

DEAN FOX ENTERTAINS.

Dean Elizabeth Fox will entertain Triple B girls at her apartments at Bartle Court next Tuesday from 4:30 to 6 p. m.

As many girls as possible are urged to be present, as the plans for the year will be discussed and especially the plans for social service work for Thanksgiving. College songs will add to the enjoyment of the occasion and girls that have ukuleles are asked to bring them.

COMMITTEE HAS PARTY.

A get-together party of the house committee of the Y. W. C. A. met at the home of Ruth Westfall, 1412 Pearl street, November 9. Refreshments were served and the committee discussed plans for the rest of the year.

RAILROAD ROILED BY STUDENT ROD RIDERS

Declares Oregon and O. A. C. Students Cause Company Much Trouble.

Many Beat Their Way to Other Towns to See the Games.

Students of the University of Oregon and of the Oregon Agricultural College are causing the railroad companies a good deal of worry, according to reports which have come in. In a letter received by Karl Onthank, secretary to President Campbell, F. L. Burckholtz, superintendent of the Southern Pacific company, says that whenever there is college meet in any other town along the coast that students beat their way from one point to another.

Mr. Burckholtz says, "Whenever there is any college or athletic event in other cities, it seems to be the practice of a large number of the students to beat their way from one point to another on our lines. We have warned them through the medium of the newspapers, and have had occasion to put quite a few of them off of the trains, but the practice still continues.

"You no doubt recall the accident at Oregon City on the occasion of the Oregon Agricultural College and the University of Nebraska game, at which time there were no less than 24 young men who beat their way from Albany to Portland. A number of them went to Oregon City, and while attempting to board the train there, one young man fell under the wheels, badly injuring his foot.

"We feel that you can assist very materially in our efforts to break up this practice, which, to say the least, is very dangerous and entirely unbecoming to University students.

Mr. Onthank said that he could not see why it is that the students will take the chances that are incurred from such adventures. "It will not only give the University a bad name throughout the state, but it is liable to cause a good deal of trouble should any of them get hurt," he said.

"The University is doing all that it can to discourage the practice taken up in the letter of Mr. Burckholtz, and it is taking steps to prevent the boys from beating their way about the country on the trains."

It is the plan of Mr. Onthank to cooperate with the railroad people in the hopes of putting a stop to such practices in the future.

Mr. Onthank is asking the railroad company to suggest means of stopping the "beating" practice.

OREGANA STAFF TO MEET

Plans Maturing, According to Editor Wootton; Appoint Dolph's Successor.

The Oregana staff will meet on Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the Kappa Sigma house. This will be the third meeting this year. Emma Wootton, editor of the Oregana, urges that all members be present.

The departure of Jack Dolph for Akron, Ohio, left a vacancy in the feature department of the Oregana. Adrienne Epping, head of the department, has not as yet chosen Dolph's successor. The matter will be discussed at the meeting on Tuesday night.

"There is no lack of material for the Oregana," said Miss Wootton. "The different departments are collecting pictures and write-ups for each section. We are also receiving the publications printed by other universities, and are taking notes on them."

CHAMBERLAIN TO BE ASSEMBLY SPEAKER

Oregon's Senior Senator to Lecture on Universal Military Service.

Will Try to Create Interest in Military Affairs Among Students.

Senator George E. Chamberlain, chairman of the senate committee on military affairs and Oregon's senior senator, will speak on "Universal Military Service" at assembly Wednesday, November 15, announces Karl W. Onthank, secretary to President P. L. Campbell. Mr. Onthank says that Senator Chamberlain is well fitted to speak on military matters as he has made a deep study of them for some time.

He is very much interested in military training in the universities, and has been using all his influence during the past year to secure an army officer for the University of Oregon, but has been unable on account of the present shortage of officers. The phase of the situation which interests Senator Chamberlain above all, declares Mr. Onthank, is the creation of officers' training schools in the universities. He is trying to find some feasible plan whereby the United States can produce a large number of well-trained officers, and so escape an alarming shortage of good officers, the danger England is now suffering.

Senator Chamberlain thinks the only solution of the problem which the United States has to meet will be to have compulsory military service for all men at certain ages, and thus build up a large and well-trained reserve army.

He will try to create an interest in the army and in military affairs among the students. He will probably attempt to stimulate interest in the army as a profession, according to Mr. Onthank. Young men who are ambitious and have the ability will find a fine opportunity open to them as commissioned officers in the United States Army. These commissions may be obtained after a four years course at West Point or from civil life by passing the proper examinations. At present there is a great need for officers. The work is interesting and offers splendid chances for promotion. The pay of a second-lieutenant, the lowest commissioned grade, is $1700 a year. The pay of higher ranks runs up as high as $13,000 a year, with three-quarters pay after the officer is retired at the age of sixty-four.

Senator Chamberlain has been active in the political field since his election in 1880 as a member of the Oregon House of Representatives. He has influence in Congress in military and other affairs, for the provisions of the Chamberlain Bill are nearly all included in the army reorganization bill recently passed by Congress. Senator Borah of Idaho, is the only western senator who enjoys as much influence as has Senator Chamberlain.

He was elected in 1909 to the Senate and was re-elected in 1915. At the time of his election in 1909 he was serving as Governor of Oregon for the second time, for he was made governor in 1903 and resigned from his position in 1909 on his election to the Senate. Senator Chamberlain was district attorney for the third judicial district of Oregon from 1884 to 1886, and of the fourth judicial district from 1900 to 1904. He was attorney-general of Oregon from 1891 to 1895. Senator Chamberlain was elected by the democratic party. He was born in Natchez, Mississippi in 1854 and came to Oregon in 1876.
