves say that when they feel that the students are behind them and are actually supporting them, they are capable of putting up a far better game than otherwise.

There are only two more conference games for the Varsity to play on the home floor, and those two are with O. A. C.

We would like to see every man in the Varsity out to root for the team also. Let the students bring girls to the game, if they wish to, and see that they get good seats, but before the whistle blows, it would show a much better spirit among the men present, if they would feel safe to leave their girls for the brief space of one hour, assemble in the bleachers, and then root with all their might for old Oregon.

Now about the Corvallis games. The students of the Agricultural College are chartering a special train to be loaded with 150 rooters to send here for the Eugene contests. Why cannot Oregon do likewise and ship a bunch of strong-lunged fans to Corvallis for either the Friday or the Saturday evening game? If a large enough number will turn out for this, it will mean a total expense of not more than $3.00, and the average Oregon student surely should be able to stand for that.

WOMAN JOURNALIST TALKS TO STUDENTS

Universities for many years, yesterday was the first time she was ever inside of a Journalism class room and the first time she ever talked to a class of this department. She is visiting Eugene in the interests of "Made in Oregon" products, representing the Portland Manufacturers Association. She attended the "Made in Oregon" banquet at the Eugene Commercial Club last night.

THESIS MAY GIVE TO BEEFSTEAK NEW ROLE

The main difficulty encountered so far by Martzloff, is to find some method to determine the distinct aid that is rendered in each department of the food assimilation. So far the work has progressed slowly, owing to the necessity of advancing each step independent of any text book aid.

So far as it is known at the University, nothing is published or written on the matter. Research has failed to disclose any data or findings upon the value of tissue extracts in question, thus making the thesis work by Martzloff important, if results are obtained that are of any consequence.

EUTAXIANS DISCUSS WILSON AND HIS INAUGURATION

President Wilson, president since noon today, and his inauguration, were the subjects discussed by the Eutaxian society at their regular meeting this evening in the Library building.

Wilson's life will be discussed by Helen Holbrook, who describes the President's course in college and his University and law training. Gertrude Buell will treat the policy of the new president, his cabinet and his political views.

The inauguration itself will be the theme of Lucile Davis' talk, which included a history of inaugural plans, and incidents in the history of installing our presidents.

C. U. MEET ENTRIES TO REGISTER IN A. A. U.

No Others Will be Allowed to Compete—Splendid Trophies Offered Winners.

Hereafter, the participants in the annual Columbia University track meet held in Portland must be registered in the Amateur Athletic Union. In the past this meet has not received the official sanction of the A. A. U., but this year it will be recognized and held in strict conformity with the rules of that organization.

Oregon has won this meet the last five consecutive years and will again be represented this year on April 12, with a formidable team, but will have strong competitors.

A gold medal will be given to the winner of first place in each open event, and a silver medal to the one winning second place in the same event. A banner will be given to the team winning the greatest number of points in the open events, and a trophy cup will be the prize of the open relay. In the relay races each consecutive runner will receive his relay from the scratch and will not be allowed a flying start.

Entries must be in by April 5, with each man's number. Any number of men may be entered, but the actual number of competitors will be limited to three men from each team in each event. Points may be scored in the events as follows: Five for first place, three for second, and one for third.

The list of events is as follows:
16-pound shot put (open).
440-yard run (open).
50-yard dash, trials (open).
Pole vault (open).
50-yard dash, semi-finals (open).
50-yard dash, finals (open).
220-yard dash, trials (open).
50-yard high hurdles, trials (open).
220-yard dash, semi-finals (open).
Running high jump (open).
220-yard dash, final (open).
80-yard run (open).
Running broad jump (open).
50-yard high hurdles, semi-finals (open).
One mile run (open).
50-yard high hurdles, final (open).
Half-mile relay (open).

INTENSE RIVALRY CHARACTERISTIC

As to the line-up tomorrow night, Hayward will say nothing except in regard to Fenton. It is known that Cooper will guard Walker, and that the playing of May, the giant football tackle, will necessitate a bigger forward than either Boylen or Brooks. This means either Vosper or Rice at forward, probably the latter, whom Hayward likes on account of his accurate basket shooting. Captain Sims will have the task of guarding Dewey, the other star forward for the visitors, who was the sensation in the recent University of Washington games at Corvallis.

Should Fenton be incapacitated in either game, Stevenson will take his place. Hayward is satisfied with the big fellow's work in the W. S. C. games, and although he was a trifle scared in his first Varsity experience, he had it over everyone in the jumping game. Fenton has been coaching him every night, to have him in readiness as his understudy.

Just who will be the third party on the floor, is a puzzle to almost everyone. The choice seems to have lit upon L. Strong, of the Seattle Y. M. C. A. for referee. The rivalry between the two colleges is shown by the fact that the referee problem has been up in the air for a week, each team being unwilling to accept anyone who might prove unsatisfactory.

The O. A. C. line-up will probably be Wing and Dewey, forwards, Darling, center, and Cooper and May, guards.

JINX NEVER BOTHERED HIM, SAYS AMUNDSEN

Explorer, Who Lectures Here April 1, Has No Superstition or Fear to Contend With.

Superstition has no place in the life of Captain Roald Amundsen, the discoverer of the South pole. Non even the combination of Friday, the 13th day of the month, can feaze the "Last of the Vikings," as he has been termed, who will speak in the Christian Church, April 1, under the auspices of the University Y. M. C. A. Reserved seats for the lecture will be placed on sale Monday, March 10, at the Book Exchange and at Linn's Drug Store, down town.

Seamen are famed for their stock of superstitions that they carry with them wherever they go. But not so with Amundsen, who, although he has been a sailor all his life, has "defied every spell and omen known to the witches calendar," as he expressed it.

"Superstition?—pouf!" he says. "I started for the south pole from Framheim, at the sea edge of the antarctic barrier, on Friday, October 19, 1911. I took four sledges, with thirteen dogs to each sledge. I discovered the south pole on Friday, December 16. I got back to tide water on Friday, January 25. I landed at Buenos Ayres homeward bound on a Friday and met the noblest and most generous friend of all my life. If Fridays and thirteens had any potency for evil, my polar expedition, by all the laws of superstition, should have gone to smash and my bones even now should be whitening somewhere in the antarctic pack."

Y. M. C. A. WILL HAVE "BACK TO THE COUNTRY" LECTURES

Something entirely new is promised by the Y. M. C. A. in the weekly meetings for the month of March in Deady Hall, beginning March 6. The first of four addresses on "The Challenge of the Country," will be delivered by Professor A. R. Sweetser, who will take for his subject, "The Why of the City." Complete arrangements have not been made in securing the other speakers, but they will be announced within a few days.
