

OREGANA WORK STARTS

Editor Calls Staff Meeting for September 26.

Writing to Be Done This Fall; Many New Campus Pictures Secured.

Work on this year's Oregana will be started with a meeting of the entire staff on Tuesday, September 26, at seven o'clock at the Gamma Phi Beta house. The vacancies left by Juanita Wilkins and Roberta Killam will be filled by Marion Tuttle and Geanette Calkins. Charles Dundore will take Clark Thompson's place as assistant manager.

Almost all of the writing will be done this fall so that the work will be lighter in the spring. "The book will be full of new pictures of the campus," says Emma Wootton, editor-in-chief. ### OFFER ADVANCED DANCING

Miss Goldsmith to Conduct Classes for Those With Previous Training.

A course in advanced dancing is being offered by Miss Frieda Goldsmith, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 2 o'clock. Although this work presupposes at least a year's previous training, twenty girls have already enrolled in the class.

"The aim of this course," said Miss Goldsmith, "is to develop interpretive dancing." No definite type of aesthetic dancing is planned; merely those dances are to be taught which will help the girls best to secure true feeling in their individual interpretation of the dance.

An exhibition is to be offered in the spring by the girls in this class who will also appear in the pageant which the physical training department plan to present later in the year.

The costumes will be modeled after the pure Greek style and according to Miss Goldsmith, no other university has ever employed the particular type of gown she plans to use. A dull green crepe, modeled along the graceful Greek lines, seems to Miss Goldsmith an appropriate costume to display the dancing of the girls to the best advantage, and to give a distinctive and truly "Oregon" touch.

JUNIOR HIGH MOVES SOON

First Floor of Educational Building Will Be Ready for Occupancy Monday.

The first floor of the educational building is now practically completed but the second and third floors will not be ready for occupancy before October 1, according to Ormand Bean, architect in charge.

This makes it possible for the junior high school, which will occupy the first floor, to move into its new quarters at once. However, it is probable that this will not be done for another week on account of the dampness of the new building and the lack of heating facilities.

The educational department, the law school and library, and the extension department will occupy the second and third floors but will not move in until the acceptance of the building by the University authorities.

Work began on the building April 12 and was to have been completed by the opening of the school year but due to rain and the delay in arrival of material this was impossible. The structure is located at 13th and Kincaid streets and is being built at a cost of $40,000. Furniture will cost an additional $8,000.

TENNIS PROSPECTS GOOD

Bond Brothers Are Back. Material Looks Promising, Says Captain Bond.

Prospects for a winning varsity tennis aggregation this year are most encouraging. So says Lewis Bond, captain of last year's team, who has been following and encouraging prospective players this fall.

Many of the men who tried out last year are back in school. Among these are Roscoe Hurd and Walter Church who made strong bids for the team last year. Lawrence Herschner, winner of the freshman tournament last spring, is another promising aspirant. Mr. Bond also expects to see George Wright, ineligible up to this time, make a strong try for the team.

Although freshmen are not permitted on the varsity team, there will be held at the beginning of next semester a freshmen tournament in order that material for next year's team may be inspected. Mr. Bond says that it will take a very strong collection of players to defeat the University of Washington, whose team will be much better than it was last spring.

The only members of last year's team who remain for the coming tryout are Captain Bond and his brother, Paul Bond.

NOTHING LEFT.

He—Well—er—really, dear—
She—Oh, you can leave out the swear words.

MISS FOX EXPLAINS RULE

Exact Interpretation of Rule Number 4 of Series Is Made Clear.

As a number of students have questioned Miss Elizabeth Fox, dean of women, concerning the meaning of rule number four in the series which she has compiled, she wishes to explain. The rule reads: "Parties may be given on Friday and Saturday nights and nights preceding holidays only. They shall end by 11:30 p. m."

The question is in regard to the hour 11:30 p. m. The interpretation given by Miss Fox is: "For informal parties 11:30 means everything over, refreshments, dancing, etc., and the guests away from the house. For formal parties 11:30 means the beginning of the end. The closing of the party shall approximate 11:30 so that everything will be over by 12:00. This means lights out, the gym or hall ready to close, and students started for their residences." The rules were printed in Tuesday's Emerald.

been based on shallow and insufficient evidence and that fair investigation would in most cases have proved them groundless; also that the women's fraternities are earnestly endeavoring to carry on rushing by fair and authoritative methods," wrote Mrs. Allen in her report to the University Pan-Hellenic association today.

Saturday morning for Vivian Palette, of Portland, and Anne Dawson, of Albany. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis F. Lawrence, of Portland were guests of Mrs. Mabel Holmes Parsons during the past week. To welcome the students of the University each of the local churches entertained on Friday evening. The receptions lasted throughout the evening, though at some, programs were carried out. It was a most hospitable and generous thing to do and every student in the University is grateful for it, especially the homesick freshmen to whom University life is new and strange. Belle Massick of Baker was pledged Chi Omega this week. Mildred Pegg, Chi Omega, will spend the week-end in Portland. Kappa Kappa Gamma honored their new pledges with a dance on last Saturday evening.
