

GREEK MYTHS ARE INSPIRATION

PROF. DUNN SHOWS HOW THE ANCIENTS INSPIRE CARTOONISTS.

WAR GOD IS FAVORITE

Hercules, Hydra, Clio and Cronius Also Liked by Artists. Lecture Explains Source of European Cartoons.

"All efforts to steer entirely clear of Latin and Greek in newspaper work will be found in vain, though you may try to do it," said Prof. Dunn Friday afternoon in a lecture on "How Cartoonists Treat the Ancients."

"If we look at the cartoons, a large element of Latin and Greek mythology can be found in a very great number of them. Indeed, many of the cartoons are almost untranslatable without the help of the classics, which also include prehistoric and biblical stories," further stated Prof. Dunn.

Fifty-eight cartoons clipped from the Literary Digest, which had their inception and theme from the classics, were thrown on the screen, many having been taken by the Digest from foreign papers which, Prof. Dunn explained are more genteel and well formed in their cartoons than we are.

Mars, the Greek deity of war, is a very frequent figure in cartoons, said Prof. Dunn; as well as Hercules, the Hydra of many heads, Cronius father time, Clio the muse of history, Boreas the north wind, Midas the man with the golden touch, Pegasus the winged horse, Perseus his captor, and many lesser deities, their deeds, stories of the Trojan war, and Argonaut expeditions.

Prof. Dunn also said that the personification of the deities had been a fertile source for the personification of abstract things among us, as justice, liberty and destruction.

A Berlin cartoon, explained by Prof. Dunn as giving the German idea of our relations to Japan, represents the United States as the son of Apollo driving the chariot of the sun, which is armed by cannons, over the Japanese islands, bulldozing all the people.

In an English paper of several years ago, Jupiter was represented as Roosevelt, seated upon the clouds, saying to the American eagle, "Now listen to me—keep quiet and don't flap."

A French cartoon, said by Prof. Dunn to be inspired by dispute between England and the United States over the canal duties, shows John Bull and Uncle Sam quarrelling over the winged and snake-entwined staff of Mercury, which should represent Peace.

In order that they may be heard more distinctly, the cheer leaders at Brown University have adopted the plan of yelling in unison through a single large horn, thereby greatly increasing the volume of the sound.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY DINNER AT BUNGALOW TUESDAY

Entire Proceeds to Be Used for a Y. W. C. A. China Shower

Mrs. Elizabeth Prescott and Mrs. W. W. Calkins are planning to serve a four-course 6 o'clock dinner on St. Patrick's Day at the Bungalow. Tickets are 50 cents, and will be on sale at the Dormitory and at the Bungalow.

"We want to use every penny of the proceeds of this dinner for a china shower for the Y. W. C. A.," said Mrs. Prescott today.

For the benefit of those who can remain after dinner a program will be given. Mrs. Hope will sing and Professors Dunn and Cloran will give short talks on St. Patrick's Day and its customs. Mrs. F. L. Chambers has some views, taken in Ireland and in England, which will be thrown on the screen.

AN APPEAL THE MAN THERE.

(The Emerald will offer a cash prize to any student who can translate this essay into modern English):

Yet, when all is said and done, there still remains this thing to be attended to, and I am very sure that you will see the thing that I am trying to make you understand, and that you will not attempt to try and coerce me into telling that man over there any of those things that I do not want to tell, though there will of course be a few of those things here and there that can in no way detract from any of those things that I have been trying to tell you for so long a time.

Now, on top of all this, I fell sure that you will see to it that there will soon be a few of those things though, when this is said and done, if there still remains a few of these men, I am willing to tell you that there will never be any of those men here that I am not willing to handle. But, of course, if you persist in doing this there will soon be a few of those men at this place who are willing to do it, and in that event, I am unwilling to tell you that there will never be anything done.

Now, there will be some other things that I will soon want you to attend for me, and when the time comes I will feel perfectly free and willing and able to call upon you for anything that I may happen to want along this line. Now, there will doubtless be a few things that I will need ere long, so you must hold yourself in readiness to do anything I may happen to call upon you to do, or see anything I may want you to see, or be any place I may happen to want you to be.

The ban on dancing after basketball games at Minnesota has been lifted and the Student-Body again dances in the gym after every game.

ABSENCE BLANKS ISSUED

Must Be Filled With Registrar and Dean of Women.

On account of the recent change made prohibiting members of the faculty from excusing absences, blanks must be taken out from the Registrar and filled out by the student desiring to be excused for absences. The women will receive these blanks from the Registrar and will file them with the Dean of Women, Ruth Guppy. The men receive blanks at the same place, but they file them with the Registrar instead of with the Dean of Men, Dr. John Straub.

At the end of the semester the excuses will be taken up with the students by the Deans.

KING LEADS BASKETBALL

O. A. C. Player Will Take P. G. Work to Play on Team.

O. A. C., March 11.—Immediately following the last conference basketball game at Eugene, Saturday night, the task of electing a man to captain the 1914-'15 team was taken up. To this high and honorable position a man and a player who by his clean, honest efforts and able playing was eligible for the honor, was elected. This man was William King, otherwise known as "Billie."

MAJOR CLUB HAS MEETING

Janet Wheatley Is on Program Committee. Dr. Stewart Talks.

The Major Club held its regular meeting on Thursday evening in the women's gym.

Janet Wheatley was elected to serve on the program committee in place of Lucile Cogswell, who resigned. Other members of the committee are Ruth Roche and Grace Tiffany.

Following this, Vera Moffatt read a paper on Hull House. Her material was taken from two of Jane Addams' books, "Twenty Years in Hull House" and "Youth in the City Streets."

Dr. Stewart presented a brief outline of the things she observed on her recent visit in Medford, and illustrative of what she thought physical training should do for the women here.

She said: "This course, more than any other in the University, will fit girls for doing several things after their graduation, because aside from the work in this department, they have work enough in the other departments to enable them to teach." The meeting closed with a discussion of plans for the remaining meetings.

One hundred students were dismissed from Iowa University because of deficiency in scholarship and 20 were placed on probation.
