Will the Faculty Recognize Student Honor?

IN GLANCING over a bulletin on the present status of the "honor system" by Professor Baldwin, of Swarthmore College, we note the following statement made by Dr. W. M. Smith, late secretary to President Campbell:

"We have not as yet established the honor system in the University of Oregon. The subject is at present being debated by the faculty, but to be of permanent help we realize that the initiative must come from the student body."

At the present time the question of an "honor system" is being investigated by a special committee of the Student Council, which is completing the work inaugurated by a committee of last year's council. If the spirit of last year's committee is any criterion of the attitude of the present investigators, the Emerald is certain that the question will receive the sanction of that body. Afer this preliminary work the question becomes merely a matter of student approval before the faculty will receive the required initiative from the student body.

The Emerald would like to "sing its song at least." In our statement of policy some isues past, we stated that we did not intend to sit on the tence on any question of general student welfare, and now is our chance to hop off the fence.

We favor the "honor system." We believe in the student body of the University of Oregon, and think that an honor basis of examinations would be welcomed by a large majority of the students. A student who is always under the watchful eye of imposed authority, whose self-inflicted duty it often is to doubt the students integrity and honor, is the very student most liable to try to slip one over on that authority. But if a system is established under which the student is treated as an honorable person, there is seldom any infringement. Moreover the system is an ideal one, in that it puts a student on his own honor, it develops a moral code that no longer sanctions any violation by any student and it awakens in the student a loyalty that is high and enduring. For these reasons we espouse the system.

But we do not believe in doing things by halves. If the honor system will work in one phase of college administration, it will work in other phases. And, conversely, if one phase of college work is put under the "dishonor system"-or we should say "discredit system"- because the faculty cannot see fit to trust the honor of the student body, then we say that no honor system will work.

The "cut system" has always been a bone of adverse contention on the part of the student body and we stand for the abolition of the combined Men's and Women's of the rule for many reasons, some of which have been stated before and some of which will be stated in the near future. One of the reasons for antagonism toward the cut system is that it does not place absenteeism on an individual honor basis. For that reason, the Emerald hopes that the Student Council will not approve Practically a new organization faces study. That the number making use the honor system unless the bill of approval contains a clause providing that the cut rule also have an honor basis and not the present dishonor basis.

The faculty states that the "honor system," in order to be of any help, must be initiated by the student body. Along the same line we would suggest that the faculty, in hearty co-operation with the student body, take the initiative in putting attendance at classes on an individual honor basis.

Patronize Emerald Advertisers.

NOW FOR a business proposition. The Emerald is the official publication of the student body, and its welfare depends on advertisers who are using the Emerald as a medium for business. On the amount of business that the Emerald can secure from its clientele—the students—for the advertisers, depends the size, quality and continuance of the publication.

There is one—and only one—way in which this can be done. Patronize Emerald advertisers, and tell them that it was through the agency of the Emerald that they got the trade. Insist that the grocery houses who supply the commestibles for fraternity tables, patronize student business-in other words, the Emerald. This is a plain "dollar and cents" proposition, and we urge cooperation 29th, Baker the 30th and Hood River from the stockholders in the Emerald.
