WHEN TO PACK TRUNK AND COME TO COLLEGE IS TOLD TO PREPPER

University Bulletin Says When Boys Learn Work Is Agreeable, Time to Enter.

Cost of Living Is Discussed;
Booklet May Be Had at Registrar's Office.

New indication that education doesn't all come out of books, or pocket books, was seen yesterday morning when there arrived on the campus the copies of "Shall I Be an Educated man?" the latest University bulletin.

Eight thousand copies of this booklet have been printed and will be sent to seniors of all high schools in the state, to inquiring students anywhere, and to any others who ask in time. The booklet was written in the school of journalism.

The principal divisions of the college education problem are presented: I. Who should go to a university and why? II. University of Oregon courses and their vocational possibilities. III. The cost of life at the University of Oregon.

"As soon as the high school boy gets it into his head that study is after all agreeable, that freedom is for use and not abuse, and that work brings far greater and more enduring happiness than lazy luxury—then that boy should pick his university and pack his trunk," says the booklet.

To show how the University of Oregon might well be the university our boy picks—or our girl—the work of its seven professional schools and 21 departments is outlined.

"What will it cost?" asks the high school student, or his father. And the third division of the booklet offers figures on this. "There are students who spend more than $500 in a college year," it states, "but they do not need to. A student who 'batches' and manages well can get through on as little as $275 and not live too meanly, if he be thrifty." The average, however, is put at $400. Those expenses which are sure as death are itemized, and others estimated. Specific cases of students who make their way in whole or in part are cited. A special effort seems to have been made not to minimize expenses or magnify the elasticity of money at the University.

One of the most attractive things about the booklet is the variety and excellence of its cuts, and its typographical quality. The mill race "At dear old Oregon" is seen, suitably paged across from a stack of tomes in the library. J. D. Foster is pictured enshrined in his "emporium" at the Y. M. C. A. Physical education shows up in outdoor sports for both men and women, women for once getting more space. There are inside and outside views of many of the fraternity houses, of the museums, of the backs and shirt-sleeves of the type-setters in the typographical department, and of the new school of education building now being erected.

The bulletin is printed in Caslon monotype face, and was published in Portland. Sideheads on the pages serve as index and explanation.

Junior week-end visitors may obtain extra copies from Registrar Tiffany.

GAMMA PHIS ADD TO FUND.
Gamma Phi Beta added the fourth of her annual $25 gifts to the woman's building, Wednesday. In 1913, the sorority pledged herself to give this sum annually till the completion of the woman's building. Miss Guppy says the total amount of the fund is now $1,085.68, but that it will reach $1,100 before June.

NEW FEATURE ADDED FOR COMMENCEMENT

Seniors Will Hand Over Traditions to Juniors; Commencement Forecast Is Given.

For the first time in the history of the university the senior class will officially hand down Oregon traditions and customs to the custody of the junior class and will smoke the pipe of peace with the third year classmen. The event is to be staged late Friday evening, June 2, on either Kincaid field or on the baseball diamond.

The seniors in Indian blankets will squat around a campfire and back of them will be the juniors. A speech by Leslie Tooze will open the ceremonies, followed with a response by an unofficial junior. After the speech making, Merlin Batley, president of the senior class, will officially transfer the University custodies and traditions to the president of next year's senior class, who will be elected sometime before commencement. After this the presidents and members of the two classes will smoke the pipe of peace.

The senior class hopes to inaugurate this ceremony as an annual commencement event, as it is followed at the University of Wisconsin and many other colleges.

This year's commencement, which will commemorate the fortieth anniversary of the University, is expected to have the largest attendance in the history of the institution. Many of the old graduates are expected back, and as the undergraduates' examinations have been postponed until after graduation the student body will also be present.

Another new feature of commencement is the definite placing of Alumni day on the program. This will be held Saturday.

Stephen B. L. Penrose, president of Whitman college, Walla Walla, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning June 4, and Professor Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Leland Stanford university will deliver the graduation address Monday, June 5.

The program for commencement is as follows:

- Friday, June 2!
