

Who Got the Hook? Is a Chain a Handcuff or a Hauser?

John DeWitt Gilbert
When a fellow is inseparably connected with a ball and chain it can hardly be said that he is there for the purpose of keeping it from taking flight.

His mother would be apt to say, "Dear Willie is busy guarding the munitions", His judges would be more apt to say, "Give Bill the canno ball."
"Give Bill the canno ball."

When one sees a dozen or more big huskies representing the University of Washington attached to a large and unmistakable hook with tough tin ribbons it seems unlikely indeed that they are attempting to keep the little treasure from eloping.

The gang who wear the "purp" upon their heads say, "Washington has the historic emblem." We, who of course see such things with an impartial and unbiased eye, acclaim, "Washington sure got the hook."

The Washington rooters had a likeable football team. In fact, they resisted so determinedly that the long-anticipated bouncing was postponed until next year when the two elevens will have another argument. Start praying now, ye sons of the lemon-yellow, that the hosts of Gideon Bezdek may then prevail against the monster when they invade his country and pursue him even into his burrow.

The Washington dean of women was unable to accompany the special train which carried the rooters, but sent a chaperone in her place who boasted while en route that she was "blind and deaf and dumb"—all of which is just as it should be.

Some of the Washington laddies became confused at the dance because of the custom here of the various sisterhoods preempting a corner of the hall wherein they hold forth and whence all pardners seek their queens of love and beauty. Up north they hang cards about the hall labeled, A-E, F-J, and so on through the alphabet. When a swain wishes to find a girl whose name is written on his program he seeks for her near the card under whose category she belongs by right of the pin she wears.

Don't get the cerebral impression that we are criticising Washington or that we are even casting jests in their path. That university has a fine football team, a lot of pretty girls and a good gang of rooters. They treated us very nicely when on their little visit and we're figuring on giving them the same dose when we go up there next year. There is just going to be one little difference. We are going to wrap our trip up in a victory for Oregon instead of just trying it with the twine of two zeros.

BEZDEK AND DIETZ SAY "HARD BATTLE"

W. S. C. Loses Three Old Men From Last Season's Lineup.

Beckett's Men in Good Condition; Monteith Has Hurt Knee.

The contest next Saturday between the football machines of the University of Oregon and Washington State College promises to be the classic of the year in northwest football. Both teams will enter the game determined to win and the result should be a battle royal.

The last time these two teams clashed Coach Bezdek's crew came out at the little end of a 28-3 score. Although it was the first season at Pullman for Coach "Lonestar" Dietz, he had developed a machine that tore the lemon-yellow line for big gains.

This year, however, he has suffered the loss of three of his last season's stars. Dietz, fullback and punter on last year's squad, graduated as did Applequist, all star tackle, and Captain Clark, center and tackle. With nine old men back, however, Coach Dietz has developed a team which promises to give the Webfooters their hardest struggle of the year.

Recent stories from the Pullman camp tend to give a gloomy aspect to the college's chances for victory. Loomis and Zimmerman, star ends, are rumored to be injured and doubt is expressed as to the likelihood of their recovery in time for the contest Saturday. Zimmerman, who was selected on the mythical all-star team last year as the star end in northwest circles, is expected to be in condition to play next Saturday in spite of the bear stories radiating from the Washington camp. Finney, right guard, who was also reported injured, is expected to be back in a suit by the middle of the week.

In the face of these reports from the northern camp there is still gloom at football headquarters on the Varsity campus. The team has not yet recovered from the battle of last Saturday and is in the first real slump of the year. The physical condition of the men is good except for Monteith who is suffering from a bruised knee. According to Coach Bezdek, "The team must get going or we are due for a beating next Saturday. It will be the hardest game of the year and we should be in the best possible shape to win. The enemy has a strong team of veterans with a strong attack in all departments of the game."

"All in all, the outlook next Saturday is far from bright and unless the unexpected happens the contest will be one of the hardest games of the season with chances that W. S. C. will get the big end of the score."

