IT STANDS ON ITS MERITS

Not because the management needs the money, not because it is a deserving enterprise, but because it is worth its price to every student, the Oregon Emerald should have 700 subscribers on the campus, instead of the customary 300 or so.

The Student Body has very properly voted not to give alms to the Junior class under the guise of paying a chimerical debt. But the members of the Student Body individually are bound to support their year-book by paying what it is actually worth to them.

The actual cost of publishing last year's Oregon Emerald was about one dollar per volume in excess of all the subscription money received. In other words, the purchasers did not even pay for the white paper, ink and printing in the book.

A comparison of the price charged for the annual here and that charged at any other college will establish the fact that in this, as in other student enterprises, we are feeling but lightly the high cost of living. How much would we have to pay for the Oregon Emerald if advertising were excluded, as it is in many college year-books?

CAMPUS NOTES

Fred Kiddle was a luncheon guest at the Beta Theta Pi house Wednesday.

Bill Burgard and Floyd Payne were dinner guests at the Sigma Nu house Tuesday.

Carlyle Geisler spent the week-end in Portland.

Clayton Sharp is ill with a serious case of blood poisoning.

EXTENSION LECTURES

The approaching week-end will see four professors busy with extension lectures; three appearing in Salem, and one in Astoria.

"The Russian Peril and Russian Possibilities," will be the subject of Dr. Rebec in the Court House at Astoria on Friday evening.

On the same evening, Prof. O. F. Stafford will talk on "Worlds in the Making," at the State Training School four miles east of Salem; Professor Stetson on "Educational Opportunities for Rural Communities," at the Salem Heights Hall; and Dr. C. F. Hodge, on "Our Schools for Social Advance," under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association at Mountain View School, just out of Salem.

COMEDY FROM LATIN TO BE STAGED HERE

Plautus' Menechemi, Translated by Dunn to be Presented by Students

Professor Frederic S. Dunn, head of the Latin Department, is at present engaged in making an English translation of the play, "Menechemi," by Plautus, a Roman playwright of the second Punic war period. Prof. A. F. Reddie is planning to produce the classic on the campus at some future time, and the author intends to print the play in small book form for the use of other dramatic organizations desiring an English version.

The theme of "Menechemi" was taken by Plautus from an early Greek play. Shakespeare used the theme for his "Comedy of Errors."

The stage of the open air theatre is now completed and ready for use. J. Frederick Thorne supervised the construction. It has over 1,600 square feet of stage surface, being 30 feet wide at one end, 50 feet at the other and 36 feet deep. The acoustics are perfect, according to Mr. Thorne, and are made so by a background of heavy fir trees, into which the stage is set. Dressing rooms will be erected under the stage. The natural auditorium will seat several thousand persons within the sound of a whisper of the stage.

The first play for which the theatre will be used is to be the commencement play, "The Country Shop Keeper," by Moliere, to be produced by the class in Dramatic Interpretation.

Miss Leslie Blanchard, Miss Mary Gillies, Mrs. Buoy and Beatrice Buoy were dinner guests at the Delta Gamma house Wednesday.

"EXCUSE ME"

By Rex Kay.
Mary Backowske, President of the Women's Athletic Association at the University of Washington, is clamouring for a coach to handle the women's branches of sport on the same basis that is given the men's department.

Between "Skeeter" at short and Grebe at second, there should be some clever stuff pulled off in the way of trick plays. That's what the coach banks on.

Now that there are to be plenty of seats for all honest-to-goodness fans, what excuse will the nearly-weds have to hold private picnic parties under the campus trees during the games?

Coach Bezdek admits that there is a good chance for dark clouds to settle heavily over the baseball team about March 30.

An Idaho reporter writes: "If the expectations of Coach 'Heck' Edmondson come true, Idaho will have a winning track team this year, as all of the old men are back, except Loux and Lockhart, and there is lots of new material. Massey is counted on for a surprise in the quarter." But they hadn't heard of these new "dreams" which "Bill" is having.

Pullman will have six letter men back for basketball next year. Not so bad, but Oregon will lose only one and there are several healthy looking babes whom it is expected "Bez" will pull out of the cradle about that time.

In the shooting matches which are going on in the East the University of Washington lost to Yale in class "C" last week by 992 to 865. Pullman still ranks first in class "A," with a score of 993 out of a possible 1,000.

"The Girl Hikers" who are walking to Frisco are expected to arrive in Eugene tonight. Although they are not in competition with "Rattlesnake Jim," they are bidding fair to usurp the yodler's laurels; they have dinner dates with several fraternities on the campus, but whether they dance and yodel is not known.

GLEE CLUB TRIPS WILL NET NEARLY $300, SAYS TIFFANY

The Glee Club trip netted between $250 and $300, according to A. R. Tiffany, Graduate Manager. Two hundred and twenty-five dollars was made on the local concert and $20 on the Junction City trip. On the Portland and Eastern Oregon trips it broke even.

This amount is a decided gain over last year's trip, when a deficit of $900 was made. This money was lost last year on the Eastern Oregon trip. The club went into Idaho for two concerts, losing considerable money each time. "The Student Body debt of $2,600 will be made up by the end of next year, I am sure," said Mr. Tiffany. "We have a splendid start on it this year."

Because of a great increase in the number of students entering the high school at the opening of the second semester, Willamette University undergraduates have been given positions as assistant instructors in various subjects and will continue the work during the remainder of the school year.
