TEAR 'EM UP, OREGON.

One year ago, after a cessation of athletic relations with the Agricultural college for two years, Oregon finally clashed with O. A. C. on the Albany field. Before the game the question in everyone's mind, was, "Can Oregon come back?" After the game, with a three to nothing victory snatched from one of the best teams in the conference, the question changed. "Why had not Oregon come back earlier in the season instead of submitting to defeat after defeat at the hand of teams in no way equal to the O. A. C. eleven?"

The statement made by a Corvallis man a few weeks later, perhaps offers the solution to the question. "Somehow or other, you fellows seem to get our goat when it comes to anything in the athletic line," was his explanation.

But whether or not Oregon makes a habit of purloining the Agricultural Angora, the fact remains that the Oregon eleven will fight harder; and if it comes to a seeming defeat, will carry on a harder uphill struggle against O. A. C. than against any other college in the conference.

Last year the doubt was expressed as to whether or not Oregon could attain anything like the proficiency of years past on the gridiron. The result was a team that fought like demons. But this year, Oregon has the same to expect from the Aggies for they have been called yellow as an outcome of the ill-fated Washington game, and will fight to confute this statement.

The Oregon students have confidence in their team and above all, confidence in Hugo Bezdek to bring a victory where any victory is even possible. And it is not merely a bare possibility that exists this time. Oregon has a team of stars, some of them a little dilapidated, it is true, but a team nevertheless, which will exhaust every ounce of their strength, if necessary, to win from O. A. C. in today's game. It is a team which is worthy of the best support that the Oregon rooters can give. The rooters have the utmost confidence in their team, and it is the old Oregon spirit, on the bleachers as well as on the field which will be one of the greatest factors in the final outcome of this afternoon's game.

THANKS TO THE VOTERS.

The students of the University of Oregon wish to thank every citizen of the state, who voted in favor of the University appropriation, at Tuesday's election.

Now that the fund is to be advanced for the purpose of improving the University, and the students are relieved of the strain of doubt and uncertainty as to the future of their college, a new and prosperous era is ahead of the University in its work. It will not be long before the voters of the state can see visible returns from the granting of the appropriation. The students ask only, that the citizens of Oregon watch them in their pursuits and activities, and see what they can do under normal conditions.

The University of Oregon has not had a fair opportunity for its administration since the referendum was first invoked against its necessary maintenance funds appropriated by the state legislature. It has been hampered and hindered for many years, but the last expression of the sentiment of the people of Oregon toward higher education points to the conclusion that henceforth they will support their state University in an adequate manner. The University of Oregon has been given the consideration which all other states of the union show for their universities. Now watch it forge ahead and take its stand among the best of them.

HELP OREGON TODAY.

O. A. C. Barometer Nov. 4.
Today is the day that our friends of the University are facing the climax of the fight which they have been waging for the past year to obtain the funds necessary to the growth and advancement of their institution. Likewise, today is the day that the students of the Oregon Agricultural College have an opportunity to extend a helping hand.

Through ignorance of conditions and prejudice against the University, the referendum has been used—or, rather, misused—to withhold from the Eugene institution the appropriations set aside by the state legislature. Today's election will determine whether or not the University of Oregon will expand in influence or whether it will be hampered in its work by lack of equipment. Every thing that O. A. C. students can do to aid in the fight against the attack which has been made on the best interests of the Commonwealth of Oregon, through the University, must and will be done today.

O. A. C. will today register a vote unanimous for the University and against the Referendum. By so doing she will demonstrate to the State two things—First, that she realizes that the best interests of the state demand an advancing and unhampered University, and, secondly, that there is at O. A. C. no vestige of animosity toward our sister institution. Every student can help today. Every man and woman entitled to the ballot must seize the opportunity to vote. Those not able to vote can help Oregon by means of their influence upon other students and townspeople.

Next Saturday we are going to do our utmost to "Beat Oregon." Today let us do our utmost to "Help Oregon."

The vote turned out by the students of the Agricultural college in favor of the University appropriations Tuesday is to be considered as one of the most fortunate things that has happened in the last four years, fortunate not merely on account of the additional support accorded the University from this source, but because it shows that the last vestige of animosity on the part of O. A. C. has been wiped out.

WASHINGTON EXPECTS TO BRING 500 ROOTERS

Ce-eds to Join Men in Trip to Oregon-Washington Game

According to the Washington Daily, Yell King Mathieu expects to bring five hundred rooters to Portland to witness the Oregon-Washington game next Saturday. This includes one hundred co-eds, who decided last Monday to make the trip.

Special cars are to convey the rooters to the train on Saturday and cabs will be at the train in Portland to take the co-eds to the Multnomah hotel, the official Washington stopping place. A special section is to be set aside for them.

WORK ON TANK IS DELAYED

Will Not Be Completed Until January. Girls to Use Tank.

Work on the swimming tank in the men's gymnasium has been so greatly interfered with that it will not be completed before January.

The women, under the supervision of Doctor Stuart and Miss Thompson, will have the use of the tank on Mondays. If it becomes possible, five swimming lessons will be given to each girl, but, since there are two hundred and seventeen girls taking the required gymnasium work, the probabilities are that not all the girls can be accommodated.

It has not yet been decided whether or not President Campbell's plan of giving credit for swimming will be adopted.

Why wear "hand-me-downs" when you can get clothes to your measure for the same money?
