OREGANA STAFF AT WORK

Bid To Be Let To Printer Soon. "Joke box" Placed in Library.

The Oregana staff met Tuesday night to discuss the plans for the future. This is the second meeting of the year and the heads of each department reported favorably in all matters. The bids are not all in yet but the printer will be decided upon some time this week. When he has been chosen, copy will be sent in as the book must be out by May first. Every one is urged to send his picture in as soon as possible so that the cuts may be made.

A calendar is being compiled and will be illustrated with cartoons. A general writeup of the university by Doctor Straub will be a feature of the Oregana. The Juniors will have the same kind of pictures as the Seniors, but they will be honored with humorous writeups instead of serious ones the Seniors will receive.

The "joke box" is in the library on the right hand side of the door going in. Jokes on any one in college may be placed in this box for the Oregana.

All captains, managers and coaches for all the preceding years as well as all editors and managers of college publications will be given a writeup in this year's Oregana. All records of the big games will be put in also. This is the first time any thing like this has been published in the annual.

ONE WANTS PART OF PRIZE MONEY

TIFFANY BEWAILS LACK OF FAILING-BEEKMAN CONTESTANTS

SHOULD HAVE 20 ORATORS

Nine Women and Fifteen Men Have Won Honors in Past Years. Preliminary Contest Listed for May 3.

One Senior has declared his intention to participate in the Failing and Beekman Oratorical Contest which will be held on Tuesday evening of Commencement Week.

"Something is radically wrong, when an event of the importance of the Failing and Beekman contest calls out no aspirants for oratorical honors," declares Registrar Tiffany. "A few years ago when the Senior classes were only a third as large as the present one, there were always from ten to 15 contestants in the preliminary tryouts."

"In this year's Senior class there are 126 members. Out of this number we ought to have at least 20 trying out," declares Registrar Tiffany.

According to the regular calendar, subjects for the Failing and Beekman prize orations must be handed to the Registrar by January 10, but owing to the failure of the Seniors in complying with the rules this date has been changed to February 1.

The Failing prize, not to exceed $150 is the income from a gift of $2,500 to the University by Hon. Henry Failing, of Portland. It is awarded "To that member of the Senior Class in the Classical, Scientific or Literary Course prescribed by the University, or such course as either of said courses, who shall pronounce the best original oration at the time of his or her graduation."

The Beekman prize, not to exceed $100 is the income of a gift of $1600 made to the University by Hon. C. C. Beekman, of Jacksonville. It is awarded under the same conditions as the Failing prize for the second best oration.

Both prizes were established in 1890. The honors have been fairly well distributed between the men and women. For each prize nine women and fifteen men have won honors. Last year Carlton Spencer won the Failing prize and Howard Zimmerman the Beekman prize.

Registrar Tiffany urges all those intending to enter the contest, to hand in their subjects and names to him before February 1 and immediately if possible. The preliminary contest to choose the six best orators to compete in the final contest will be held Saturday morning, May 3.

Stanford's Veteran Coach Accepts Position at Catholic School.

Stanford University, Jan. 29.—"Dad" Moulton, veteran trainer of Stanford track squads, who recently gave up his position here, has been engaged by the authorities of the University of Santa Clara to take charge of their sports on the cinder path. This announcement was made yesterday by Manager Hardy of Santa Clara and has been confined by "Dad."

MILLS TRACES FINANCE

country was already flooded with worthless paper issued by the states. "Ten days after Congress convened in its first session, Hamilton presented a financial report, in which were outlined his plans for raising revenue and for the care of state debts. His efforts were so successful that within a year and a half foreign loans were obtainable.

Bank Established.

"It was also due to Hamilton that the first national bank was established, notwithstanding great opposition. Thomas Jefferson, holding for a strict interpretation of the constitution, said that the chartering of the bank was unconstitutional. Hamilton held for a liberal interpretation of the constitution and his view was upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States. The bank was established and so great was its success that on its re-chartering in 1811, men who had previously opposed it were among the most ardent supporters.

Bank Established.

"One of Hamilton's greatest acts was his success in securing the passage through Congress of a measure, providing for the assumption by the national government of the state debts. The measure met opposition on all sides. It was held unjust for states having small debts to share those of states having large debts. Hamilton argued that these debts were incurred for a common cause and that the states should be mutually responsible. It was also argued that the passage of the measure would give the central government too much power. Feeling ran high and there was talk of dissolution. Just before the measure was voted upon by Congress, North Carolina was admitted to the Union, and her votes defeated the measure.

Bill Fundamental.

"Hamilton saw that the passage of the measure was fundamental to the establishment of a national credit. He watched for his opportunity to have the measure reconsidered. The controversy over the location of the national capital was his opportunity. The North wanted the capital to be located either in New York or Philadelphia, while the South wanted it located in some southern city. In consideration of a compromise location, North Carolina voted for the measure and it became law."

The musical program included an instrumental solo by Miss Nelle Murphy.

Due to the limited amount of time, Mr. Mills was unable to complete his lecture.
