

PREP GUESTS ENJOY SMOKELESS SMOKER

Non-Dancers Listen to Hayward's Lecture on Training, and See Olympic Pictures.

Saturday evening, while the dancing population of the University was enjoying the Junior Prom in the gymnasium, across the campus in Villard Hall, one of the largest and most enthusiastic "smokeless smokers" ever pulled off at Oregon, was being staged for the benefit of the visiting High School athletes. Over 200 men were present at the rally, which was decidedly informal. "Andy" Collier acted as master of ceremonies and official announcer, besides managing the entire affair.

Bill Shows Slides.
Carleton Spencer started the program with a speech of welcome, and was followed by Bill Hayward, who lectured on track athletics and training. Bill illustrated his talk with lantern slides from pictures taken at the recent Olympic games and at numerous track meets which he has attended. The "prep" athletes were particularly interested in the Stockholm views. A special feature of the lecture was the exhibition of pictures of the Oregon-Washington meet held the day before and several views of the Inter-scholastic meet held in the afternoon. The rapid work of developing the pictures and throwing them on a screen four or five hours after the event was a record performance in itself and fully appreciated by all who attended. Over 100 slides were shown during the evening.

In addition to the lecture, several boxing and wrestling matches were on the card. Bovett, of Washington High School, and Freshman Saunders, mixed for three rounds in the middle-weight class, Bovett getting the decision. Jim Donald and Allen O'Connell represented the light weights. O'Connell drew blood in the first round and was awarded the belt. In the heavyweight class, Livingston won from Dal King.

Wrestling Proves Interesting.
In the wrestling division, Robert McCormack and Claude Washburne staged a lightweight bout, which was finally won by Washburne, after a strenuous seven minutes. The sensation of the evening came, however, in the last event on the card. Joe Tominago, representing Japan, defeated Cyril Myers, the white hope of Ireland, in two out of three falls. Myers secured the first decision by pinning his opponent to the mat by a combination Nelson and grapevine hold. Tominago came back strong and won the next two falls on a body scissors and a neck scissors.

Elmer Hall refereed the matches, while Roger Moe and Clarence Brotherton acted as seconds.

A squad of Freshmen served cider and doughnuts to the crowd during the mills.

After the program a majority of the spectators adjourned to the gymnasium, where they watched the remainder of the promenade, from the gallery.

500 VISITORS TO COME FOR COMMONWEALTH

The play will be free to the public and will be given on the campus lawn between Villard and Deady Halls. Since the seating capacity is limited, the students of the University will be forced to sit on the ground, so that Indian blankets and pillows are recommended. Four o'clock Saturday afternoon is the time set for the production.

By the new rushing methods now in use at the University of Wisconsin, the Freshmen girls this month place in the hands of a referee the name of the sorority of their choice, and in like manner the sororities send in the names of the girls they want, and in this way they are all happily distributed.

A mile of red and white bunting was used for decorations at the Sophomore Prom at the University of Wisconsin recently.

BOVARD LECTURES IN 4 SCHOOLS ON BIRDS

Varsity Students Have Found 141 Varieties in and Around Eugene.

John Bovard spent the week-end in Polk county lecturing to the school children on "Common Oregon Birds, Their Habits and Economic Value." Professor Bovard visited four schools and he reports that the children took much interest in his lectures.

"The objects of these lectures are to instruct the children in the value of the birds and to protect the birds from the thoughtless boys who kill them for the mere love of slaughter," said Professor Bovard. "We are teaching the children that the birds are real friends and are useful in protecting crops. If the younger generation can learn the value of protecting the birds, they will be better enabled to make good game laws when they become men."

Professor Bovard states that the students in his bird course have found 141 varieties in and around Eugene.

STUDENTS ARE INVITED

Mazama Club of Portland Goes to Grants Pass Caves on Trip May 29.

The proposed trip of the Mazama Club of Portland to the caves of Grants Pass is of interest to University people. These caves are some thirty miles to the south of Grants Pass, and though not well known, are second only to the Mammoth caves of Kentucky in size.

The club will pass through Eugene May 29. In a letter to Registrar Tiffany an invitation was extended to all University students and townspeople that may be interested, to join the party.

Fifteen dollars will cover the entire expense of the trip and any desiring to join should communicate with W. C. Yoran, the Eugene man, who is caring for the organizing of a local party.
