WAKING UP DRAMATICS.

From the senior class comes the information that a chorus may be used in conjunction with the annual class play. This new departure from the established order of things has not as yet been absolutely determined on, but sentiment in the senior class is strongly in favor of the proposed change and there is every likelihood of its being effected.

From the strict academic viewpoint, this may seem too radical an innovation, but as a matter of fact it only demonstrates the willingness on the part of the Oregon students to get out of the rut when by so doing they can infuse a little real life into any of the student or class activities. The same spirit has recently been shown by the action taken by the men's fraternities on the campus in forming a council in order that they might be governed by uniform rules and with the wish that any friction resulting from the fraternity system might be eliminated.

For years, the senior play has been a tradition at the University of Oregon. Every class has felt in duty bound to give one, and nearly every class has gone in the hole financially as the result of its histrionic endeavors. The plays were good, but somehow they were not just what the people wanted. Even a large number of the University students balked at them.

The introduction of a chorus, if made by the class of 1914 will not be a lowering of the standards of college dramatics, as might be supposed by some, but will only bring about a greater variety, resulting in a successful appeal to a larger proportion of the students of the University and to the other patrons of University activities.

The senior play has needed livening up for some time and it has fallen to the lot of the present graduating class to administer the necessary tonic. It is to be hoped that the opportunity of rendering such a signal service to Eugene playgoers, will not be slighted.

The new student council has started things off with a rush and from all indications has more than enough business to keep it busy for the remainder of the school year. There is no doubt that there are plenty of things on the Oregon campus which can be remedied by a little serious thought and action, but the council in itself can not be expected to accomplish all the needed changes. Now it is up to the Oregon students to get behind the new organization and do some real live boosting.

According to the showing made by Coach Bezdek's baseball hopefuls Oregon is just about on a par with the O. A. C. nine. But the season has still a considerable length of time to run.

SOCIETY

By Beatrice Lilly.

There have been a number of dances during the past week in college circles. Sigma Nu gave its annual formal at the Eugene Armory on Friday evening. The hall was attractively decorated in Oregon colors and the supper rooms in fir boughs and Oregon grape. The programs were pennants of white leather embossed with the Sigma Nu crest, and a white rose, the fraternity flower. White roses tied with white, black and gold were given as favors. The guests were: Rita Fraley, Lucile Davis, Kate Stanfield, Helen Mac-Cornack, Ruth Beach, Georgia Cross, Katie Shafer, Echo Zahl, Charlie Fenton, Lyle Steiwer, Ruby Steiwer, Isabel Garland, Bernice Ely, Bernice Lucas, Katharine Bridges, Lila Cushman, Grace Campbell, Madge Newberry and Irene Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Goodrich. The patrons were: Mr. and Mrs. Dean Hayes, and Mrs. and Mrs. Graham Mitchell.

Kappa Sigma entertained with a dance on Friday evening. Oregon grape was used in decoration. The guests were: Edith Risley, Elsie Gurney, Hazel Ralston, Hazel Downing, Catharine Carson, Flora Dunham, Grace Lilly, Beatrice Lilly, Eva Brock, Alice Hill, Florence Kendall, Grace MacKenzie, Frances Heath, Madge Barony, Bess Cowden, Marjorie McGuire, Maud Mastick, Mildred Brown, Merna Brown, Ethel Tooze, Arvilla Beckwith, Kathleen Shoemaker, Louise Heusner of Portland; Don Rice, Clarence Ash, Allie Grout, Robert Bradshaw, Harry Lytle, Nell Kendall and Malcolm MacEwan. Mr. and Mrs. Bezdek, Mrs. H. J. Bean, Mrs. V. C. Brock acted as chaperones for the evening.

Mrs. E. B. Rorer and Mrs. S. D. Allen entertained with a dance in honor of Kappa Kappa Gamma at the Country Club on Tuesday evening. St. Patrick's decorations were used. The guests were: Rose Price, Rita Fraley, Beatrice Fraley, Bernice Ely, Louise Williamson and Mildred Lucas; Lyman Rice, Herman Oberteuffer, Charles Reynolds, Carl Fenton, Merlin Batley, Raymond Bryant, Jack Schaefer, Charlie Olsen, Chester Miller, Carl Thomas, Colton Meek, Ralph Allen, Frank Allen, William Tuerc, Joe Gilpin and Glen Wheeler. CATALOGUE FOR NEXT NOW BEING PREPARED
Half of Copy in Printer's Hands. Will Be Larger Than Previous Books.

"Half of the copy for the 1914-1915 catalogue of the University has been sent to the state printer, and will be printed within a short time," said Registrar A. R. Tiffany today in speaking of the catalogue which the University issues every year.

Mr. Tiffany states that the remainder of the copy will be sent to the state printer within the next few days, and that the entire catalogue will be printed as soon as possible.

The new catalogue will contain many revisions. The part containing general information is being revised at the Registrar's office, while the heads of the various departments have charge of the revision of their respective departments.

Last year's catalogue contained 305 pages, and it is expected that the new one will be considerably larger.

The purpose of issuing catalogues is mainly to give prospective students information concerning the University.

The big eastern spring inter-collegiate meet will be held this year again in the Harvard stadium, on May 28 and 29. Many of the colleges made a bid to get the affair for their campus, and Pennsylvania was almost sure of obtaining the meet to be held on Franklin field, where it has been held many times before.

Volumes 1-21 of the Harvard Law Review, with the accompanying index, have been received at the University library. This completes the set up to date.

Francis J. Heney, the Oregon land fraud prosecutor, and now candidate for the Progressive nomination for United States senator in California, spoke before the Student-Body of Stanford University Wednesday.
