

OREGANA WORK WELL STARTED

FIRST SECTIONS WILL GO TO PRESS WITHIN SHORT TIME

512 PAGE BOOK PLANNED

Feature Department Will Be Last Printed, Giving Time to Get in Latest Happenings of the Spring Semester

The Oregana will go to press just as soon as the paper, ink and other materials arrive," declared Editor Lee Hendricks today. "It will take about 40 days to run it through. We will send it to the printers in sections; first, the administration department; next, the university department, and so on down the line, leaving the feature department to the last, so that it will be up to date. The university department will be something new. It will consist of pictures of various phases of the university life, taken especially for the Oregana, along with a complete history of the university. This will be of special interest to the students and the outside public."

Editor Hendricks further stated that the calendar will be illustrated by pointed cartoons drawn by the best artists in college. The book will consist of 512 pages, and be printed on 10-point type, which is a little larger than was used last year. Each member of the Junior Class will have an individual picture, accompanied by a paragraph or verse dealing with their characteristics and accomplishments.

"The feature department will be the best ever," says Hendricks, "for we have some of the best talent in college working on it. The jokes will be new and original, the poems snappy, the pictures clever and the other parts surprising."

"Copy is coming in pretty good, and several of the departments are about completed. If no unforeseen circumstances turn up we will put the book out on time, May 2, in time for Junior week-end."

Manager Ben Dorris declares the subscription list is larger than ever before for this time of the year.

"If the present pace is continued we will have a banner subscription list. Nevertheless, there are a large number of students who have not signed up. We have received several orders from outsiders. The advertisers of both Portland and Eugene are supporting us pretty well; but we yet need much more advertising."

U. OF. W.-OREGON CO-ED DEBATE IS NOW ASSURED

Letter Received From Seattle Makes Contest Certain. Oregon Submits Question

The Washington-Oregon co-ed debate, which for some time has been up in the air, was definitely made possible this year by a letter received from Washington last night, offering to take on the Oregon debaters. According to the contract, Oregon will submit the question, while Washington will have the choice of sides.

An attempt was made on the part of Coach Bert Prescott to have the debate a double one, each university supplying two teams, one to take the negative and the other the affirmative side of the question. This was not considered favorably by the Washington debaters, but Mr. Prescott states that he thinks this procedure will be followed next year.

The question submitted to Washington is the same as that on which the men of the university will debate: "Resolved, That the Executive Department should be made responsible for the national budget."

Mr. Prescott expects to hear from Seattle within a few days as to the choice of sides made.

Cornell has erected new buildings to the amount of $1,000,000 in the past year.

SOPHOMORES CHOOSE SIX MEN TO DEBATE FRESHMEN

Three of This Year's Team Were in the Team Last Year

At the Sophomore debate tryout in Deady Hall this morning six men were selected to represent the class in the second annual Sophomore-Freshman debate to be held in Villard Hall on April 3. Those selected were: Lamar Tooze, Allen O'Connell, Prentiss Brown, William Holt, Cloyd Dawson and Leslie Tooze.

Lamar Tooze, Allen O'Connell and Prentiss Brown composed the Freshman team that won the silver cup presented by the Class of 1912 last year.

An affirmative and a negative team will be selected from the six men and these two teams will meet the negative and affirmative team, which will be chosen by the Freshmen at their tryout two weeks from now.

The judges of this morning's contest were: Professor Colin V. Dy-
