WOMAN JOURNALIST TILLS OF HER PIONEER WORK

Mrs. Weathered Speaks to First Year Class in Journalism

"It was just fourteen years ago this week, at a meeting of the National Editorial Association in New Orleans, that the first steps were taken to establish a chair of journalism in a university," said Mrs. Edyth Tozler Weathered, field representative of the Oregon Manufacturers' Association, in a talk before the first-year journalism class yesterday afternoon.

"Since journalism has the largest influence of all the callings, I saw that it was necessary to dignify the profession by establishing chairs of journalism in the universities," Mrs. Weathered said to the class, in speaking of her efforts to have such schools founded.

"Don't think that you can all be editors. Start at the bottom. The country editor—the journalist in the open—has a great opportunity to mould the character of the community.

"Don't admit how little you know; don't undervalue yourself. Concentrate your thoughts. Much of the disturbance in life today is due to unbalanced leadership."

That the newspaper calling is one of the leading professions of the day and there is more and more a call for the trained journalist, were two points brought out by Mrs. Weathered. "Behind the brains, remember, you need character in the business of the journalist."

Mrs. Weathered was born in Oregon, her parents having emigrated here by ox team in the early days. Sixteen years ago she suddenly—almost accidentally—sprang into the journalism field, when, through her brother, a journalist, she was sent as the first delegate of the Portland Press Club to the convention of the International Press club Association in New York City. Because she was the only delegate from west of the Mississippi and because she was a woman, her visit drew attention.

Since this time Mrs. Weathered has been writing constantly, mostly industrial articles, and is now the field representative of the Oregon Manufacturers' Association, in which capacity she is touring the state, meeting the women's clubs, and boosting "made-in-Oregon" products. "Results are being accomplished," Mrs. Weathered states, "and the people of Oregon are gradually acquiring that local loyalty that the people of California possess."

FACULTY CONTINUES STERN

Fresh Reinstatement Petitions Fail to Bring Reconsideration.

At the faculty meeting held at four o'clock yesterday afternoon, the faculty decided to remain firm on the stand taken at the meeting held on Tuesday, February 10, regarding petitions for reinstatement. Several students petitioned a second time but rolled by. After a short discussion a motion was passed that no previous action taken on the cases of those who failed to make the required nine hours during the first semester, be reconsidered.

OREGON LOSES BY ONE POINT

WASHINGTON TAKES FIFTH GAME OF BASKET-BALL SERIES

VARSITY WEAK ON BASKETS

Tuesday's Game Faster Than Previous Contests. Score is 14 to 15. Washington Gains Lead by Fouls.

By the bare margin of one point Washington won the second basketball game of the three-game series being played here this week. The failure of Oregon to score more than half of the fouls allotted gave Washington the necessary lead.

The game Tuesday night was a better game from all standpoints than the one played Monday night. Oregon opened up in her defense, with the result that the game was faster and more interesting. The game the night before was slow because the players guarded each other so closely that at times the ball would be rolling on the floor practically free.

Oregon had difficulty in finding the basket and a number of times, when free shots were made, nervousness kept the players from scoring. Considerably more shooting was done Tuesday night than on Monday night, due to the more open style of playing. Oregon demonstrated that she could get away from the visitors any number of times, but her inability to find the basket at critical moments prevented scores.

While no individual starring was done, Rice and Sims showed up well for Oregon, and Davidson for Washington.

The first half ended with the score of 7 to 5 in Washington's favor. The two teams started the game, both playing fast and heady. Oregon seemed to have the better of the passing at times, but was unable to score. Some fumbling at critical moments spoiled chances for baskets. Sims threw the only basket made during the half on a running throw, which brought the house to its feet. The other three points were made by Fenton from the foul line, the center making three out of five attempts.

Washington did not show up as well Tuesday as on the previous night, being unable to handle the more open playing of Oregon. In this half Davidson got two baskets for Washington, Schroeder one, while Savage threw the one foul called on Oregon in this period.

The second half opened up in whirlwind style, and a few minutes after the play started, Rice had thrown in two difficult baskets and Wolcott one. Oregon's onslaught, however, was a little too rough, with the result that fouls were called to such an extent that Washington managed to keep ahead a point or two on the almost perfect foul throwing of Savage. He made seven out of nine attempts this half. Slowly the score crept along, each score made being the climax of several minutes of hard playing and scrambling for the ball until one man would get loose, take the ball down the field and score. Bradshaw also captured a basket during this period from a hard position on the sideline.

