TO THE EMERALD STAFF

Now that the organization has worked into some semblance of form and the work is getting well started it may be well to offer a few words of explanation as to the system of rewards.
In the first place work and ability are the criterions upon which all rewards will be based. And unless these two demands are complied with no worker on the Emerald—high or low—will be sure of his place.
In the second place the system of choice will be just. It makes no difference who you are, you have just as good chance as any other. An accurate account is now being kept of all work done and there will be no guess work when the final staff is chosen and announced.
You wonder at times just what you are accomplishing and just what good you are getting out of all the work. And when you are under stress you may say "What's the use." But it all depends upon yourself just what you accomplish. If you are in the game for ambitious purposes both while in and out of college you are surely on the right track by making your services worth while on the Emerald. It is a mistake to think you can wait until you are a junior or senior before you try. Then it will be too late and you will not have had the preparation necessary to hold the position you may want.
There is some freshman, some sophomore and some junior working on the Emerald now who is going to persistently keep at the game until by the time he or she is a senior that person will be editor of the Emerald. Is that person you?

PROBATION FOR THE FRESHMEN

Peremptory retribution should come to those freshmen who violated the sacred traditions of the campus by painting their class numerals last night on the sun dial, the senior bench, and the Oregon seal by Villard. It is well they showed some alacrity in washing these numerals off early this morning. But they have not yet paid the penalty their deed deserves. Hazing is not to be recommended—but there is punishment that may be just as severe.
Some leniency may be exercised in the voluntary willingness and readiness of the freshmen in undoing what was done in the wee sma' hours of the morning. They had barely gone to bed before they were summoned to undo their work. But let them understand that from now on they are on probation and let them ponder well on that word "probation."

REGISTRATION SIGNIFICANCE

There is a good deal of significance in the registration mark reached by the University to date. With the closing of the books Friday night the total enrolled in the college of Liberal Arts was 871 or lacking seven of being the total enrolled for the two semesters of last year. Should the enrollment go the second semester of this year as it did the second semester of last year the enrollment of the University for the year in the College of Liberal Arts will exceed 1,000. This is in excess of the most sanguine expectations.
On the other hand press reports from Oregon Agricultural College show that there on the second day of registration 735 had registered. This number is below that reached on the registration books here on the second day, and is 140 below the University mark to date.

These comparative figures are not printed as a matter of gloating pride but for the significance they bear in the popular favor the University seems to be creating. That honorable fight the University so recently made for its very existence is now bringing in its reward in a stable and substantial growth.

RALLY NEXT WEDNESDAY

As far as the freshmen are concerned the Oregon Spirit is a myth. As yet there has not been a gathering of the rosters; no mass fests nor a rally where they have had a chance to come into contact with that "something" that makes Oregon famous.

We may dissertate for hours upon the achievements of the Spirit. We may convince by this dissertation the hearers who are taken for granted as freshmen that such a Spirit should be theirs but it will take a little seance to make them actually know that there is a Spirit and that for Oregon to maintain its past record they must absorb a part of it.

A little seance is due next Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. The place is in Villard Hall at the regular assembly hour. This is the first student rally of the year and EVERYONE should be out. The first game is coming the 7th of October and this rally will be just a week before the game. The team will be there and "Bez" with his "great state." There will be yelling, singing and band music.

And when that rally is over next Wednesday morning if every freshman in this University does not know what the great Oregon Spirit is he should seek solace in Doc Yak's car with the rest of the bats and owls.

"A hunch for an editorial" we read on a note dropped in our pocket. The hunch is to save the pennies in order to go to the Washington State game with the Varsity in Portland next month. Wise idea that but who will contribute the first penny?

The freshman is nobody's fool. But then it is well he thinks so for it is a compliment to the upper classmen.

WOMEN PAY OWN EXPENSES

Nineteen University Women Entirely Self-Supporting; Five Freshmen.

Approximately one-fourth of the 355 women students now registered in the office of the dean of women are either wholly or partially independent. Of the 19 who are entirely self-supporting, five are freshmen. Seventy earn part of their expenses.

Places of employment have been found for all with no difficulty. Eugene homes offer general housework, and fraternity houses need girls to wash dishes, serve table and care for linen. Stenography and bookkeeping in the University offices, and the caring for faculty children also offer a generous supply of work.

Some of the women, however, are putting themselves through by additional work done previous to coming to the University.

RALLY WILL BE HELD.

A student body rally will be held next Wednesday during the assembly hour and the following week the hour will be devoted to class meetings.

Possible assembly speakers to follow include Dr. Percival Lowell, founder of the Lowell observatory and sponsor for the theory that Mars is inhabited, and Dr. Charles Fletcher Dole who has written articles on the Haitian Protectorate.

FRESHMEN GET NEW UNIFORMS

No hand-me-down uniforms for this year's freshmen football team. Instead, they will get new pads and grey jerseys and maroon socks to match.

Bovard now holds the position of faculty advisor which place Dr. Conklin resigned.

SAFE.

"Are we going anywhere this evening, dear?"
"No love."
"Is anyone likely to come to see us?"
"I hardly think so. The weather is so disagreeable that everybody will be glad to stay at home."
"In that case you may pass the onions."
