THE REGISTRATION

Perhaps all of us do not realize the true significance of the gain made in this year's registration over that of any previous year. Already there are more students in college than there were last year, and when the last stragglers are gathered into the fold the total will be much greater. Registrar Tiffany's prediction of an enrollment of 800 will certainly be fulfilled by the time the annual reinforcements are received in February, if not before.

All of which is the more remarkable when the depletion of the student body by the withdrawal of the engineering courses is taken into account. It is estimated that the dictum of the Board of Higher Curricula condemning these courses here and at the Agricultural College, cost the University more than 100 students.

In other words, at one stride we have overcome a setback which was expected to retard the growth of the student body for several years. The secret of the increase is found in the size of the Freshman class, which will probably exceed by 150 that of any previous year. The preset Senior class will be the most meager graduated from Oregon in many years. This is largely due to the fact that the members of the 1915 class chose to follow the uncertain fortunes of the University when the referendum turmoil was at its thickest and the future was barren of promise.

When we look across the next four years to the time when the present Freshmen will be Seniors, with each succeeding lower class larger than its predecessor, the dream of a student body truly representative of this state seems a possibility.

TO CORRESPONDENTS

The first communication received by the Emerald cannot be published, because it is not accompanied by the name of the author. An in the past, the Emerald will be glad to open its columns to the discussion of live issues by its readers, and in order that this discussion be straightforward, it is essential that anonymous opinion be precluded. For this reason we must insist that communications be signed. If requested, the name of the writer will be withheld, although we can see no reason for such superlative modesty.

We hope we shall not be compelled again to reject a contribution because it violates this rule.

Contending that the meeting was disorganized and that they did not know whom they were voting for, the Freshmen of the University of Washington will contest the election of Virginia Madigan, secretary, and Wade Hargraves, treasurer, who were voted into office at the Freshman class meeting.

ORCHESTRA HOLDS ELECTION

At the meeting of the orchestra Tuesday evening, Miss Mary DeBar was elected president, and Miss Minnie Schwarzschild secretary-treasurer.

After the election was disposed of, the rest of the evening was spent in practice.

"I am greatly pleased with the results of the practice, but I can not nounce at present those who have been selected," said Miss Forbes yesterday.

The Ohio State Lantern, founded in 1879, has been changed from a weekly to a daily, published by the University under the direction of the Department of Journalism.

The "Palo Alto," issued by Stanford University, is receiving and printing United Press telegraph news.

Best and fastest bowling alleys in the city at Obak's.

BAND BEGINS PRACTICE

Splendid Material on Hand—Sweaters to be Given to Members

The University Band held its first meeting Tuesday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock, in Dr. Straub's room. About 35 men were present.

"I am very much pleased with the outlook for this year," said Maurice Hyde, president of the band. "There is a great deal of splendid material on hand and I am sorry we cannot use it all. However, there are places for at least twenty-five men. We shall begin work immediately, and perhaps have some good lively music for the Oregon-Whitman football game.

The student body organization this year expects to give sweaters to all members of the band. Later in the year, perhaps the first of January, we shall have a director to help us."

You'll enjoy billiards on Obak's tables.
