A PLEA FOR SPORTSMANSHIP

For the last time in the college year the Emerald is asking for an exhibition of the right kind of spirit among spectators at athletic contests in which Oregon participates. The fault of poor sportsmanship is perhaps due to an over allowance of loyalty to the University teams, but at all events, the teams against whom Oregon is competing should be given a fair chance to do their best.

A spirit of hard fighting and fair tactics has always characterized campus athletics until this year, when a disposition was shown among the rooters at basketball games to win by means fair or unfair. This spirit seemed something fleeting and evanescent, and in fact has not been evidenced in baseball at all. But in tennis, where rooting is really about as much in place as in a balk line billiard tournament, the desire to win has again overcome the Oregon ideals of fairness. It is hard to characterize this as coming from the wilful desire to injure the playing of the visiting men. It is more charitable to brand such actions as mere thoughtless rudeness, a sort of playful boorishness on the part of some of the Oregon tennis fans. But be this as it may, it must be remembered that unfairness from those on the sidelines will not be taken in this way by the visiting athletes. A reputation for unfairness is much easier to acquire than to lose.

Such actions as those which incurred the displeasure of the Washington players in the final day of the conference tennis tournament also have the danger of inducing a chronic unsportsmanlike behavior. This is certainly to be avoided.

A three game series for the conference championship in baseball will begin next Monday between the Oregon nine, and the team from W. S. C. A great deal hangs on the outcome of these games, but this offers the better opportunity for Oregon rooters to show that they are clean winners or clean losers.

The responsibility for conduct rests on every one of those present. If each man on the bleachers determines not only to behave himself as a gentleman should, but also to take some of the responsibility for his champions, there is little chance of the stigma of poor sportsmanship being attached to the Oregon students in the future.

CANCELING CUTS.

In according to the plan of substituting attendance on three conferences during the commonwealth exercises for the regular class work on Thursday and Friday, the faculty is pursuing a sound policy. A big student turnout is necessary at these conferences and it is only fair that attendance for the next two days should be allowed to take the place of the ordinary lectures and recitations.

Incidentally there is a chance offered for those desiring to do so to make up back cuts by attending extra conferences. Two cuts will be canceled for each conference over and above the three required. Here is a chance which should not be overlooked. Students who are in danger of being docked college hours on account of cuts, may find this ruling extremely to their advantage.

PRaises Student Interest

May 24, 1914.
To the Editor of the Oregon Emerald Eugene, Oregon,
My dear sir:-
Please permit me to express through the Emerald my appreciation of the interest that the students of the University are taking in the Commonwealth Conference to be held May 28 and 29th. In participating in this important conference the students not only demonstrate their ability to recognize an opportunity, but they also prove a genuine interest in those matters in which the State University should always lead. There is no question as to the great advantage it will be to the students to attend and take part in the discussion of the vital questions that will be handled by the best informed citizens of Oregon, and the impression that it will make upon the visitors will benefit the institution. This is one of the few opportunities and I think the very best one that is offered during the course of the year to demonstrate to the citizens of the state the seriousness with which the young men and women of the State University regard the vital problems that are calling for solution through the ablest leadership. Attendance upon the conferences and participation in the discussions will go along way toward demonstrating to others the quality of students at the University
Yours very truly,
Allen Eaton.

WOMEN BEGIN REHEARSALS FOR "SPRING PAGEANT"

Will Be Staged on Campus the Monday of Commencement Week

Practices for the "Spring Pageant", to be given the first Monday afternoon of Commencement week were begun Monday, and will continue every afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock.

Symbolically, the pageant will represent the "Awakening of Spring." Miss Martha Beer has been chosen to represent the "spirit" of spring. She, with the assistance of the "winds" comes to awaken the trees, and finally to bring forth the flowers. There will be four groups of wild flowers—butter-cups, poppies, lilies-of-the-valley and daisies—for each of which groups of about 24 girls will be needed.
"We hope to get 200 girls to take part," said Miss Freida Goldsmith, assistant gym instructor in speaking of the affair.
The "Spring Pageant", is a new feature of the Commencement exercises, is in charge of the Woman's League.

Two hundred and twelve athletes representing 42 high schools in Indiana, recently competed in the annual inter-scholastic track and field meet staged at Wabash college.

In the future the University of Illinois will not countenance the participation of its athletic teams in any Decoration Day contests.

Freshmen at Southwestern college are ineligible for membership to the different literary societies of the institution.

The law department of the University of Idaho recently edited an issue of the Daily Argonaut.

Warren Tupper was recently elected president of the Student Body at Pacific University.
