

C. H. WOODARD TALKS TO COMMERCIAL CLUB

Review of the Apothecary Business Is Made By Well Known Druggist.

C. H. Woodard, of Woodard Clarke Co., druggists, of Portland, Oregon, addressed the Industrial and Commercial Survey class Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Woodard told of his entrance into the drug business some 30 years ago, when strength was the chief prerequisite. Since then Mr. Woodard has worked to the top of his firm.

"The apothecary's business was very different in those times from what it is now," he said. "Then a druggist could sell morphine, strychnine and all the narcotics as he willed, while now their sale is closely regulated by federal laws from the time they come into the country until they are used by the physicians."

"No longer does the druggist pass off any adulterated drugs to the consumer but he is held to strict accountability for the purity of his wares by the federal government. The government inspects what we put into our stomach or on our bodies. Neither was much attention paid to the quality of the goods. Salesmanship consisted of selling the goods regardless of their quality."

Mr. Woodard also told of how the people were now protected against short weight by the inspection of a commission of weights and measures. He mentioned the practice of competing firms in cutting their prices even on a standard article. This was

TWO CRIPPLED CHILDREN AIDED AT WOMEN'S GYM

Triple B., a sophomore girl's society is assisting the physical training department in giving aid to two crippled children. The two little girls, Anita Martin and Viola Puissein, were sent to Portland to be operated upon by Dr. Rich, the Charity club of Eugene bearing the expenses.

Anita Martin was suffering with infantile paralysis and could not walk. Her operation proved successful and the physical training department is now teaching her to walk. Both of the children are receiving massage treatment and are taking exercise for general development according to Miss Mabel Cummings, head of the physical training department.

Members of Triple B., meet the children as they come for treatment and take them from the Springfield jitney to the gymnasium and back again after they have been treated.

done in order to lure a prospective customer into a store where perhaps he would buy other things than that for which he came. Even then they would offer a cheap substitute for the article they came for, thus cheating the customer and making useless the advertising of the company which put out the article.

At present there is a law before Congress to remedy this evil of cut prices.

SAM MICHAEL HERE AGAIN

Gave Information at Exposition, Will Go to Argentine In Spring.

Sam Michael, '15, is on the campus today visiting the "Old Bunch."

Michael who has been in charge of the information booth in the Oregon Building stopped off in Eugene last night on his way to Portland.

He said he had a good time in San Francisco with Charles Newcastle who is in charge of the horticultural exhibit, and Lee Bostwick who worked in the office. Newcastle will be back here tomorrow night.

"I did some missionary work for the University while I was down there," said Michael. "I got one sure student who will be here in February. He is a bright fellow and a graduate of the high school in Manila. He came from the Philippines for the purpose of going to school and I told him about Oregon. I don't remember his name and you'd have to sneeze to say it, but he will be here next February anyway."

"While at the fair I saw 'Weary' Chandler and his wife, from Marshfield, D. L. McDaniel and his wife, —McDaniel buys and sells wheat, Ralph Moores who was an editor of the Emerald in '11, and who is now practicing law in Salem, Norton Cowden, '14, who is in the lumber business down there, Glen Storie of the '13 class who was down from Pendleton and Cecil Cole.

"I'm going to visit Portland and will leave for Buenos Aires, Argentina, in the spring."

EPPINGRAMS

The hour was close upon midnight. The sole guest of the White Lunch was eating waffles. Mr. Eaton, the proprietor, was polishing the Rogers. The oysters were in their shells for the night. Nothing but the crabs were cracked. Only the lobsters in the window were feeling a pane. Even the bread was absorbed in the milk.

Two men entered. They seated themselves and immediately became absorbed in conversation. So intense became their interest that they unconsciously raised their voices. They were utterly oblivious of their surroundings.

"We can't have that woman around here any longer, we've got to get rid of her," fell upon the startled ears of the Sole Guest. He quickly glanced up at the two men. So wrapped up were they in conversation that they were totally unheeded of him. He edged closer and listened.

"Yes, and right away," agreed the second of the two men. "We can't lose any time. How'll we do it?"

"We might drown her in the mill race. Still, that's hardly feasible. Could Tracey knife her in that dark alley on Third street?"

"That would be too messy. He might shoot her from behind hedge. But it's got to be done, and right away too. We can't wait another day."

At this point the Sole Guest quietly slinked from his seat and carefully sidled over to Mr. Eaton. "Say," he whispered, "Those two men over

Nov. 20—HOME-COMING DAY; O. A. C.—OREGON GAME.

University of California, Nov. 1.—Confessing to a long list of burglaries, L. N. Long, '18, was placed under arrest Saturday on the charge of robbing the store of Vernon W. Peck on Shattuck avenue. He was placed under a $2,000 bond and held for trial in the Superior court of Alameda county. According to Long he made the thefts in order to maintain his extravagant social standards. The thefts are said to extend over a period of two years. They were planned systematically and netted about $50 on the average. The continued over-drawing of his bank account aroused the suspicion of the police and lead finally to his arrest.

serve, and to trade it with those men who give it to us."

On the warm solicitation of Bothwell Avison and Max Sommer, the council went on record as favoring no smoking by students on Thirteenth street, "west of the men's dormitory and east of the tennis court." "It is a public street," argued Karl Becke, "but I would favor a nice little distance reserved on each side of the passage between the buildings."

It was the sentiment of the student council that its next session should be devoted exclusively to home-coming plans.

That the Salem alumni association had met Saturday especially to boost the "big" day; that McGilchrist and Orput were doing good advertising work in their section, and that some of the fraternities had sent out upwards of 100 letters inviting guests were reported.
