DIVIDING WITH OTHERS

Now and then one may hear a student deploring the fact that an instructor or professor is absent from classes for a day at the end of the week, and that extra hard assignments of outside work are required to take the place of the lectures.

The fact in this case is that the student has forgotten that the University campus is state-wide and that the duties in the University class rooms are only a part of the instructor's activities. For instance, in Portland there are week-end classes in English, mathematics, and several branches of engineering. Series of lectures are being conducted constantly in one town or another, and lecture tours are being made, sometimes in the most remote parts of the State.

The University's one motto is service to the State, and students as well as instructors should be willing and anxious to sacrifice to this ideal. All the work of the Extension Division, by means of which four or five hundred people are being reached at the present time, is done through the unpaid efforts of the instructors. The work of preparing and delivering lectures, of correcting correspondence—study papers and of instructing classes in distant towns is done during the time which these men would otherwise have for recreation, rest or personal research and study.

It is up to the students here at the University to help the good cause along by working extra hard and so making it easier for the instructor to leave his classes when he is needed elsewhere. Those of us who are able to attend the University should bear in mind those slightly less fortunate but who are striving just as hard to obtain an education. Let us be happy in the fact that we can divide with them.

OREGON CLUB IS HOST

Sixty members gather at Shack and Enjoy Social Evening Together.

Last Friday evening, at the Shack, the Oregon Club held a delightful party. Sixty members were present and jolly good fellowship prevailed. A mock inter-collegiate track meet was held between Idaho, Washington, O. A. C., and Oregon, in which all present participated, Oregon winning out in almost every event. Various other games were also played. The entertainment was completed by the serving of refreshments.

The next social event of the Oregon Club will probably be a picnic, later on in the spring. Plans for it are already being formulated. The social committee which has it in charge consists of William Holt, Herbert Mathews, Andrew Street, Vera Moffatt, Ruth Horton, and Ruby Edwards. The chaperones chosen for it are Professor and Mrs. F. S. Dunn and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bond.

An April Frolic Committee, composed of Vera Moffatt, Beatrice Littlefield, and Carl Zimmerman, was appointed.

HELP WANTED

Insertions Free.

One student to wash dishes and do odd jobs around the house, for board and room, at once. Y. M. C. A. Bureau.

The Association Bureau has several needy students listed for work on regular hours during the week. Mr. Businessman, you need help and they need the work. They give satisfaction. Phone 504, University Association Bureau.

The Association has a good proposition for four students for the summer.

More students wanted for Spring jobs.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON MEETING CLOSE Y. W. C. A. CONFERENCE

The Y. W. C. A. conference meeting Saturday night in Villard Hall was well attended. After an instrumental number by Mona Daugherty, President Campbell spoke to the women on "Christianity as a Solution of the Problem of Unrest."

The meeting Sunday afternoon closed the conference and was a fitting conclusion to the week-end. The program included a song by Florence Cleveland, an interesting talk by Miss Chappel, of Willamette University, and a closing talk by Miss Elizabeth Fox.

SOPHOMORE DEBATE TRY-OUT POSTPONED TO MARCH 29

The Sophomore debate try-out to choose representatives for the Sophomore-Freshman Debate has been postponed again, this time from Friday afternoon, March 28, to Saturday morning, at 9:30. The Sophomore committee gives this as the final date; there will be no further alteration.

The judges have not been decided upon as yet, but will be announced this week. Those who have so far signified their intention of trying for the Sophomore team are Maurice Hill, James Donald, Walter Dimm, Clarence Brotherton, Gray McConnell, and Clarence Ash.

Mrs. Maude Service Kerr, '09, is spending the week at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house.

Miss Lila Margaret Sengstake, ex-'14, returned to Portland yesterday afternoon.

The University of Washington and O. A. C. tied with an equal number of points in a wrestling match at Seattle.

U. OF O. LAW SCHOOL ACTIVITIES ACTIVE

"Not Facetious," Says Burns Powell, "But Students Busy Absorbing Blackstone."

March 20.—To the Editor: In view of the fact that the requests of fellow law students for Law School news in the Emerald have turned to threats, I feel suddenly inspired to take up my pen and write down what I remember of all that has happened in our corner of the Varsity during the past three or four months.

If I remember correctly, that Freshman class got together one night after many attempts, and elected a set of officers no one kicked on particularly, so their pictures were sent to Don Rice and will, in time, appear in the great book that individual has promised to produce. It doesn't matter especially who was elected, being as how I'm not one of them, but a man named Dillon says he's President, and Police Judge Rice, of St. Johns, claims to be duly elected Class Representative, and a big, tall fellow by the name of Potter, says he got more votes for Sergeant-at-arms than did another fellow who is a really-and-truly policeman, but whose name I can't recall.

You see, I ran for Vice-President, at the earnest solicitation of my fellow-clubmen, and would have been elected without any trouble, had it not been for another fellow named Lincoln, who also ran, that is, we both ran, he stopped, I haven't. Oh, yes, I almost forgot, we have a Secretary, and a suffragette at that, the only one who attended the meeting, and, I might add, no "sufferor" had the nerve to oppose her candidacy. Her name is Miss Baless, and she says she's studying law in order that she may be a better judge of MAN (I haven't figured out get whether she means that in the collective sense or in the individual).

