ST. JAMES ATHLETIC CLUB WANTS CONTEST WITH OREGON

TOO LATE SAYS SHOCKLEY

Not Likely That Matches Can Be Arranged This Spring But Next Year Team Will Take on Anyone Says Coach.

Coach Shockley received a challenge Wednesday from J. Frederick Meagher, captain of the St. James Athletic Club wrestling team, of Vancouver, Washington, asking for a dual meet at Eugene about April 10.

"I fear it will be impossible to meet the St. James team at that time; it will be too late in the season," said Shockley, yesterday. "But another year we hope to stage meets with all that ask them."

The challenge is in the form of a unique personal letter to Shockley, which is as follows:

My Dear Mr. Shockley:

I venture to write you in regard to a dual wrestling meet between your squad and the St. James Athletic Club of Vancouver, Washington, to be held in your town on, or about the 10th of April. I presume you could defray our car fares, two meals and one night's lodging, the same terms as the O. A. C. accorded us, and give prizes to the winners. While the O. A. C. beat us most shamefully, I still hug the delusion I have a pretty good bunch of man-handlers under my wing, and am itching for a chance to demonstrate such is the case.

The make-up of our team follows: Meagher, a deaf mute, at 118 and 125, one time second in National A. U. championships; Kelly, private in company K, at 135; Minish, at 145; Corporal Roy Hunter, the famous cowboy-cavalryman of "Let 'er buck" fame, at 158. If you want a heavyweight class I can supply you with a husky guy who thinks he is a world beater, but who can't wrestle much better than a two-year-old bull pup. Minish and Hunter won at Corvallis, the rest lost. Have no 108. I can make 115 flat if necessary, but as I take on two men would prefer not having to train down so fine, especially as I have to give so much time to arranging the multitude of details of getting the boys away. For Corvallis I got Kelly out of the guard house after eight days' confinement, just four hours before we left for the seat of war; don't believe this company commander will accommodate us again, so we are always liable to have a crimp put in our make-up at the last moment by one of the soldiers getting juggled. In that case the class will be forfeited to you when the bout is called.

I hear that you have a corking good man in Fuji Maki, and it will give me genuine pleasure to humble the pride of the Mikado's flowery kingdom. Have often met representatives of other countries in the past, and never lost yet, so your crowd will probably witness a battle royal when the bell clangs for the onset.

We suggest we wrestle intercollegiate rules, best two in three six-minute bouts, two decisions beat one fall, but one fall beating one decision and a draw. The meet would have to take place on a Saturday, as that is the only day I can get away from my class work.

Trusting to hear from you shortly, I beg to remain,

Yours for clean sport,
J. FREDERICK MEAGHER,
Captain St. James A. C. Wrestling Team, Vancouver.

SENIORS—Be sure and order your cap and gown of Otto Heider or Bill Murphy before spring vacation in order to insure having them here on time. Measurements will be taken in the Y. M. C. A. exchange from 4 to 5 p. m. on Mondays and Thursdays.

SIX ORIGINALS OF LISZT RECEIVED BY PROF. LYMAN

Carl V. Lachmund to Lecture on Personal Recollections of Musician's Life

Framed pictures and souvenirs of the late Franz Liszt, from the collection of Carl V. Lachmund, a personal friend of the great composer, have been received by Prof. Ralph H. Lyman.

The pictures, six in number, have been placed above the fireplaces in the University Library, and will be fully described by Mr. Lachmund in a lecture, "Personal Recollections of Liszt," which will be given Monday evening, March 23.

"Mr. Lachmund will also read extracts from Liszt's Diary for the year 1876," said Mr. Lyman, yesterday. "This was one of the most interesting years in Liszt's life, and we shall have something excellent to look forward to."

The hour and place for the lecture will be arranged later.

KNICK-KNOCKS

By Sage of Podunk.

Back again.

The Emerald seems to be a sort of public scratching post for irritated mentalities, so why not the Sage once more?

CHURCHES STANDING STILL

Real Progress Is Being Made in Orient, Says Hounshell.

