

STUDENT COUNCIL IS UNITED IN OPPOSITION TO CUT RULE

DEAN STRAUB FAILS TO CONVINCE STUDENTS—TWO OF 25 UPHOLD SYSTEM—COMMITTEE WILL INVESTIGATE AND RECOMMEND CHANGES TO THE FACULTY

RECOMMENDATIONS VARY EDITOR APPOINTS STAFF

Professor DeCou States that Present Protects One-Tenth of Its "Victims"

Student opposition to the cumulative cut system, in vogue in the University for the past three years, was crystallized at the open meeting of the Student Council last night, when a motion favoring a modification of the present rule was unanimously adopted.

The meeting was held for the express purpose of ascertaining student sentiment on the system, and about 25 students, representing various organizations and interests on the campus, were in attendance. Two members of the University faculty, Prof. E. E. DeCou and Dr. John Straub, were also present at the meeting to present the faculty attitude on the matter.

The motion condemning the system as it now obtains and recommending a modification was adopted after two hours of discussion. Two students expressed themselves in favor of the ruling. Fred Hardesty, Oregon debater, evinced the belief that the system was conducive to better scholarship. He left the Council room before the vote on the motion was taken.

William Hoyt, Manager of the Oregonian, upheld the rule, contending that cutting of classes should be punished in some way, so as to cultivate the habit of attendance.

The objections raised were many and varied. The principal one seemed to be that the cut rule was causing a general feeling of dissatisfaction on the campus. This dissatisfaction, it was urged, was directed not only toward the rule itself, but to other projects undertaken by the faculty. One speaker said that the system was used to cover up the inefficiency of several faculty members, and that it was only a device used to force students to attend classes which they would otherwise feel were not worth attending. The same student asserted that in courses in which the students realize that regular attendance at classes is essential for good work there would be no more "cutting" without the system than there is now.

It was also repeatedly urged that the rule is not conducive to engendering a feeling of responsibility in the students; that it is "high-schoolish" and too severe.

Among the recommendations suggested for modifying the rule was one which, if adopted, would provide that students receiving a grade of "M" or above in a course would not be charged with cuts, while students receiving a grade below "M" would be charged.

Another student suggested that the cumulative rule be abolished entirely and only the existing requirement that a student must attend at least 80 per cent of his classes in order to qualify for the final examinations be retained.

In presenting the faculty attitude on the question, Dr. Straub said that the rule was for the purpose of maintaining a high scholastic standard for the University. He told of an investigation which he conducted a few months ago among 30 colleges of

FRATERNITY MEET IS BILLED FOR SATURDAY

Boyley Will Direct Events in Absence of Huggins; Good and Garrett to Assist

The inter-fraternity track meet will be held on Kincaid Field next Saturday. Before leaving for California last Wednesday, Chet Huggins appointed Tommy Boyley chairman of the committee in charge of the meet. Associated with Boyley are George Good and Dobie Garrett.

"The committee will have charge of all departments of the meet," said Huggins. "If there is a baseball game in the forenoon, as last year. The in the forenoon, as last year. The committee will decide the number of entries, the number and order of events, and select the officials."

Last year Ray Bryant won the meet for the Sigma Chi by taking 30 out of 38 points made by the fraternity.

At a meeting of the Inter-Fraternity Athletic Association last night, an amendment was added to the section regarding qualified entries. The amended section reads: "All track letter men and men who took part in the Columbia meet this year are ineligible, and provided further, that hereafter the inter-fraternity meet shall be held after the Columbia meet."

"The amendment was passed in order that the inter-fraternity track meets might be put on a more competitive basis. It was the contention of some that it was discriminating against the houses that were conceded to be the most likely to win the meet. Those who upheld the amendment claimed that the true competitive spirit of the meet was lost by

AL BOWEN PRAISES HIS FACE IN BURNING LINES OF POESY

Emerald Scribe Now Acting As Ex- position Guide Travels Far On Phiz

Down at the Frisco Frisk they furnish the Boy Scouts, otherwise known as official guides, with photograph passes, admitting them into the main entrance, and most of the family entrances as well. Al Bowen, Emerald scribe, and one of Professor Reddie's dramatic interpreters, is one of the University's representatives on the force. The other day he bestrode his Pegasus and composed the following panegyric to the magic bit of paste-board. Although the poem was not intended for publication, here it is: "My face is my fortune," the saying's quite old;

(And also the "come-back, with meaning so cold):
"You're starving to death if that be the case!"
But I have at last found some worth in my face.

My photo is pasted upon a pass-book; The "man at the gate" simply gives it a look,
Then gives me the "once-over," slants at my dial,
And nods—something "clicks"—and I'm through the turnstile.

