

JOURNALISM STUDENTS ARE ABLE TO ATTEND 'WHAT PUBLIC WANTS'

Various Classes Will View Play as Collateral to Regular Work.

(By Martha Beer) Practically the entire number of students in the journalism department will attend the play "What the Public Wants," on Friday and Saturday evenings, according to Prof. E. W. Allen, head of the department.

"The play has been assigned as collateral reading in the various journalism classes because as Professor Allen stated, "it deals with the problem of the yellow-newspaper."

The students may choose between reading the book and seeing the play.

The different classes to which the play has been assigned as collateral work will attend with different purposes in view.

The play will be of interest and importance to the editorial class because they study the philosophy, history and general principles of newspaper work, and "What the Public Wants" deals with these questions.

The freshmen class in reporting will not criticize the play but will describe the production, since they are learning, among other things, to discriminate between simple description and the expression of opinion.

Mrs. Parsons' class in criticism on the other hand, will probably be required to express critical opinions of the play.

STUNTS TO BE FEATURE OF MEN'S GLEE PROGRAM

Special stunts will be a feature on the Men's Glee Club program this year, according to Professor R. H. Lyman, director of the club. Tryouts for stunts will be held this week and next.

"The club is showing up well," Professor Lyman stated yesterday. "The men are exhibiting talent along other lines than singing. We have more "extra" talent in the club this year than we have ever had before. It will be impossible to say anything about the nature of the stunts till the tryouts are over."

"The club has possibilities," said Merlin Batley, president, "but they have to be brought out. The men are practicing every day. We are planning a concert to be given in Junction City on December 3, one week before the Eugene concert. Ho Sheng Huang, a Chinese student is working up a stunt which promises to be unique."

MORE PLANS ADVANCED FOR O. A. C.-OREGON GAME

Owing to the fact that Graduate Manager Tiffany accompanied the football team to California, and consequently could not meet with the Executive committee, a very short meeting was held Wednesday afternoon.

Ernest Watkins, manager of the Oregonians, reported the contracts let for this year's annual. He is to report progress at each regular meeting of the committee.

Some plans for the coming Oregon-O. A. C. game were discussed. It was decided to have the press box in front of the grandstand. In order to keep as many of the reserved seats as possible for the public.

A committee consisting of Wallace Eakin and Eva Brock was appointed, to investigate the matter of complimentary tickets for this game, to find out how many "comps" are to be given, and to whom. It was urged that the number be kept as low as possible.
