

U. OF W. DROPS EIGHTEEN STUDENTS IN ONE MONTH
42 on Probation and 340 Conditions Establishes New Deficiency Records

University of Wash., Seattle, Jan. 7.—Denny hall will have eighteen less people to jam its stairways now that Recorder E. N. Stone has sent out his delinquency cards. Eighteen dropped from college, 42 placed on probation and 340 conditions ruining the hopes of 289 students, is a high water mark of deficiency that officials at the recorder's office are unable to find an equal to. Two hundred fifty students will have to begin the new year working off warnings. The dismissal of eighteen students during the month of November 19 to December 19, establishes a precedent. Six students is the usual number of those unable to keep up and the number during December equals a total of the three months of September, October and November. The number of students on probation also establishes a record all its own. Forty-two has never been approached before. These students are debarred from participating in any college activity during the rest of the year and must bring all their work up to a passing mark.

EUTAXIANS HAVE A DEBATE
Question Is "Should Oregon Adopt Student Government?"

The affirmative of the question, "Resolved, that the University of Oregon should adopt student government" won over the negative in a debate at the Eutaxian meeting Tuesday evening. The affirmative consisted of Elllice Shearer, Lucia Macklin, and Clara Stevens; the negative, Eleanor McClain, Beulah Stebno and May Norton. Some very recent statistics were used and the debate, according to those present, was a lively one. Cosmopolitan, Eh? One hundred and thirty-two foreign students registered at the University of Illinois represent 22 different nationalities. Students! patronize Emerald advertisers.

MRS. PARSONS ADDRESSES SOPHOMORES IN MEETING
Few in Class Who Have Read Shaw and Wells Shows Deplorable Condition

Only one Sophomore out of every ten in the University has read works of Bernard Shaw and H. G. Wells, except when taken under literature courses, was the result of a vote taken of the class by Mrs. E. S. Parsons, dean of Sophomore women, at the 1914 class meeting yesterday morning. Mrs. Parsons was addressing the class on the deplorable lack of intellectual life in the United States and to show the truth of her assertion of those, who for pleasure alone, had perused the works of Shaw and Wells, asked for a show of hands. The result was the overwhelming negative vote. Mrs. Parsons asked the class to take the lead in raising the intellectual standards of the University. She also suggested that the class could perform a great service by reviving the defunct Oregon Monthly. Prof. John Bovard, dean of the Sophomore men, made a few remarks, commending the class on the excellent manner in which the Sophomore hop was conducted. An appeal to all debaters and would-be debaters, to enter the try-outs for the Sophomore team which will come within the next few weeks, was made by Allen O'Connell, chairman of the debate committee. Other business coming before the class was a financial report by Treasurer W. P. Holt and a statement by President Lamar Tooze regarding the Sophomore matinee dance Friday afternoon.

There was a man in our town
 And he was wondrous wise,
 He ate hot dogs every day
 And praised them to the skies.
 "They soothe and satisfy," he said,
 I get my money's worth.

M. A. A. C. MUST ENGAGE COACH
HIGH STANDARD OF CLUB MAKES ALTERATIONS NECESSARY
MAY PLAY WASHINGTON

Games With Four Conference Teams Will Probably Be Scheduled, According to Manager Scott.