Sometimes the stile lets me into the Expo,
And then it admits me to see a good show
'Twould cost eighty "bucks" to go all through the Zone,
But I, with my photo, need not spend a "bone."

My face is my fortune. I soon would go broke,
If it were not here to support me—no joke.

No "gate man" would "pass" me with nod or with look,
Should I lose the photo upon my pass-book.
I'll carry the book back to college with me;
And then, when I take my exams, it may be
My Profs, like the "gate man," who tends the turn-stile,
Will glance at it—nod—and I'll pass with a smile

OREGON QUARTET WILL SING FRIDAY EVENING

Four Vocal Artists to Appear for First Time in Eugene at Pres- byterian Church

When the University of Oregon Quartet appears in its recital at the Central Presbyterian Church next Friday night, music lovers of Eugene will hear for the first time the Oregon Quartet in concert.

The four members are Professor Lyman, second tenor; Henry Heidenrich, second bass; Paul Sprague, first tenor; and Albert Gillette, baritone. On their recent tour in the Coos Bay country the singers took the audience "by storm," as one paper stated it. Wherever they appeared they were received with great enthusiasm and crowded houses.

Having rehearsed continually since last September, their harmony is now almost perfect. Each man will appear in solo work, and besides these there will be duets, trios ranging from the popular to the classic, and even some "opera."

* There will be a special meeting of the Student Body Friday afternoon at three o'clock for the consideration of more nominations for Student Body offices.

A feature at the University of Washington is a co-ed bowling league.

WITH STOLEN POLE IN ARM JIM HUNTS FOR CARS IN VAIN

Craving a "Thriller," He Pilfers Tom- sorial Sign; Barber is in Arms

Just naturally up against it for excitement, craving adventure in the extreme.

Such was the mental condition of one Jim Cossman, alias "Blacksmith," a Junior, found himself to be in last Monday night while strolling about Willamette street in the wee sma' hours—about 12:30 A. M.]

"So I picked up a fine big barber pole from in front of a Ninth street shop," says Jim, "put it over my shoulder and wandered up Willamette. "I took my time and looked for a cop—wanted to have keener stuff, you know. No cops heaved into sight. I even waited for 'em. The pole was heavy and I had to rest often.

"I didn't want the thing. Wednesday I told the barber about it myself, and when I told him—say! he pulled two young cannons out of his desk and proceeded to talk funny-like."

For two days the police were in hot search. It was thought that college boys had the big stick, but a clue was all the cops had.

Jim says that before the pole was taken back they took a few good pictures for next year's Oregonian, and though this was not Jim's object in getting the barber's banner, he feels that it was a good idea.

"It was sure fun," says Jim. "Never again, though—too much excitement, even if the barber did see the joke, and laughed, too."

O. A. C. AND U. OF O. PROFS TO PLAY BALL

Series of Three Games is Fixed; After Each Fray a Feast Will Be the Program

Tuesday afternoon is the time, May 18 is the date, Corvallis the place. The O. A. C. and U. of O. faculty baseball teams will clash in the first game of a series of three games.

O. A. C.'s proposition is as follows:

1. Have a series of at least two games—better still, three games. One game to be played at O. A. C., one at the University, and the third as may be decided for either place.

2. Play the first game at Corvallis on Tuesday afternoon, May 18. That is our military inspection day. The inspection will be concluded by 3:30 and it would be a good time for the game here. We would advertise the game here as a Student Loan Fund benefit and charge small admission. We will meet all the expenses of your team in coming here for the game.

3. Play the second game at Eugene at any time you may desire, and you to arrange as you desire regarding admission, etc.

4. We will try to get President Campbell and President Kerr to act as battery for the first ball, both here and at Eugene.

Since there are to be no faculty meetings until the return of President Campbell, a circular was sent out among the members of the faculty and the sentiment was found to be strongly in favor of the games.

But O. A. C.'s hospitality didn't stop at that. They invited the entire Oregon faculty to banquet with them after the game.

Now Dr. Dallenbach is busy trying to find out of there will be enough faculty members to go to Washington accepting the invitation, and if enough are interested to return the favor to the O. A. C. faculty.

Dr. Dallenbach is of the opinion that the faculty will favor the idea.

