

$3400 WORTH OF WORK SECURED TO STUDENTS

Campus Y. M. C. A. Rustles Jobs and Keeps Studes from Financial Stringencies.

Since the opening of the fall semester the University Y. M. C. A. has secured $3400 worth of work for University students. Not one student yet has returned home through lack of work to furnish him the wherewithal to continue his studies. The Y. M. has also conducted a book exchange which it is estimated has saved the students $800.

In order to rustle work for the students, J. D. Foster, the secretary of the association, personally interviewed the Eugene merchants in a canvass for work to keep needy students in college.

"Much of the good showing of the Y. M. C. A. for this year," says Cloyd O. Dawson, president of the Y. M. C. A., "is due to the work of Mr. Foster." Mr. Foster is a graduate of University of California and has also taken two years of graduate work in that institution. His work in California was similar to the position which he holds at Oregon.

Among the various phases of Y. M. C. A. work this year are the vocational lectures for the Oregon students. Subjects of interest as law, journalism, architecture, education, ministry, government service, medicine, compose the themes of the different lectures. Speakers for the series are prominent men in the various mentioned professions. These addresses to date have been well attended.

Vesper services with an average attendance of 400, are held on one Sunday of each month in Villard hall. This draws special speakers to the campus. Those who have spoken are: Dr. C. G. Doney, president of the Willamette University, and Bishop Walter T. Sumner.

This year special freshmen discussion groups have been organized in three of the fraternities and the dormitory. These discussions are led by faculty members. The problems discussed are social, financial and moral. More of these groups are to be organized next year.

Deputation trips of Y. M. C. A. members are taken to nearby towns. Creswell and Springfield have already received visits. Four more trips are planned before the year is completed. These will be to Cottage Grove, Medford, Roseburg, Ashland, Grants Pass, and possibly Portland. The plan is to spend the week-end in the town selected and mix socially with the people, entertain at various functions, conduct hikes and picnics of boys and girls. A Y. M. C. A. basketball team will make some of these trips. On Sunday the members of the deputation talk in the various churches. The purpose of these trips is to stimulate the moral development of the youth in the town visited and to let the people of the state know that there is a strong and progressive religious and moral influence in the University.

Plans are culminating for a social service survey to be taken of Eugene and Springfield. Bishop Walter T. Sumner will assist in arrangements for the survey.

Too Much Football Incapacitates "Anse"

Captain Cornell, Hero of Many Gridiron Battles, Is Martyr to the Cause.

Captain Anson Cornell is the man to whom we all doff our hats. He is made of the stuff Oregon men are made of, and these qualities are being continually displayed by the little midget, both on the field and classroom.

"Anse" ran into a lot of hard luck last year about the middle of the season and was laid up with a slipped cartilage and water on the knee. After Thanksgiving he had an operation performed on the injured member, and everything looked fine for him this fall. But he soon discovered that he could not play the game. There is a certain turn to the left that throws his leg out of place at every trial. He was called upon frequently to make these turns in the game, and every time the same thing happened—he had to limp to the bench.

He said he could not play. But not for an instant did he neglect his duty, as mapped out by the god of fate. Every night "Anse" stepped into his uniform and appeared upon the field with the rest of the men. He talked with the coach, and he talked with the men, and it is here that the work of the little captain was of the most value. He talks right straight from the shoulder, and says what he thinks. If he feels that the man needs a "cussin'" he gets it, and the men are growing to like it, because they realize that he can show them their weaknesses, especially in regard to feeling and doing better than they themselves can see them.

He will be seen on the diamond this year, for his injured knee does not interfere with the less strenuous game. He is captain in this branch of athletics, too, which shows how much he is appreciated. The University is going to lose a great athlete, a fine student, and a real man when Cornell is graduated this coming spring.

"A FIGHTING CHANCE," SAYS COACH OF TEAM

Frieda Goldsmith, Co-ed Hockey Mentor, Has Troubles, but Asserts, "We Will Fight."

"We have a fighting chance." This is all Frieda Goldsmith, hockey coach, would say to lay in regard to the outcome of the Oregon-O. A. C. hockey game to be played here Saturday.

"We will fight," say the local girls. But they all refused to predict the result of the game.

The personnel of the Oregon team: Esther Furuset, goal; Margaret Crosby and Hallie Hart, insides; Terressa Cox and Olga Soderstrom, wings; Jennie Hunter, Eyla Walker, and Jean Bell, half backs; Mabel Van Zante and Claire Warner, full backs; and Essie McGuire and Helen Withycombe, as substitutes.

Several changes may yet be made in the team's lineup before the end of the week. All girls who have tried out for the team are to don gym suits Saturday, and perhaps each one of them may have a chance to help Oregon win.

The co-eds have been out practicing every day, rain or shine, except yesterday, when Jupiter sent down just a little too much for the girls to make any progress on the field. However, time was not lost, for the girls were put through all sorts of strenuous gymnastic exercises in the physical corrective room. Later the off-side plays and hockey tactics were explained by the hockey coaches.

"I think our team could improve greatly. There is very little team play," said Miss Goldsmith, in speaking of the weak points of the team.

Last year the reason that both the Oregon and O. A. C. teams were victorious on their home fields was no doubt due to the difference of the fields. Last year the Corvallis team played in the college armory, which has a smooth ground, while the Oregon team played on a rough, open field. This year both teams have been playing on a rough, open field, so the Oregon team will not have this advantage over O. A. C.

The support of the entire student body is needed to help the Oregon team win. The girls say "We can play better when there is a crowd cheering us on."

Last year at Oregon-O. A. C. game at Corvallis, the armory was crowded with students and townspeople; when the return match was played in Eugene a few months later there was only a bout 25 witnesses, and some of these were but passing pedestrians. The O. A. C. girls didn't say anything, but they looked "things." On November 20, the local girls want to prove from those from Corvallis that their student body is behind them.

The student rally at Wednesday's assembly, is said to be the biggest "pep-fest" ever witnessed on the Oregon campus.

Frosh Win by Fight

Oregon became aggressive as the game wore on and in the second quarter seemed to be more than holding her own. Toward the end of this period, Tucker, a substitute playing full back, intercepted a pass and ran sixty yards through a large portion of the O. A. C. team for a touchdown. Jensen failed to convert the goal kick into the additional point.

Earlier in the quarter an O. A. C. man picked up a fumble and scored a touchdown, but was brought back on account of running out of bounds. Barber, who had been playing a fast and brilliant game for the Frosh, was disqualified on this play for tackling the runner behind the goal line. Besides the loss of this man Oregon was penalized half the distance to their own goal.

Oregon was on the offensive during the larger part of the third quarter but the strain of the one-sided fight the boys were putting up began to tell before they changed goals for the final division of the contest. Several substitutes were sent in and a careful defensive game begun.

Here the superior condition of the Aggies began to tell and they once had the Oregon goal in serious danger, only to be held on down. Oregon now took to punting on first down and playing with only a view toward safety. At the very end of the period the Aggies attempted to punt. Even as the ball was passed Piel, Oregon tackle, broke through the line, blocked the kick, recovered it, and sped for a touch down across the clear field between him and the goal line. As the play had started before the whistle was blown the score was allowed. The goal was not kicked.

The game was one of the scrappiest and hardest ever seen on Kincaid field. It was simply a case of nerve, fight and the right winning in a righteous cause against heavy odds.

The Oregon lineup was Cook, Barbour and McKinney, ends; Johns, Watkins and Piel, tackles; Brown, Skidmore, Earl and Clubb, guards; Downard, center; Jensen and McDonald, halves; Holcomb, full; Tucker, full.
