

PROF. YOUNG GIVES OUT ECONOMIC COURSES

Advanced Class in Practical Training in Public Service Included.

Two advanced courses in economics, theory and two courses planned to give practical training in public and social service respectively will be offered for the first time in the department of Economics and Sociology next semester.

Economic and Social Reconstruction. The existing economy and social order in all advanced nations does not yield the largest measure of human welfare. Much in humanity and waste characterize it. These social conditions will be analyzed with the view of applying most hopeful remedies based upon most approved principles of individual and social welfare.

This will be a two hour course given on Tuesday and Thursday at 9 o'clock by Prof. Young, head of the department of economics. The pre-requisite will be the course in the Principles of Economics.

Theory of Economic Thought

2. Another course in economical theory will be one by Dr. J. H. Gilbert dealing with the history of economic thought. It will trace the evolution of modern economic thought from the first crude beginnings, found in the works of Plato and Aristotle with considerable attention to the contribution of the church fathers during the middle ages. Special attention will be given to the work of Adam Smith and the classical school. The course will take the steps by which the teachings of the school were undermined at many points and the manner in which soundness of the classical doctrine was affected by changes in industrial organization. How the theories of the economists were inflamed by current economic life and problems and the influence which these teachings in turn excited on the economic policy of the nation will be kept in mind at every point. The class will be asked to estimate the extent to which these earlier economists foreshadowed the orthodox views of contemporary economic thought. The course will be open only to those who have had at least two courses in economics including the principles. Class will meet at eleven on Tuesday and Thursday.

State Officials to Lecture

As the initial step in the plan of the department to provide adequate training for the main lines of public service, a course on the economics of state administration has been arranged. State officials representing the different departments of state administration have generously promised to lecture on functions of their respective departments, and to point out the relation of each line of state government activity to the public welfare.

This course is designed to meet the needs of juniors and seniors majoring in economics and in commerce sociology. It will be particularly valuable for the juniors in economics as a preparation for their last thesis work. Furthermore the course brings the activity of the University into closest living relation with the vital public affairs of the people of the state. It adds another feature toward rounding out the unique commonwealth service of the department.

Correction of Charities

The second course in practical training will be in charities and corrections, a study of the so-called delinquent and defective classes. It is especially valuable for persons interested in social service activities. The main features include a study of the extent, causes and remedies for poverty, feeble-mindedness, alcoholism, and dependent children, including a general consideration of such institutions as the county poor farm, state hospital for defective, and state and private schools for the care of homeless children, as well as a study of approved methods in charity organization.

An interesting feature of the course will be that specialists who are actively engaged in social service work in Oregon will appear before the class, giving accounts of specific conditions within the state. These speakers will include some of the best known social workers in the northwest. Charity and corrections is but the initial step in giving a series of courses in the department of Economics and Sociology, covering the entire field of social service. An introductory course is offered at this time in order that students will be able to avail themselves of the more advanced work along the same line which will be offered next year. All juniors and seniors are eligible to the class, as well as sophomores who are taking the Principles of Economics. The time of meeting of the class is Tuesday and Thursday at 9 o'clock. If a sufficient number of students who are qualified for the work can be found, a special course in criminology will also be given.

began to play, and put up one of the most remarkable guarding games yet seen. In the last half the Dorm team did not get a single open shot at the basket; there was always a man there to spoil the shot, either by taking the ball away or by knocking it out of the man's hand just as he shot. Farley went out of the game about the middle of the half with a twisted foot, and after he was off the floor the Dorm team was gone. Dolph grabbed most of the points for his team.

COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY TO BE ASSEMBLY EXHIBIT

Negatives of Oregon Scenery Made By New Process for Reproduction in Natural Colors

A stereopticon lecture on the "Wonder Color Pictures" of Oregon will be given at assembly Wednesday, January 26, by Henry Berger, Jr., and Frank Ives Jones, photographers, of Portland, authors of the photographs. Pictures of the Columbia gorge and highway, Crater lake, and Oregon's snow-capped mountains are some of the views that will be shown.

These pictures, which were made by the new Paget process of direct color photography, reproduce the true natural coloring and when thrown upon the screen look like the original scene. They are highly endorsed by every one who has seen them.

The "Moving Picture World" for August 7, 1915, says: "Natural slides are startling. Messrs. Berger and Jones have been experimenting with the Paget process of natural color photography and have improved upon the original invention with results heretofore thought impossible."

Frank Branch Riley, president of the Mazamas, requested the Commercial club of Portland that its entire advertising fund of $20,000 could well be spent in sending these pictures throughout the United States.

President P. L. Campbell, who saw the pictures in Portland a few months ago, thought them so wonderful that he immediately made arrangements with Berger and Jones to exhibit the views at the University.

Governor James Withycombe, General George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama canal, and President William Foster of Reed college say that they are the most wonderful color pictures they have ever seen.

On February 9, Messrs. Berger and Jones will exhibit the "Wonder Color Pictures" at the National Chamber of Commerce convention in Washington, D. C. An arrangement will be made also for the showing of the pictures to the representatives in congress in behalf of the movement for the Mount Hood highway.

After the exhibition in Washington,

IN THE "TYPHOON"

WALKER WHITESIDE in "The Typhoon" at Eugene theatre, Thursday night.

When Walker Whiteside comes to Eugene on Jan. 27, with his incomparable production of "The Typhoon," he will bring with him the identical company that has made so greatly for the renown of a wonderful play with which there is really no comparison. In the introduction of new types of character no play the stage has known in more than twenty years may bring a thought of singular newness. The inscrutable Japanese are visualized as never before, and their workings through channels hitherto brought seldom to mind, are brought boldly to light in this deeply interesting drama. "The Typhoon" is a very big play, and is coming to mark a distinct event. A capacity house should greet it. Paid Adv.

Mr. Berger and Mr. Jones will show their pictures in a hundred or more cities in the east in a tour under the auspices of the Portland Ad club and the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Berger for many years has been an exhibitor at American and European photographic art exhibits and has won medals at Dresden and Budapest. He won a gold medal for his work at the Panama-Pacific International exposition, San Francisco.

An exhibit of Mr. Jones' was judged to be the best at the 1915 Exposition of Photographic Industries held in New York.

The entire assembly hour Wednesday will be given for the exhibition of the color pictures. Everyone is requested to be in the assembly hall promptly at 10 o'clock, as the doors will be closed at that time. A pre-requisite agreement was made with Berger and Jones that there would be absolutely no light let in on the pictures during the lecture. All professors are urged to dismiss their classes promptly at 9:50.

Of the thirty men recently elected Phi Beta Kappa at Harvard, four are prominent athletes.