Oregon was in the lead for a few brief minutes, but Washington closed up and, making only one basket during the half, forged a single point ahead of Oregon. The score stood 14 to 15 for the last three minutes of play, both teams doing their utmost to make another basket.

Tuesday night's game was broken up considerably more than the game the night before, both Oregon and Washington having to take out time for injuries to men. Nobody was taken out, however, and Washington used the only sub put in.

The next game will be played here Friday night.

The line-up:
Oregon. Washington.
Rice (4).....f.....Fancher
Wolcott (2).....f.....McFee
Fenton (4).....c.....Savage (7)
Bradshaw (2).....g.....Davidson (1)
Sims (2).....g.....Schroeder (2)

AGORA CLUB DISCUSSES CIVIC BETTERMENT PLANS

Miss Van Dyne and Prof. Sweetser Speak on Pure Milk at Meeting

"Agora has done a far greater and better work in fighting the referendum than anyone knows, and they will continue to do much more good for the university," said Mrs. P. L. Campbell, in quoting President Campbell, Wednesday afternoon, at the close of the first meeting of the Agora Club for this year, held at her home.

"There is no such thing as a 'closed' Agora Club in any sense of the word. It is a civic committee of the Women's League open to any member of the league who cares to come," said Mrs. Mable H. Parsons, after opening the meeting and explaining several phases of work in which the members could be of community service.

After a discussion of the work presented, Mrs. Parsons appointed a committee to consider the case of a small boy recommended by Mrs. Campbell, who is in great need of medical treatment, and to recommend that steps be taken to help him, if a report from Portland surgeons justified it.

Reports on the civic conditions were then given.

"The municipal milk supply has worked out successfully in many of the larger cities," said Miss Helen Van Dyne, in speaking on the purity of the milk supply. "There must be efficient inspection, cleanliness and careful handling of the milk. The problem of infant mortality is a significant one, some doctors claiming that 50 per cent of the deaths are preventable and many traceable to the use of impure milk."

"Avoid hysterics, find the point of difficulty, co-operate with other people, work together for clean milk supply and pure water in a fight for sanitation, get men interested to conserve human life, and you are on the road to the successful development of a wholesome form of civilization," said Professor Sweetser when talking on milk inspection and local conditions.

The next meeting of the Agora Club will be held March 18 with Mrs. Cuyler at the Kappa Kappa Gamma House.

STEAM PIPES TO GYM TO BE FIXED TOMORROW

Nearly 180 Feet of Bad Pipe Is Being Replaced. Gym Like Refrigerating Plant

The steam pipe from the power plant to the men's gymnasium, which has been the cause of cold shower baths for a week, will be repaired tomorrow, said H. M. Fisher, Superintendent of Grounds, yesterday. Some of this pipe has only been in two years, and the other only four, yet it has completely rusted through.

Electrolysis is thought to be the cause of the rapid decay of the pipe.

There is approximately 180 feet of pipe to be replaced, including the six-inch steam pipe and the three-inch return.

The excavation is some eight or ten feet deep and caves in very badly, making it dangerous to work in the bottom of the trench and necessitating much bracing, which makes the work more difficult.

He has five men putting in the pipe as fast as it is possible to do so, and expects to have heat in the gymnasium tomorrow.

Regular gym classes will begin immediately after the pipe is ready for use.

Mrs. Ella Stewart, ex-president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage League, will instruct the women of the University of Chicago in the details of voting.

Former District Attorney John McNab of California recently addressed the students of Stanford University.

McIntyre and Heath

It is said that John Cort has given McIntyre and Heath one of the best productions these world famous comedians ever had in his magnificent revival of the successful musical comedy "The Ham Tree," which comes to the Eugene Theatre Friday, February 20. McIntyre and Heath have been before the public in negro acts for nearly forty years, and they are regarded by all authorities of the stage as the two ablest men in their line of impersonation. They are surrounded by an excellent company, which includes a great chorus of dancing girls and boys. A dancing team of thirty of America's best soft-shoe, buck and wing dancers appears in one feature of the performance. "The Ham Tree" is a notable play not because of its departure from the beaten paths in musical productions, but also from the standpoint of scenery, costumes and equipment. The large cast of principals includes some well known musical comedy favorites. Curtain at 8:45.
