OREGANA IS OUT, BUT NOT ENTIRE EDITION

Fifty Advance Copies Are Delivered —Rest Are Promised Within the Next Week.

The Oregana of the Class of 1914 appeared today though in limited numbers. But fifty of the books will be distributed for the present and those would not be out now, except that the editor, Don Rice, wishes the visitors to see the Oregana. He has had them bound without the feature department, which is not quite complete. The whole edition is to be expected in about a week.

The Annual in every way does ample credit to its editor, Don Rice, Manager Hawley S. Bean, and the Junior class, many of the members of which have been faithful right hand men to the busy executive. The heads of the various departments were Charles A. Reynolds, and Wallace G. Benson, managing editors; Flora Dunham, features; Maud Mastick, administration; Norma Dobie, classes; Rose Basler, fraternities; Bess Cowden, art; Maurice Terpening, athletics; Vernon Motschenbacher, forensics; Melvin P. Ogden, Law School; Colton Meek, journalism; Alva Grout, subscriptions. The assistants in the art department were Phernie Miller, Leslie Emmens, and Thornton. Leland Hendricks and William Cass were able assistants in the feature section.

The cover, which is new and distinctly different from any annual heretofore, is the black pebble leather with the Oregon Seal under the words "Oregana—Class of 1914," in gilt. Perhaps the most effective and attractive part of this book are the borders one a conventionalized design of Oregon grape, combined with the Oregon seal. This is extremely original and clever—the other the campus panorama in border form. Both of these were drawn by Phernie Miller, Thornton Howard deserves great praise for his professional cartoons, especially ball Team. in the feature department. The half tones of Professor Bovard and President Campbell, in the front of the book, add much to the general artistic superiority of the book.

The omission of the many pages of faculty pictures is also an innovation which has drawn forth many approving comments from faculty members as well as the students. This gives more room for the growing feature department, which reflects the college life as we know it. This section, which is bigger and better than ever before appeals to the general multitude and most particularly those who find themselves listed here.

Motschenbacher and Michael Conservatives in Pre-Campaign Statements

Motschenbacher and Michael.

Vernon T. Motschenbacher, sole candidate for the Student Body presidency, is making no elaborate campaign promises.

"I have no definite 'platform,' and am making no promises," said Mr. Motschenbacher. "I realize that there are a good many conditions around here which are not what they ought to be, and with the co-operation of all the Student Body, I believe we can do a great deal toward improving them."

"This year has been one of unusual progress; I hope the next will surpass it. I hope that personalities will be forgotten in this present election and some respect paid to the qualifications for office rather than to political affiliation. And when it's over, let's forget it and get to work."

Sam Michael, who is also alone in the field in his candidacy for that of Emerald managership, is equally conservative in his pre-election statement.

"If I am elected," said Mr. Michael, "I will concentrate my efforts in increasing the circulation of the Emerald. I will not change the business policy of the present management, as I have been intimately connected with the present managerial staff for the past year."

"Everyone will get a square deal from me—I will retain the present staff, and take on new students as soon as they show ability and desire for work."
