AUDIENCE TO HEAR NEW MUSIC PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE BAND DANCE TO BE GIVEN SATURDAY EVENING

An Amendment Concerning Women's Glee Club Framed; No Statement Made As Yet

Assembly hour tomorrow morning will be given over to a special meeting of the Student Body. Two resolutions and an amendment will be brought before the meeting. Special music will be furnished by the Varsity Band. This will be the initial appearance of the band before an assembly audience.

Of the two resolutions that will come before the students to adopt, one deals with the matter of advertising. On account of the complaint of the merchants that there were too many University publications to support through advertising, the Executive Council took up the matter and decided to recommend limiting the student publications soliciting advertising only for the Emerald and Oregon. The resolution to be adopted by the students will be to this effect and will be introduced by Leland Hendricks. The other resolution relates to students hurriedly calling a meeting together and adopting resolutions without first consulting an authority.

The amendment to be submitted by Bert Jerard aims at Article VI, Section 1, of the Constitution. Section 1 now reads: "The Girls' Glee Club shall be governed by the same provisions that apply to the Glee Club, excepting that the members of this club shall not be entitled to emblems." As to the purpose of the amendment, no statement was offered by those framing it, because as they said "they were afraid of adverse sentiment." However, the amendment will not be voted upon till a later meeting than the one tomorrow and will be before the students during the intervening time just as prominently as it will be between the time the Emerald comes out this evening and tomorrow morning.

An opportunity will be given the student representatives of the two railroads bidding for the official train to the O. A. C.-Oregon game to argue for their respective lines. After having had an opportunity to hear the arguments pro and con, a vote of the students will be taken as to which line shall have the special train. The purpose of this is to prevent any one bunch of students ruling the majority. The band dance is to be given next Saturday night, and to prove to the students that the music will be of the highest order, "Maury" Hyde will wave the baton through two or three numbers at the assembly while his cohorts revel among the notes of ball room music. "If the toes of everyone in the audience wiggle not and his enthusiasm remains as thick as molasses when we play," says Hyde, "we will do the groundhog act when the groundhog sees his shadow and bury ourselves for years to come."

AFTERMATH SHOWS WHY OREGON WAS DEFEATED

With Payne, Bostwick and Huggins in Commission, Locals Might Have Coped Saturday's Race

By Floyd Westerfield.
If Payne, Bostwick and Huggins had been able to represent Oregon at the cross country race at Corvallis last Saturday, the Oregon trio would have been placed nearer the head of the list. First place went to Hobgood, who covered the four and one-half miles in 23:59. All three of the above named men have in practice made time that would have placed them in the front rank. The inexperience and the short time for the training of the three Freshmen who represented the University was only one handicap that worked against them.

When "Bill" received word of the race, it was understood that the run was to be three and one-half miles. However, when the men arrived in Corvallis they were informed that the race would be for four and one-half miles. The team had trained for the shorter distance, and the extra mile, a soft, muddy road and a quarter of a mile of plowed ground were conditions that were not expected. Every member of the team finished in good condition, the last man making the distance in 24:45.

Belding, who finished first for Oregon, and Kaddery of O. A. C., led the runners for the first mile. Hobgood, of O. A. C., was the first man to enter the armory at the last of the race. McKay, of Whitman, who was thirty yards behind him, sprinted, and for half a lap the two men were even. At the last turn Hobgood took the pole and was able to finish about ten yards ahead of McKay, who was the third man to cross the tape. Lafky had worked up to second place in a sprint at the finish.

FEW OUTSIDE STUNTS ON GLEE CLUB TRIP

Concert Will be in Eugene December 3; "Attend and Support Your Organization," Says Tiffany

An Eastern Oregon tour will comprise the Christmas vacation of the 22 members of the Men's Glee Club. A lack of the wherewithal, however, will prevent as many concerts being given as were originally intended, and for the same reason the "stunts" will be acted only by the singers themselves.

"I have heard that some men outside the club may try out for the dialogues," said Professor Lyman. "They will have to be exceptionally good. We are relying more than ever upon the work of the Glee Club members alone. Apperson, with his xylophone, made a hit last year and will probably reappear this season. Jerard and Batley, last year's comedians, who are again trying out, are assured of a place in next month's program. Sprague, tenor, and Gillette and Vawter, baritone, are doing good work."

