POINT SYSTEM IS PLANNED

WOMEN'S LEAGUE TO TAKE UP MATTER AT NEXT MEETING

POINTS FOR EACH OFFICE in the near future.

the Overworked Students and to Evenly Distribute College Honors.

The adoption of a Point System last Tuesday but the meeting was leges. postponed.

In the proposed system each office, open to women students, has been graded in points ranging from 5 to 30, with 50 points as the maximum that any one woman can make.

In addition, offices usually considered as by right belonging to men are listed, but preference in the mattions manifestly pertaining to the March 10. co-ed world.

Will Distribute Offices.

The object of the system is to relieve the few over-burdened women, who, because they have proved themselves capable, have ebcome the logical recipients of more duties than they can fulfill without injury to their health. It is also to insure more undivided attention and consequently more efficient performance of the several duties and to increase the number of women who receive the invaluable training in organization work and executive abiilty.

The Women's League of the University of Washington adopted a Point System this year with 25 points as maximum. The honors are graded on practically the same scale as in the system to be considered

The system has been worked out and compiled by a committee of Velma Sexton, chairman, Katherine Bridges, Louise Bailey and Katherine Northrup.

50 Points Maximum.

The rules read that: "During the four years the maximum number of points for any woman to have, shall be fifty (50). At any time that the maximum number is reached she shall become automatically ineligible for further honors."

MOVEMENT TOWARD A FACULTY DELVES INTO COURSES

GROUP SYSTEM BACKERS IN-VESTIGATE WISDOM OF STUDENT CHOICE

GILBERT FAVORS ELECTIVES

mate Group System Now Under Consideration, Says President P. L. Campbell.

Dr. Boynton, chairman of the faculty committee appointed by President Campbell to study the elective system and to propose a change if one is found necessary, said, "Just at present we are making an examination of the electives taken by the students to determine whether or not their choices are, in our judgment, judicious. But, as yet, we have nothing definite to offer for publication."

The group system, as it may be called, requires, besides a specified number of hours' major work, other subjects which bear a direct relation to the major. A certain number of hours elective are allowed, but, according to Dr. Gilbert, the main argument in favor of the group system is the fact that a correlation exists among the required subjects, thereby making the course more broadening. "In our present system," he says, "There is but one requirement to satisfy; the number hours major prescribed in the course of study." Dr. Gilbert received his Doctor's degree from Columbia, a university that employs the group system.

When interviewed this morning, President Campbell said, "The present course in engineering approximates closely to the system under consideration, although a proposed change would not be as stringent in other departments as it is now in engineering. For nearly all the work for the first three years in this department is prescribed.
