WHAT ARE THE ANSWERS?

Of all cruel, tactless, unjustifiable proceedings, how is this for the worst? Eight prep-school guests at a fraternity house. Two suddenly appear wearing pledge pins. They are congratulated. Treated as brothers. The other six are not.

Don't the six see the difference? Don't they feel it? Don't they go away convinced that something is wrong either with themselves or with the system which permits such occurrence? Are they likely to come back? Is this system a good thing for the University? Are the fraternities going to permit it to operate every Junior Week-End?

What about it?

THE HONOR FRATERNITY OF JOURNALISM

The election of President Campbell and Professor Allen to honorary membership of Delta Sigma Chi indicates the place which this Fraternity is destined to hold at the University of Oregon. These are men of practical newspaper experience whose council and advice will be of inestimable value in enabling the organization to reach its highest aims.

The Fraternity is a nation-wide brotherhood of the best men of all Universities engaged in the study of the profession which is recognized as the most powerful factor in public life today. The ideals, standards and teachings of the organization are such as to inculcate in its members a realization of the obligations of the newspaper man to truth, accuracy, justice and the welfare of mankind.

Here at the University it means an added stimulus to journalistic efforts. Its doors are closed to all except men of the strongest determination, the most untiring energy and the highest ideals. In short, it demands that a man make good as a journalist while in college and that he give promise to continue to make good after college days are over. Membership to Delta Sigma Chi is the highest honor attainable by the student of Journalism.

Based upon the foundation of the old Press Club, whose members are attaining prominence on the newspapers of the State, it is already becoming a powerful factor for progress and achievement in Oregon, and with such men of wide experience, versatile capabilities and high ideals as President Campbell and Professor Allen, it is sure to assist in turning out the best possible type of college-trained newspaper men.

WOMEN'S LEAGUES IS EUTAXIAN SUBJECT

Mrs. Parsons, Miss Thompson, and Mrs. Allen, Address Co-ed Meeting.

The Eutaxian meeting Tuesday evening was devoted to the subject of the Women's League. Mrs. E. S. Parsons, Miss Harriet Thompson, and Mrs. E. W. Allen spoke of the organization of the Leaguers at their respective colleges. Mrs. Parsons told of the early conditions at Michigan, which almost demanded such an organization. She said, "The enthusiasm of both the Sorority girls and the Independents over this League was surprising, for they seemed to feel the need of a closer bond between them. After the formation of the League the women were divided into groups of ten, which served as committees for the organization."

Miss Thompson, being a student at Michigan a few years later, gave the subsequent history of the League as she knew it. After explaining it, she concluded, "I can never say just how much benefit I received from being a member of the Women's League. The second thing I did on entering the University, was to buy a Women's League ticket and I never regretted doing so."

"Every woman by becoming a student at Wisconsin, was a member of the Self-government Association," said Mrs. Allen. "It the Woman's Building, which was secured through the efforts of the Association, certain groups of women gave teas every week. In this way the women became so much better acquainted. The work of the Association was and is almost unbounded."

MILDRED BAGLEY, '11, DIRECTS HIGH SCHOOL GYM EXHIBITION

An exhibition of gymnastic work, fancy dancing, and other forms of indoor athletic training for women, will be given at the City Y. M. C. A. building next Saturday evening by the girls of the Eugene High School, under the supervision of their director, Miss Mildred Bagley, '11, a graduate of the University from the department of Physical Education.

Since her graduation, Miss Bagley has been head of this department of the Eugene High School, and has built up a course of study and training in that institution along this line, that is modeled closely after that given in the University. Miss Bagley has been successful in arousing an interest in tennis and basketball among the women.

The exhibition will be free, and start at 7:30. No admission to men.

EXTENSION MONITOR PUBLISHED THIS WEEK

May Number Contains Articles by Adams, Boynton, Howe, Barker and Others.

Containing practical ideas on practical subjects of interest to the class in which it circulates, the extension students of the University of Oregon, the May number of the Extension Monitor, the publication of the Correspondence School, appeared this week.

In form it still continues in its original shape, while it is composed of articles by members of the faculty and prominent students of the University. "The House of the Common Man," by Assistant Professor Percy P. Adams, is the leading contribution in this recent number. It deals with the artistic side of architecture that can be realized in the construction of homes for the average American.

Professor W. P. Boynton, head of the Physics department, explodes some current misconceptions in regard to the badness of indoor air. The theory that it is all bad, and that outdoor ozone is alone proper for use, he attacks from the standpoint of scientific study and investigation.

Professor H. C. Howe reviews H. G. Wells' novel, "Tono-Bungay," which he characterizes as the "Greatest Historical Novel." Professor F. L. Barker writes interestingly of the old and new geography, showing the changed methods in its study, and the new light that geography as a scientific study can throw on modern problems.

Short articles concerning the Commonwealth Day, Summer School, and new University courses, together with the editorial section, completes the Monitor.

THOMAS GATCH DIES

Ex-President of O. A. C. and Willamette, Expires in Seattle at Age of 80

Thomas Milton Gatch, pioneer educator of the Pacific Coast, and at one time President of O. A. C., and afterward offered the presidency of the University of Oregon, died yesterday at his home in Seattle, aged 80 years. The cause was valvular heart disease, after having been ill for several months.

Coming to the Pacific Coast in 1850, Mr. Gatch accepted the chair of mathematics and natural science at the University of the Pacific, at Santa Clara, California. He was then appointed principal of the schools of that city, then moved to Olympia, Washington, where he was principal of the Puget Sound Wesleyan Institute, until 1860. In that year he became professor of ancient languages at Willamette University at Salem. Then followed in quick succession the presidency of Willamette, principalship of Portland Academy, then president of Willamette for ten years, 1870 until 1880.

He afterward served as head of the territorial University of Washington, and president of the Oregon Agricultural College. While in service at that institution, he was granted a Carnegie Pension. T. M. Gatch was born in Ohio, in 1833, and graduated from the Ohio Wesleyan University in 1855.

FORD WRITES THESIS ON CIVIC IMPROVEMENT TOPICS

Edsal Ford, a Senior from Portland, has undertaken the original scheme of suggesting plans for civic legislation in regard to the condemnation of private property, as the subject matter for his senior thesis. He is taking up the ways by means of which the city will be enabled to acquire property abutting on streets as well as to secure the street property itself.

The thesis contains a number of other suggestions along the same line, as well as along the line of civic improvement,—notably a plan for a radial street system in the city of Eugene. All the plans are to be accompanied by maps and blueprints.