By-the-way, we have eleven other women in our institution, and every one of them intends to practice the profession of law. Its my own private opinion, however, that the practice will consist ultimately in laying down the law daily to one man, in a private office, scented with the fragrance of fried beef steak and burning gas.

My memory of the last Student Body meeting is more vivid. Firstly, it was held about a month ago in the Hirsch-Selling building, and was financed largely from the private pocketbook of Arron Frank, the lately resigned chairman of the committee on arrangements and finance; secondly, we had plenty to eat and drink, and good cigars were passed around; thirdly, Judge Morrow spoke on "The Advisability of a Lawyer Keeping His Mouth Shut," and several others entertained the multitude with songs, stories and fights; and fourthly, about one hundred and fifty men were present, all of whom left, declaring they had spent a pleasant evening. During the course of the evening, T. Walter Gillard, he's our energetic Registrar, you know, became possessed of another of his periodical brain storms. This time it turned to baseball, and T. Walter refused to be calmed, until the mob had elected a baseball committee with big Dow Walker as its advisory head, and had voted to put out a "promising" baseball team this spring. Since this storm, T. Walker has had another one and as a result, Dean Gantenbein's exchequer is minus about $50 for team uniforms, and the ball team has one "beautiful slaughter" entered on the debit side of its ledger. (It doesn't matter what team inflicted the defeat—the fact is—I don't remember.)

We have a debate team. I know something about debate. We have a debate team and its going to debate with Willamette University Law School in the near future at Salem. This team was chosen by some sort of a competitive contest and the successful participants were Ray Singletary, a Senior, Tom Ryan, a Junior, and John Peters, a junior.

We have a flourishing Public Speaking Society also. You see, T. Walter's Blackstone Debating Society died a natural and quiet death one evening and "lo, from the ashes" arose C. H. Lehman, real estate dealer and promoter, with an idea. "Why not learn to speak," says he, first to himself and then to the rest of us. "All lawyers must make speeches," and so we assembled, some twenty strong, and declared ourselves a Public Speaking Society (entrance fee, 35 cents). Strange to say, this society soon became popular, possibly due to the fact that speeches were limited to five minutes and nearly every one got a chance to talk during the evening, and soon the society found it necessary to limit the membership and beg people to stay away. Speaking of promoters, reminds me of an incident in the Freshman class the other night. We were talking about corporations and in answer to the question, "What Is a Promoter," Judge Chamberlain replied, "A promoter is a person who sells what he does not want to someone who does not want it either." (Peels of loud guffaws.) However, we will exonerate Mr. Lehman from such a stigma, for with us he has proven himself a man of public spirit and a willing instrument for good among the students.

Phi Delta Phi gave a dance last month at the Irvington Club for itself and a few of its friends, and the Blackstone Club has announced an informal dance for the students and their friends, to be held at the Multnomah Hotel, April 4.

I must close now, as my boss says the inkwell needs filling—most of us work in law offices during the day time, you understand, perhaps. I'll find time to write again before your successor is duly elected and sworn in.

This letter is not so much of an attempt to be facetious as you might imagine. To me it represents pretty nearly the attitude of most of the law students towards Student Body activities. Not that they are insincere, for no body of students ever took their work more seriously to heart, but because they are so absorbed in learning the principles of law, and in keeping the landlord and laundryman at arms distance, they find little time and energy to be wasted on those things which belong more properly to undergraduate days.
BURNS POWELL.

Y. M. ANNUAL BANQUET WILL BE HELD FRIDAY

Professor DeCou Will Act as Toastmaster—Old and New Officers to Give Addresses.

The annual banquet of the University Y. M. C. A. will be held next Friday evening, at 6 o'clock, in the Eugene Y. M. C. A. Professor E. E. DeCou will act as toastmaster. The first speech of the evening will be made by Burleigh Cash, the retiring president. He will have charge of the inauguration of the new officers who were elected last Thursday.

The new president, John Black, will speak, outlining his policies. Following Mr. Black, Vernon Moteschenbacher, the new vice president, will give a talk. Other speakers of the evening will include President Campbell, Edward Bailey, Andrew Collier, Karl Martzloff, and Karl Onthank. Plates for the dinner will be thirty-five cents each. Names for the banquet will be taken at the Y. M. C. A. book exchange any time before Thursday.

Speaking of his plans, President Black said, "I haven't my policies fully outlined as yet. However, we are looking for men who are leaders."

PRESIDENT ACKERMAN PAYS VISIT TO THE UNIVERSITY

Mr. J. H. Ackerman, president of Monmouth Normal School, visited at the University Monday. He and President Campbell took lunch at the Mary Spiller Hall. A new girls' dormitory is being constructed at the State Normal School, and Mr. Ackerman is interested in selecting suitable furnishings for it.

He was for several years state superintendent of schools, before he took his present position as president of the state normal school.

Mr. Ackerman spoke here at Assembly last year, on "Educational Unrest."

While here he visited the Woman's Gymnasium, and watched a class in its regular work.

The Y. W. C. A. will hold a candy sale in front of Deady Hall before Assembly, at 9:45, tomorrow morning.