The trip through the eastern part of the state will cover Pendleton on December 29, Baker December 30, La Grande December 31, Hood River January 1, and on the return trip a concert will be given in Albany January 2. Portland and Salem will be visited later in the season.

According to Manager Tiffany, the club will make its first appearance in Eugene December 3. "Every student in the University," he added, "should attend this concert. It is your organization and needs your moral and financial support."

OREGANA STAFF WILL HOLD A MEETING TOMORROW AT 4:00 P. M., IN DR. STRAUB'S ROOM, VILLARD HALL.

FIGHT IS ONLY HOPE

At the Crucial Period of Fight Bezdek Must Develop Men to Fill Holes Left by Cripples

By Harry Kuck.
Coach Bezdek can imitate Dobie's calamity talk with a clear conscience, for, in face of all this newspaper gas about Oregon's phenomenal luck, there is not a vestige of over-confidence in the Oregon camp. In fact, things begin to look worse than dubious.

Johnny Beckett, Oregon's star punter, and one of the mainstays in the line, has tonsillitis and may not be able to enter the Washington game.

In sizing up the situation, Coach Bezdek says: "It's a pretty hard dose to swallow. The material was here; we won our early season games all right, and just as we seemed to have a chance, this procession of unforeseen setbacks is ushered in. You can't guard against mumps and tonsillitis, you know."

Malarkey and Cornell are through with football for the year. There is not a chance of either of them playing against the Purple and Gold Saturday. Malarkey's eyes are in bad shape, and football is out of the question for him.

"Bill" and "Bez" have been working all season with Cornell's knee, but it refuses to improve. Consequently, Oregon's sagacious little football general will view the game from the sidelines.

Although out of the hospital, Sam Cook is in no condition to don his armor, and in all probability he, too, will be an interested spectator at Saturday's entertainment. This will necessitate a change in plans, for Cook was counted upon to back up the line.

If Beckett does not recover p. d. q. we may just as well kiss that old game good-bye and hope (at best) for a low score and few injuries. When asked who would do the kicking if Beckett was out, the coach replied: "I guess I'll go in and try my hand at it."

There is no one who can fill the big tackle's place and do himself credit. With Cook and Beckett absent, Washington's backs, Miller, Noble and Shiel, would make yardage through the Lemon Yellow line at will.

The only ray of sunshine that is constantly peeping through the gloom is the old "Oregon Spirit." Every man on the team is instilled with a "do or die" fight, which is a wonderful asset on the gridiron. Two full teams work hard each night, under the arc lamps, vainly trying to counterbalance the misfortunes which befall them almost daily.

Moreover, there is perfect harmony in camp. Coach Bezdek brands as an absolute falsehood a recent statement in a local newspaper which said that it looks like the old 'bogey' fraternity

DRAMATISTS REVIVIFY

First Meeting of the Year Will be Held Thursday to Elect Officers

A meeting of the active members of the University Dramatic Club will be held Thursday evening at 7:00 o'clock in Dr. Schafer's room in the basement of the Library, to elect officers and to plan for the coming season.

Thursday's meeting will be the first to be held by the organization this year. According to Bert Jerard and Maurice Hill, who have called the meeting, several important matters will be discussed and decided upon by the club.

"It is very important that all old members be present Thursday evening," Jerard said today. "Besides electing officers, the time for holding tryouts for membership will be decided."

Jerard says that it is altogether probable that the tryouts will be held next week. He says the plan this year is to give only modern plays.

The Dramatic Club has been organized for several years, and each year presents plays. Last year it produced "A Woman's Way," which met with great success.

A number of places on the club will be filled by the tryouts.

Last year over 50 students tried for places. The tryouts consist in reading certain selections from Shakespeare and other works.

PROF. LYMAN CHOOSES WOMEN'S GLEE QUARTET

Professor Lyman held tryouts for the quartet of the Girls' Glee Club last week, and those chosen for the parts were: Eva Brock for first soprano, Marie Churchill, second soprano, Charlie Fenton, first alto, and Bernice Perkins, second alto.