NOMINATIONS ARE MADE FOR NEXT YEAR'S STUDENT BODY DYNASTY

GLOYD DAWSON, PRENTISS BROWN, AND LAMAR TOOZE WOULD MOUNT BOYLEY'S THRONE—LESLIE TOOZE AND MAX SOMMER ASPIRE TO EMERALD EDITORSHIP

ROUND 2 SLATED FRIDAY ORATORS WAX ELOQUENT

Special Student Body Meeting Called Tomorrow at Four O'Clock For Further Pyrotechnics

No sooner were the nominations for candidates for Student Body officers for the coming year over, yesterday morning, than various students be thought themselves of their own or some un-nominated friends' fitness for a certain office. Accordingly, petitions of various kinds were freely circulating about the campus at 1:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

A special meeting, at which these further nominations will be made, will be held next Friday afternoon, May 7, at 3:00 o'clock, by virtue of a petition signed by fifteen names, asking for the same, presented to President Tom Boyley early yesterday afternoon.

Judging by the petitions in evidence Wednesday, additional nominees to be put up at the meeting Friday will include the names of Floyd Westfield, Wayne Stater and Bob Fitzmaurice for the position of manager of the Emerald, Echo Zahl for Junior woman member of the Student Council, Bob Prosser for Vice President of the Student Body, and Wilmot Foster for a Senior member of the Student Council.

SENIORS CONCOCTING DELICACY FOR PUBLIC

"Jeanette's Way" Undergoes Process of Browning in Civil Engineer- ing Building

While the political cauldron is seething on the campus, a concoction of similar tropical properties is being cooked up in the Civil Engineering building, where the Senior Play, "Jeanette's Way," is being seasoned and savored for public relish on Friday night, May 14. Don Orput in the role of chef is injecting the salacious spices, and when completed the play will be one of the best delicacies that Seniors have ever offered as their departing menu.

There are 14 in the cast, and each one handles his or her part in such a way as to smack of professional atmosphere. It is all about two Seniors in a college who indulge in an automobile party, commonly termed joy-riding, with an actress of wide fame. Unfortunately there is a wreck, due to the carelessness of Joe, who mistakes a tree for space. Nothing serious happens to the party and the event is about to pass into history; but nay, not so with pretty Jeanette, who sees an opportunity in this mishap to receive some free advertising from the newspapers. So upon the return she duly notifies the press, and the evening papers have flaring headlines about the incident. Here is where the trouble begins, for Joe has a rich uncle who is supporting him in college and knows that should this incident be disclosed to his beneficiary, who has an aversion for pranks, checks would hereafter be conspicuous by their ab-

Nominators Extol Virtues of Their Candidates—Some Offices Suffer For Lack of Woovers

By Clytie Hall.
Clayd Dawson, the new President of the Y. M. C. A., Prentiss Brown, President of the Junior class, and Lamar Tooze, Associate Editor of the Oregonian and Feature Editor of the Emerald, were nominated at the Student Body meeting yesterday morning for office of President of the Student Body. The nominations were made respectively by Peter Crockett, Anson Cornell and Anthony Jaureguy, each of whom exploited the peculiar fitness of his candidate.

Crockett pointed out that Dawson, in his Freshman year was an active member of the Laureans, and also gained the position of alternate on the debating team, which latter position he held also during his Sophomore year. "And," added Crockett, "no regular man on the team worked harder for Oregon's success than did Clayd Dawson."

Crockett went on to tell of the debating fame won by Dawson in this, his Junior year, when he has been a member of the team which defeated Montana, 2 to 1, for which he gained his "O."

The work which has been done by Prentiss Brown as President of the Junior class this year, and also his activity as a member of the football and class debating squads, was pointed out by Anson Cornell in his nomination speech for Brown.

That Lamar Tooze possesses the ideal qualities for the office was exploited by Anthony Jaureguy, as he told of the former's high moral code, of his energy, ambition and faculty for hard work. That he is held in esteem by his fellow students, Jaureguy maintained, is shown by several offices which they have given him, some of which are: member of the debating team for two years, a member of the Y. M. C. A. Cabinet for two years, and he has been appointed to a position in this body for a third year, class President during his Sophomore year, Associate Editor of the Oregonian and Feature Editor of the Emerald for the present year, and this year, also, a representative of his class in the State Oratorical Contest.

The candidates for the other office of highest importance within the gift of the Student Body, that of Editor-in-Chief of the Oregon Emerald, are Leslie Tooze, present City Editor, and Max Sommer, present Managing Editor, who were championed respectively by C. C. Baker and Leland Hendricks.

Mr. Tooze's fitness for the position lies in his familiarity with Emerald work, he having worked through the Assistant Exchange Editorship, and the editorship of the Administration department from cub reporter to city editor, and in the training gained by him in his work on larger papers, Mr. Baker said. At present, Mr. Tooze holds the position of circulation manager of the Oregonian, and the speaker stated, he has materially increased the circulation over any figure obtained in previous years. Mr. Baker added that Mr. Tooze is the oldest member, in point of service, of the present Y. M.
