RUMOR.

Under the caption, "Economy and Simplicity," the Telegram prints the following editorial:

"Rumor says that the upper class students of the State University are bent on creating among the Student-Body of that institution an atmosphere of simplicity and economy. We are not prepared to say how seriously this disposition is made manifest, but the fact that it is bruited abroad is encouraging, and leads to the hope among those who have pride in Oregon institutions that it is genuine, and that the fruit of it may become evident.

"Dress and social usage are the points of attack, the one concerning the formal functions of the University, and the other those social events which heighten the delights of University living. In this respect, the decree, as rumor has it, sounds rather puritanical. For the fair sex at social functions there is to be no flow-ers and taxicabs. Gallantry is to consult the student pocketbook, and that is not at all a bad idea, as it tends to lessen the embarrassment of the student with the lean purse. Moreover, it seems to us that it should help to the fuller appreciation of manliness by the fair ones.

"Concerning the matter of functional dress—robes and mortar boards, and all that sort of thing—it cannot be held as other than flummery, and while indulgence in it may add a certain sense of dignity, there is no reason why decent, everyday attire should not answer every purpose, and denote more clearly that democracy holds its own in the process of education, just as it ought to do.

"When the student stands equipped for his life work the cap and gown do not add anything to the occasion. He wears them because they have come to him with other school traditions, based on conditions in which democracy was unknown. He can dispense with them without any loss of dignity."

The Telegram is right in one respect at least, when it states as a rumor, that the upperclassmen of the University are bent on creating an atmosphere of economy and simplicity among the Student-Body. The upperclassmen are not bent on creating this atmosphere—it is already created. The action which has been taken, condemning the use of flowers and carriages at University dances, is merely to be taken as maintaining and furthering the simplicity and democracy already prevalent at the University.

The arguments in favor of the step taken are well known, and need but little discussion. The fact that a large majority of the students live within such easy walking distance of the University as to make carriages practically useless except for show, and the fact that the manifested ability of the comparative few to purchase cut flowers for their partners only serves to draw the line of social demarcation between the student well off in a financial way and the man who is working his way through college, are in themselves sufficient to warrant the stand taken by the upperclassmen.

As to the wearing of the cap and gown, the Telegram chooses to discard any sentimental reasons in favor of the continuance of this custom, but fails to take notice of the fact that the woman student of average means will find it much easier to rent her graduation costume for the sum of $2.50 than to compete with her wealthier classmate in the purchase of commencement dresses.

If the men and women of the University stand by the old custom of wearing the cap and gown, they will merely be adhering to their established policy of democracy and of economy in so far as it tends to do away with democracy-destroying display for the few and will be really following the sensible and democratic doctrine laid down by the great Portland daily.

PHI BETA KAPPA APRIL 29

Honorary Fraternity Will Be Installed at Washington.

University of Washington—April 29 has been set for the installation of the University of Washington Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. Edward A. Birge, Dean of the College of Letters and Science in the University of Wisconsin, vice-president of the united chapters of Phi Beta Kappa, will have charge of the installation. The ceremony will take place at the faculty clubhouse.

All members of Phi Beta Kappa residing in Seattle or vicinity, who wish to participate in the ceremonies and banquet on the evening of April 29, are requested by the committee in charge to send in their names at once to Prof. Allen R. Benham of the English Department.

The date for the election of officers has not yet been determined. The new members will not be announced later.

STUDENTS WANT HAZING

Ruling by Faculty at Washington Meets Disfavor.

So many letters of protest have been received by the Regents, as well as by Dean Harry Landes, acting president of the University of Washington, that all forms of hazing at this University have been abolished. The faculty ruling to this effect is greeted with disapproval by the students, and they have petitioned to be permitted to resume the kangaroo court, at least, and re-establish their law compelling the Freshmen to wear green caps. Even the Freshmen join in this petition. The students base their petition on an assertion that the metropolitan high schools in particular send such bold Freshmen to the University that some discipline is needed to keep the first-year men from running campus affairs to suit themselves. The faculty committee on student affairs is considering the petition. Hazing has not been prevalent to any greater extent nor more vicious at Washington than at other universities, but the parents of the hazed appear to have taken the matter more seriously than usually they do.

A rare collection of Indian relics has been presented to Harvard by ex-Mayor Green of Boston.

Whitman is without a baseball coach this year because the Student-Body failed to elect.

Three scholarship loan funds have been established at Reed College. A fund of $1,000 is provided by R. A. Booth of Eugene; another fund of $3,000 by Mrs. Joseph G. Houston, in memory of her daughter, Alice Joyce Houston, who expected to graduate from the first class at Reed College. The third fund, guaranteeing an annual income of $500, has been established by Mrs. Clara A. Fehheimer and Mr. W. B. Fehheimer of Portland.

COLUMBIA ADOPTS BUDGET

$3,721,216 Will Be Expense of University for Next Year.

Columbia University.—It will cost Columbia University $3,721,216 to operate all of its departments from July 1, this year, to June 30 next, according to the official budget adopted recently by the trustees. For the work of the University proper $2,925,597 is appropriated, of which amount $2,121,655 is for educational, administration and instruction. The remainder is for care of buildings, grounds, for the library and to the redemption fund. The deficiency, which will have to be provided by special gifts, is estimated at $61,316.08.

The Canton Christian College, at Canton, China, was incorporated in 1893, and at present has a staff of 19 men and 15 women, all Americans; 20 Chinese teachers and 15 student-teachers. There are 400 Chinese students at the institution, which is undenominational.

Eighty-four colleges are represented by the parents of first-year students at Princeton, but of its 430 members only 16 claim that both their parents are college graduates. Figures made public by the University authorities show that 238 students, of 55 per cent of the Freshman class, have parents without any college education.
