COLORADO FACES A LIKE PROBLEM

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE'S PRESIDENT ADVISES NO CONSOLIDATION

IS NO ECONOMY IN UNITING

Dr. Lory Holds Greater Efficiency, on the Whole, Can Be Gained by Separate Institutions.

Portland, Or., Sept. 25.—An educational situation quite similar to that in Oregon has been discovered in Colorado by the Oregon Citizens' Educational league, which has been conducting an inquiry among college presidents of the United States. The league's investigations has been to ascertain the comparative advantages of separated and consolidated state universities and agricultural colleges.

In Colorado, there is the State University at Boulder, the School of Mines at Golden, the State Teachers' College at Greeley and the State Agricultural College at Fort Collins, each under a separate board of control. In Colorado, as in Oregon, there is some degree of agitation for a single board of regents to govern all four institutions. Charles A. Lory, president of the Agricultural College, has answered the league's inquiry in part, as follows:

"I should not presume to advise for or against consolidation in Oregon. There are many arguments in favor of consolidation, remember, however, that a certain amount of competition is a good thing. I do not believe we should have the enrollment in the various institutions of higher learning if they were consolidated into one. As it is now, four state institutions are urging the high school graduates to go on to college, and no matter to what institution he goes, the work of the others is of a positive nature in deciding him to go to college.

"From an economic standpoint, I doubt whether much could be saved by consolidation. I have made quite a study of the cost of consolidation and I do not find that the very large consolidated institutions get any more for their money than do the smaller separate institutions."

THREE WOULD LEAD YELLS

"Dutch" Young Latest Aspirant out for the Noisy Job

Three men have given their names to the Executive Committee as candidates for the position of Varsity Yell Leader—Harold Young, Maurice Bigbee and Harold Grady. Young and Bigbee were first and second assistants, respectively, to Abe Blackman, yell leader last year, who was believed by many to have been one of the best rooter leaders Oregon has ever had. Grady was superintendent of yells for the class of 1915 last year, and has acted as emergency yell leader on different occasions.

These men have been leading the small bunch of rooters who assemble on the bleachers to watch the evening football practice. This is receiving the hearty approval of Coach Hugo Bezdek, who thoroughly believes that such encouragement will put new life into the players.

There will be a tryout between the three candidates, Friday at 3 p. m. on the bleachers, from which the Executive Committee will determine who should hold the position. Student Body President Vernon Moberg has urged that as many as possible be present that the men must have a fair chance to show their separate ability to lead the rooters. It is expected that this will be the final tryout, but if the Executive Council is doubtful as to the best man, another will be held at the same time on Monday afternoon.

RIVALRY IS HELD GOOD FOR BOTH

NORTH DAKOTA EXPERIENCE IS AGAINST UNITING TWO INSTITUTIONS

NOTHING TO BE GAINED

Precious Little Saving Possible, Says President J. H. Worst of the State Agricultural College.

Portland, Or., Sept. 25.—Decided advice against any consolidation of the University of Oregon and the Oregon Agricultural College is contained in a letter from President J. H. Worst, LL. D., head of the North Dakota Agricultural college and Government Experiment station. Like Oregon, North Dakota is a state of immense agricultural resources, and the inquiry as to his views on consolidation was made of President Worst by the Oregon Citizens' Educational league of Portland. The reply is in part:

"Where institutions have been organized separately, as in Oregon, I would not favor the consolidation of the University and the Agricultural College. I would not advise a single board of regents and a single head where the schools are separate. Politics and local influence are yet so strong that I question whether a board of regents could be selected big enough and strong enough not to favor one as against the other; in fact, I rather favor a strong institutional rivalry so long as it is kept within sane bounds. Whatever saving in dollars and cents might result from consolidation would certainly be lost in the agricultural influence the Agricultural College should exert upon the young men of the state.

"Permit me to say in conclusion that entirely too much stress is being placed upon the size of expenditures usually charged up to the support of two institutions such as the University and the Agricultural College. In consolidation there would be precious little money saved. Usually the motive behind the consolidation movement is prejudice against the growing influence of the Agricultural College, and certainly where a state depends upon agriculture for its prosperity, it would seem desirable to give every encouragement to agricultural education."