In spite of the showing made by the M. A. A. C. football team in the season just past, there is a feeling among the Portland athletes that in order to cope with any degree of success with the northwest college teams during the 1914 season, something more than the present hit or miss system of self instruction now in vogue will be necessary. In the "Winged 'M' Bulletin," the official publication of the Multnomah club, E. P. Stott, manager of the 1913 aggregation, says: "With five or six big games in prospect for 1914, one of the very important things officials of the Multnomah Club should consider, in my opinion, is the advisability of engaging the services of a capable football coach. True enough, we got along very well this year under our present system. With players of all-around experience working without a coach may result in preparation for one or perhaps two big games. But with at least five, and perhaps six games with the large colleges of the Northwest assured for next season, I do not think this plan will do at all. "The football men need a leader who can devote nearly all of his time to studying his men,—their strength as well as their weakness. Then, too, if our team is to carry the club colors to the front, it must be ready to take instant advantage of the other team's weaknesses and be prepared for their strong plays. "This is instruction that cannot be given by one who is trying to earn his living in a way other than by coaching a football team, because he cannot give the necessary time and attention to it. "It seems to me that if the Multnomah Club is going to maintain its past and present position in Pacific Coast football, some such system as that I have suggested, based on the employment of a coach, must be adopted. Many of the members do not know that ours is the only athletic club in the United States today that plays football or a par with the college teams of its vicinity. We can go a little further and say that our teams have been and now are, better and stronger than any of the club teams in the Northwest. "From present conditions, games for 1914 will be scheduled between the Multnomah football team and at least four teams of the Northwest Conference, including the University of Washington. Graduate Manager Horr, of Washington, assured the writer that he would do all in his power to bring about such a game next year. There is no legitimate reason why it should be refused us. Our team this year played as clean, if not cleaner football as any team in the conference. "Coach Bender, of Washington State College remarked publicly that Multnomah played his team the cleanest game in which Pullman took part this year."

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU AIDS
39 POSITIONS AND 56 ODD JOBS FOUND FOR STUDENTS
Y. M. WORK PRAISEWORTHY

Association Now Trying Hard to Find Employment for Dozen Men Who Need Financial Help to Stay in College. With fully a dozen men on the waiting bench, the U. of O. Y. M. C. A. Employment Bureau is sending out an S. O. S. call for jobs, either odd or regular, for many of those waiting feel that unless work is secured their days at the University are numbered. According to Charles Koyl work is more scarce and more men are applying than ever before. Up to date 39 regular jobs and 56 odd jobs have been secured for applicants. The value of the regular work to date totals $885 and the odd $126 or a total of $1011. Besides this, aid has been given the students through the Book Exchange, as $250.65 has been turned over in cash for books sold. This has saved the buyers $75. There is a demand at the Exchange now for books, which cannot be filled. Koyl said that he had found in mixing with people in various parts of the state that the impression prevails that no work is to be obtained at the University and the students are of a class who do not work. This has caused a prejudice to arise which has been detrimental to the good of the University. Last year 51 per cent of the students were working their way, and this year that percentage is higher. Twenty-seven fraternity men worked their way through entirely last year and the same number partly. This number has increased this year. While work at present is scarce the prospects are, according to Koyl, that things will loosen up and spring coming on will make work for all, so there is no need for those students waiting to feel discouraged and for those outside to be deterred any longer from enrolling at the University.

WOULD REJUVENATE PLUG
Ugly Hats May Again Appear on Stanford Campus.

Students at Stanford have started an agitation for the revival of the Plug Ugly which has been famous at the California institution in years past. The Stanford Daily Palo Alto "Rejuvenate the Plug Ugly. This is the task which has been given over to a special committee from the University Conference. Officially the Plug Ugly is dead. But, like Hamlet's ghost, it tarries behind. Reconstruction along entirely different lines is a necessity. This is self-evident. Various plans have been tentatively suggested to take the place of the old poster, show and rush. Most of them have been merely substitutes for thought, and when considered carefully, have been found wanting. One of the most feasible plans offered is to omit the show which belied the name, and stage the rush on the football turf. The two upper classes would be lined up on the opposite sides of the field. The Juniors at a given signal would attempt to break through the Senior's lines and distribute their posters—the latter being in charge of a committee from the Student Council up to the time of the rush—among the people on the bleachers. Once through the Senior's defense, the Juniors are to be allowed to spread their posters without opposition. This scheme proposes to allow a proper expurgation of the poster to be made; will do away with the farce, and in placing the rush inside the football field allow the Juniors to derive the revenue which they now get from the show inside the track oval. The revival committee needs suggestions? What have you to offer?

HAS RECORD FOR MILEAGE
 Notre Dame Football Team Covered 5000 Miles This Season.
 The University of Notre Dame football teams claims to be in a class by itself in matter of mileage traveled. On November 1 it went east to beat the army at West Point, went home and then returned east to defeat Penn State at State College, Pa., six days later. The team played in St. Louis Saturday and went to Austin, Texas, to meet the University of Texas, southern champions. Without including numerous short trips, it is estimated the team covered a total of nearly 5,000 miles this season.
