EXCHANGES

Five young men at the Monroe state reformatory are now studying journalism through the extension division of the University of Washington. There have been as many as seven students from the reformatory, and journalism has been the only course that they have ever desired, according to Edwin A. Start, director of the extension division.

There are more women registered in the college of pharmacy at the University of Washington than in any other similar department in the country, according to Dr. C. W. Johnson, dean. "Women are as good as men," declared Dr. Johnson yesterday, "when it comes to professional work in pharmacy. In many respects they are better. Women are successful, not only as practical pharmacists, but as bacteriologists, teachers and chemists. In the professional nursing courses which require knowledge of internal medicine, pharmacy students excel."

Carefully packed in tissue paper as if they were the softest of chocolate dainties, 24 sleek, brown mice leave the agricultural laboratory for New York University. They will be used for research work in the zoological department. Though 24 mice would call forth a riot of screams if let loose in a sorority house, still they looked as peaceful as doves, wallowing through the soft maze of shredded tissue paper in their wire cage.

Stanford University's library has acquired the 4000 book collection of year. The purchase is the most important to the Stanford library since Dr. Ewald Flugel, the well known English philologist, who died last year. The purchase is the most important since the acquisition of the Branner collection.

Moving Into New Hall Keeps Force Active

According to Superintendent Fisher, the past four months have been busy ones for him and his force of workmen about the campus. The principal cause has been the moving into Johnson hall, and the resultant rearrangement of many of the class rooms and laboratories. The regular force, without additional help, did all the moving of furniture and equipment.

Several of the driveways, notably the one passing the men's dormitory and the school of commerce building, have been regraded and rolled. The driveways are from now on to be left open to traffic.

As soon as the ground settles around the new administration building, permanent cement walks will be put in and the work of seeding the terrace begun. Many spots about the campus were reseeded during the summer.

With the institution of a prize play competition in the near future, at the University of California, efforts of campus playwrights will receive a stimulus which should result in the production of some plays of a high quality. If plans now in preparation develop, California will have a contest this winter similar to that at Harvard University.

Freshman caps of the small "postage-stamp" variety will be worn for another year, says the Student Council at the Ohio State University. Next year a new and larger style of cap will be adopted as the official mark of the first-year man.

A bureau of accuracy similar to the bureau of accuracy and fair play established two years ago by the New York World, has been instituted by The Kaimin, the semi-weekly newspaper published at Missoula by the students of the University of Montana. The object of the bureau is to promote accuracy, guarantee fair play and to correct carelessness.

quently, while Mast who also did much fine broken field running got away for a 50 yard run at one time, and had several shorter ones chalked up to his credit.

The touchdowns came in the first, second and fourth quarters, and were the result of straight football, and in no case flukes.

The Freshmen did not attempt a forward pass throughout the game, and the High school did not successfully complete one, though four were tried.

The water bucket was in evidence as usual and does not speak well for the condition of the men on either of the teams. The sun appeared once so the field was in fine condition, and the air was not too hot.

Both teams were penalized frequently for offside.

Other points of interest were: Mast was scared by a dog, that came to see the game from the field, and ran 25 yards before being caught, and the Varsity paraded about the field and rendered a few vocal selections, featuring their famous "Co-ed" song.

The officials were: Eugene, Coach Carl Fenton. Frosh Coach, Tick Malarkey. Referee, Skeet Bigbee. Head Lineman, Jim Cossman. Timekeepers, Teggert and Johns. Official Doctor, Erie Lane. Water Carrier, Bill Burgard.

Mrs. Weir, house mother of the Gamma Phi Betas, Miss Anne Dawson of Albany, Miss Anne Geiser, George Colton, '17, and Allen Russell of the Multnomah football team, were dinner guests at the Beta Theta Phi house, Sunday.

Officers will be chosen at a meeting to be held at the Kappa Alpha Theta house next Wednesday at 4 o'clock. All freshmen girls are eligible to membership.
