NORTHWESTERN U. ALUMNI START UNION CAMPAIGN

The alumni of the Northwestern university are planning a nation-wide union on May 26, 1916. This date is to be known as Northwestern Night, and reunions are to be held wherever three or four Northwestern men or women can be gathered together.

The purpose of the Northwestern Alumni Journal is stated to be to print regularly a quarterly review of the life and growth of the university; news from Northwestern clubs and associations of all schools; an authentic record of college sports; a compact digest of the actions of the board of trustees; reports of the president, business manager and important committees; articles of general interest regarding Northwestern graduates in the public eye; a record of literary productions of Northwestern graduates and faculties; and reviews of more important works.

MANY U. O. GRADUATES ARE OUT FOR OFFICE

Multnomah County Leads in Number; Alumni From '93 to '13 in Race.

Numerous Oregon graduates are candidates for nomination for state and district offices at the coming primaries. Men who made their degrees at the University from 1893 clear up to 1913, men who earned but one title and those that have a list following their name, are all out for honors.

The fact that Oregon's enrollment has always been fattened more by Multnomah county than by any other is shown in the proportion of candidates of that county. Fourteen at least are from Multnomah; others come from Clackamas, Lane, Umatilla and other counties.

The following is a full list of the candidates, so far as notices have been received, with the office sought and the counties:

Arthur C. Spencer, '95, Multnomah county, delegate-at-large.

Clarence R. Hotchkiss, '11, Multnomah county, delegates from third district.

C. N. McArthur, '01, Multnomah county, representative in congress, Third district.

John P. Kavanaugh, '93, Multnomah county, circuit judge, Fourth district, department No. 1.

Robert S. Farr, '97, Multnomah county, state senator, Thirteenth district.

A. H. Burton, '12, Multnomah county, representative, Seventeenth district.

John F. Cahalin, '05, Multnomah county, representative, Eighteenth district.

Virgil L. Clark, '07, Multnomah county, representative, Eighteenth district.

Franklin F. Korell, '10, Multnomah county, representative, Eighteenth district.

K. K. Kubli, '93, Multnomah county, representative, Eighteenth district.

John R. Latourette, '07, Multnomah county, representative, Eighteenth district.

Fred S. Salway, '08, Multnomah county, representative, Eighteenth district.

Carlton E. Spencer, '13, Multnomah county, representative, Eighteenth district.

Walter H. Evans, '05, Multnomah county, district attorney.

Homer I. Watts, '03, Umatilla county, district attorney.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IN CARMEN AT SAVOY THEATRE THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY Admission Matinee . . . 5c and 10c Evenings . . . 5c and 15c

The philosophy of—or rather the philosophy about—Charlie Chaplin is peculiar and paradoxical. We have an excellent friend, a big, rough, jovial man, just the sort of human being to appreciate Chaplin's drama. But he doesn't.

We have another friend who is a highly cultured and scholastic gentleman of literary tastes, a lover of antiques and all that sort of esthetic stuff. He should dislike Chaplin. But he doesn't. He confesses that he enjoys him immensely and sees his pictures every chance he can get.

So there you have the Chaplin philosophy. There is a reason why one comedy is funny and another is not, though they may be nearly alike. And that reason Charlie Chaplin has discovered and is cashing in. It is obvious that he not only knows what will make people laugh but he knows why they laugh at it—which is more than most comedians can say.
