THE PIONEERS.

Up in a second story office as the student marchers passed down Willamette street Wednesday morning, a member of the first University board of regents, his advanced years betrayed by his white hair and beard, leaned far out of the window and waved an American flag to the college men and women below.

As he stood there, his thoughts reverted perhaps, to the time in '72 when the first and greatest battle for the University was fought and won. He thought perhaps of the obstacles overcome in that early time, of the hardships endured that the $50,000 necessary for the building of Deady Hall, might be raised.

Citizens of the present generation little realize as they pay their tax for the upkeep of the University, the difficulty of inaugurating a spirit for higher education in a new state. But the pioneers of Eugene and of Lane county, who gave of half their income in the year of 1872 realized. The foundations of Deady Hall are laid on the hardships and privations of those pioneers who saw that education was essential to the true growth of the state.

In the past 41 years, the men and women who have been graduated from this University have vindicated the beliefs of the former generation. University of Oregon students in the present and in the future will be even better able than their predecessors to justify the belief of the pioneers in them, as a means to better things in Oregon.

The following letter, addressed to the Emerald, was sent by President P. L. Campbell on receipt of the election returns and was received herethis morning:

"Please express deep personal appreciation of loyal support given by the students to the University during all the days of uncertainty and anxiety their courage and untiring energy helped largely to win the victory. I hope their reward may come in a greater university offering them broader and better opportunities."

Dozens of telegrams congratulating the University on its success at the polls Tuesday, are being received daily by members of the faculty and citizens of Eugene. In the absence of President Campbell, Mrs. Campbell has received many messages from all parts of the state.

This Time We Just Feel Like Rejoicing Over the Results of Tuesday's Election

Splendid, wasn't it? Some way we felt confident all the time and yet we were afraid of overconfidence. But now we can shout.

And, by the way, we've never seen a finer demonstration than the students gave on Wednesday morning on the streets up town. Every one of us wanted to get out there with you. Next is the big game. Good luck fellows. We will be listening.