BUILDING COMPLETED

Education Hall Finished and Ready for Inspection.

Department of Education Will Move to Its New Home the Coming Week-End.

The new Education Hall is at last complete. All that remains to do is to inspect it and it will be ready for occupancy.

It has been reported many times during the past three weeks that the department of education would move into their home soon, but something has constantly delayed the completion of the building. Now as soon as the inspector can leave the election bulletins long enough to examine it the department will move. Dr. Sheldon, dean of education, thinks it not unlikely that it will be ready this week-end.

TO ARRANGE DEBATES

Forensic Council Decides on Dual Meets.

O. A. C. Refuses to Enter Triangle With Reed College.

At a meeting of the Forensic Council, yesterday it was decided to arrange a dual debate with O. A. C., and a separate meet with Reed College. Manager W. L. Myers had endeavored to arrange a triangle between the three state colleges; but much to the surprise of all those interested in forensics, O. A. C., refused to enter into a league with the Portland school. The standing of Reed College in debate is unusually high. Reed concentrates all her student interest in this field rather than in athletics. Oregon will have a strong team to face in taking on this new dual contest.

The Forensic Council also turned down a triangular arrangement between O. A. C. and Washington State College. The expenses of the teams are high this year and the council felt that preference ought to be given to a state college. So arrangements will be made with Reed and not Washington.

The same financial difficulty made the council veto a co-ed debate with Washington State.

Plans were discussed relative to the arousal of more interest in home debates. Coach Prescott, Earl Fleischman, and Rosalind Bates were appointed a committee to arrange a system of intra-mural debates. The committee will work along three lines; first, debates between classes; debates between fraternities and contests between the various schools on the campus, such as a debate between the school of law, and that of commerce, or a contest between a team representing the school of journalism, and the educational department.

MUCH PASTE USED.

Miss Sylvia Rowland of the University library is kept busy three hours a day wielding the paste brush. As a result of this labor there are now 25 empty paste jars ready to be given away, thrown away, or donated to some cause.

Specials to Carry.

have several hundred high school students of Portland at the game Saturday to root for Oregon. They will meet at Washington and Broadway also, and go to the field with the lemon-yellow and green contingent.

Selling Programs.

Credit association through its secretary, I. T. Nicklin, agreed that there should be no objection from that body. At last night's meeting a letter from Mr. Nicklin was read in which it was stated that the association had at no time even considered granting a card of endorsement to the enterprise.

It was at last decided that the matter should be taken under consideration, that a complete report of the effect which the sale of space may have had on the Emerald advertising should be made and the plan of action finally settled at the next meeting of the student council in two weeks.

The resignation of George Colton as manager of the Emerald at first presented a problem, for no one was quite certain about the procedure for naming his successor. It was found by President Jaureguy that the election was left to the council and Burle Bramhall was unanimously elected.

The Homecoming day luncheon was a financial success according to the report of Jeanette Wheatley, general chairman of the affair. Miss Wheatley said that all but $16.83 had been already paid and that this amount would be paid by the subscriptions of the fraternities and sororities.

Miss Maud Powell appeared before the council asking that steps be taken to have the orchestra made a student body activity. The council will consider an amendment at the next meeting to be submitted at the student body meeting in December. The reasons advanced by Miss Powell were that the students in this line of work felt that the co-operation with the rest of the student body would be desirable and that some sort of recognition was earned by the players.

It was announced that a movement is on foot which may terminate in an amendment to the constitution providing for a change in the administration of the finances of the Women's League. The movement has not taken definite shape as yet but it will probably involve the taking of fifty cents from each student tax paid by women to be placed in a separate fund and to be handled by a board.

The following members were present last night: Nicholas Jaureguy, Karl Becke, Ernest Watkins, George Cook, Harold Hamstreet, Fred Kiddle, Floyd Westerfield, Ray Couch, Frances Shoemaker, Jeanette Wheatley, Jennie Huggins and Harold Tregilgas.