JOURNALISTS ARE EMPLOYED

Journalism students who after one year's instruction in journalism at the University have found positions on newspapers include the following: Walter Fisher, Roseburg Review; Franklin S. Allen, Eugene Register; Arthur Crawford, Heggner Gazette; Helen Driver, Tacoma Ledger; Max Smith, Wasco News-Enterprise; Clarence Ash and Walter Dimm, Eugene Register; Harold Young and Florence Thrall, Eugene Guard.

The Department of Journalism was asked by other papers to recommend students for positions, but the supply of positions exceeded the number of students available.

The New Varsity Conf. will soon be completed.

SQUIBS.

Bill Hayward had his camera out the other night. Guess he wants to get an early picture of the coming "Champs."

The faculty seem to be taking a keen interest in football. Prescott, Collier and Azar have been out watching practice regularly.

Dr. Dallenbach is helping Coach Bezdek with the squad.

OREGON ALUMNI TO WORK FOR U

WILL LOOK OUT FOR INDIFFERENT VOTERS IN THE COMING ELECTION

WOMEN ARE ASKED TO MEET

Booth at County Fair in Charge of University Man Will Get Line on Voters Who Have Already Registered.

Definite action was taken by the Eugene alumni Tuesday at a meeting held in the Commercial club rooms to persuade every voter in the city of Eugene to register before October 8. The city has been divided into 17 districts and block committeemen appointed to superintend the canvassing of every house in Eugene in the interest of the University appropriations which will come up for vote of the people at the special election on November 4. It was repeatedly pointed out at this meeting that there would be many in favor of the University appropriations, who would perhaps not cast their ballot through indifference, unless the need of each and every vote was explained and urged, in order to make an overwhelming majority in favor of the University.

After re-organizing the Eugene Alumni association, Ben H. Williams was elected president and Grace Hobbs, secretary. A committee was appointed consisting of M. S. Wallis, Mrs. Graham Mitchell, Mrs. Betty Humphrey, Miss Mozelle Hair, and Webster Kincaid to co-operate in urging every alumnus of the state to begin an individual campaign in his locality for the University. A committee consisting of M. S. Wallis, David Graham and Ray Goodrich was appointed to confer with the Commercial club committee in regard to raising more funds.

Women graduates are asked to be present at an alumnae meeting next Saturday at 2:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Louis Johnson, at 1116 Charnelton street.

A booth has been installed at the fair grounds with Ben Williams in charge, at which tags will be given out bearing the following: "I have registered. Have you?"

Among the speakers at the meeting were President P. L. Campbell, Allen Eaton, Judge L. T. Harris, M. S. Wallis and Luke Goodrich.

The following district managers were appointed at this meeting: Precinct 1—Mrs. C. M. Collier, Miss Mary McCormack. Precinct 2—Mrs. L. T. Harris. Precinct 3—Mrs. A. W. Bond. Precinct 4—Mrs. J. C. Ayres, Mrs. J. D. Spencer.

Precinct 5—Mrs. Louis Johnson, Miss Anne Whittaker. Precinct 6—Mrs. M. C. Harris. Precinct 7—Mrs. M. S. Wallis. Precinct 8—Mrs. E. O. Potter, Mabel Kuykendall. Precinct 9—Mrs. J. G. Wells. Precinct 10—Agnes Stevenson, Katherine Henderson.

UNDER-CLASS MIX IS POSTPONED TO OCT. 4

Juniors Arrange for Pushball and Other Stunts for Class Day Fight

The Sophomore-Freshman mix which was to have been held on Kincaid Field Saturday afternoon, September 27, has been postponed until a week later, because of the difficulty in securing a push ball. It was planned at first to secure one from the Portland Hunt club, but theirs was punctured, making it necessary to send to Seattle for one.

The committee consisting of Jessup Strang, chairman; Thos. Donaca, Bert Lombard, Bryant DeBar and Marsh Goodwin have been working hard to make this a successful affair. In order to do this the mix will be staged either after the alumni game or the game with the Bremerton navy yard team.

"Bill" Hayward will have charge of the mix and will see that no one will be permitted on the field except the contestants. He will be assisted in this by several upper classmen who will act as policemen.

The chief events will be a push ball contest, tug-of-war, races, beauty contests among the fair spectators and many other events. That evening a dance will be given by the junior class.
