WHY NOT THE WOMEN?

The women basketball players are not to go out of the state, according to the dictum handed down by the authorities who would have charge of a co-ed basketball trip if such were thought possible. But why not? Is it because the exercise is considered too violent, or because the University women are not to be trusted outside the confines of Oregon? Or is it perhaps that they would lower themselves by engaging in the same line of endeavor as that followed by the men?

The two last objections are not to be seriously considered, for it has long been the custom to send women's debating teams out of the state, to uphold the honor of the University in forensics, while Oregon's brief but rather thorough equal suffrage experience would seem to indicate that women run little risk of lowering themselves by engaging in the same kinds of activity as men.

There is advanced, however, the argument that the physical and nervous strain is too great for Oregon women to stand. It is asserted that the excitement attending a game with a rival institution would be altogether too much. Possibly it would for players who had not been trained in preparation for just such nervous and physical tests. But if regular training hours were kept and the team put into first class condition before the intercollegiate contests came off, it is hard to see how a basketball game played under women's rules, would be harder on the contestants than tennis matches which have been staged in Eugene during the last year.

NAME PLEASE.

Once again the Emerald is in receipt of an advisory communication, supposedly from some member of the student body. The advice contained in his letter is most excellent, but for some reason or other the writer has neglected to make himself known. Is it a case of mere forgetfulness, or is he ashamed of his name?

The Emerald wants to hear from students whenever any of them have advice to offer or pertinent comment to make, but it would be interesting to know who has the interest of the paper enough at heart to send in such comments. This does not necessarily mean that the name of the writer will be used, if he or she desires otherwise. But it must be understood that no communications will be published in the Emerald which are avowedly anonymous.

MISSING LINK AT MISSOURI

Museum Has Reproduction of the Oldest Head in the World.

University of Missouri.—A reproduction of the oldest head in the world, that of a man of Java, said to be a missing link, estimated by anatomists and sociologists to be 500,000 years old, is now on display in the social museum in the rear of the basement of Academic hall. The Man of Java is the oldest of the new collection of skulls of the genus Homo, that has been added to the museum this week by Dr. Charles Ellwood of the sociology department. The other skulls range from 50,000 to 300,000 years old.