"Our American churches are standing still, in comparison to the rapid growth of the few churches in the foreign fields," said Mr. C. F. Hounshell, travelling secretary of Student Volunteers Association in his talk to the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. Monday afternoon in the Bungalow. Mr. Hounshell also spoke of the great demand for new missionaries in the Orient and Asiatic countries and of the wonderful opportunity for real work to be done there. He concluded his talk with incidents in the lives of some of the active workers.

The Choral part of the service was led by Harold Humbert, a student volunteer worker on the campus.

An important meeting of the Senior class will be held Friday, March 20, at 4 o'clock in Dr. Schmidt's room. Several important matters will come up at this time, including the announcement of the casts for the senior play, Oregona report and the cap and gown petition. All members of the class are urgently asked to be present.

UNIVERSITY LIBRARY AIDS OUT OF TOWN PATRONS

Newspaper Files Supply the Material for Important Law Case

Many requests for books or information upon special subjects are received by M. H. Douglass, at the University library, from persons out-of-town.

These requests are from graduates, High School principals, debaters, club women, ministers, lawyers and engineers, in all parts of the state. Many inquiries come also from the State Library, asking for material which is desired by patrons.

"Comparatively few requests come from Portland," declared Mr. Douglass. "Last year, however, a Portland lawyer wrote to us for some material which had been printed in the Eugene Daily Guard about 15 years ago. The information which he gained was used in pleading one of his cases."

"About 80 such inquiries were received by the library last year, and there are about 40 thus far this year."

ATTENDANCE AT SHORT STORY CLASS DOUBLES

Increase Necessitates More Room. Most Members Advanced.

(By Lucile Watson)

The Short Story Class, taught by Mrs. Mable H. Parsons, which meets from 8 till 9:30 o'clock every other Saturday night, in room B of the public library in Portland, has doubled in attendance since the beginning of the school year.

"The majority of the members of the class are advanced students, and they take a great interest in their work. Study groups, formed by some of the students on their own initiative, meet between sessions for the reading and discussion of their outside reading," said Mrs. Parsons. "On account of the increase in attendance, we have had to move once from a smaller room to a larger room, where we now are."

THESES ARE UNPROFITABLE

Prof. Ayer Thinks Students Do Better to Put Time in on Course.

Only two undergraduate students are writing theses for Professor Ayer, Dean of the Education Department.

"Very few of my students write theses; I seldom give credit for them. I think the undergraduate student is not well enough prepared—it is much better to spend time on a well-balanced and prepared course of study," said Professor Ayer.

E. Erie Lane, who has been working two years on his subject, "Religion and Education," may receive two credits. William C. Painter has chosen for the subject of his thesis, "School Survey."

PUBLISHER WILL HELP STUDENTS

TO FURNISH CAPITAL FOR COUNTRY NEWSPAPER Field.

GIVE JOURNALISTS START

Department of Journalism Gets Many Requests for Students to Fill Positions on Newspapers in the State.

An offer to furnish capital for graduates of the Department of Journalism who wish to start in the country newspaper field has been received by the department from one of the most prosperous of the publishers in the cities of the state outside of Portland.

The publisher wants to be placed in touch with students who can be recommended, and who would put up a very small proportion of the capital required, in order to insure that they would "stick," and not leave him with a plant and no man to run it.

The publisher's plan includes a period of "breaking in" in his own plant, as preparatory experience to entering the country field.

"I would not ordinarily advise an inexperienced man to invest money," said Prof. E. W. Allen today in discussing the offer, "but this plan has some attractive features, and seems worth investigating. It comes from a man of personal standing and good rating, and is no fly-by-night proposition. In the University of Oregon a good many students have already had business experience before they came here, and have enough business sense to go into a small proposition on their own responsibility."

"However, the difficulty so far has not been to find places for students, but to find students to fill the positions that are offered each year. Of course, the Department of Journalism is only in its second year, and no student can yet be called a graduate, and none has much more than a smattering of the work offered in the course."

Already there are six or eight former students of the department working on newspapers in Oregon and Washington.

At a meeting of Williams students recently the first step was taken for the formation of a student council, which shall deal with undergraduate affairs. The meeting voted that a committee of nine, appointed by the chairman, should draw up a general plan for such a council. This plan the committee will submit to the students at a later meeting.
