UNIVERSITY MILITARY TRAINING

Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, thinks the spirit of patriotism of this nation is being destroyed. "In some places the flag is looked upon simply as a piece of bunting," were his words. So the Oregon senior senator wants universal military training and the abolishment of the standing army.

This is legislation that will be pressed at the next session of Congress and colleges and universities of the United States should follow the progress of this military bill with more than passing interest. Its passage means compulsory training for every youth of this fair land, and in all likelihood the period of training would take place either just before or during matriculation.

How desirable this universal training may be depends upon the working plan which is yet to be made public. But if what Mr. Chamberlain says about history, the present and the future is true, there is some kind of legislation needed.

These are a few excerpts from Mr. Chamberlain's address to the student body Wednesday morning:

"The truth of history requires us to admit we have never been involved in a conflict with a first class power except Great Britain, and the truth of that war of the revolution has never been written. As a matter of fact our army was on the retreat from Quebec to Yorktown. That was not lack of courage but lack of preparation."

"It takes one year, eight hours a day, of intensive training, to make a soldier."

"Europe is involved in a war—a war so discreditable that no one is willing to claim the authorship. It is a war caused by commercial rivalry."

"I am not a jingoist—nevertheless if we intend to be a world power we must be prepared to maintain our place and fight if necessary."

"The trouble with Germany and England was commercial rivalry. Then if the United States is in earnest in reaching out for business in competition with powers —"

"We cannot maintain a standing army. The temperament of the people will not stand for it. The only way is to have a trained citizenry."

"Treaties will not protect a country. We have negotiated a great many in the past year. I voted for them but I have no confidence in them. Treaties amount to nothing when they stand in the way of the accomplishments of a nation."

"Looking across the Pacific we have a power that is not friendly to us. A people who will not allow us to ascend to a position of racial or other superiority over them."

"A war is inevitable between the yellow and white races unless we are willing to give them the same considerations we give ourselves."

"One of the shameful things in the history of this nation is that when dealing with a weak nation we have been brave—and with a powerful nation, weak."

"There has been no disposition on the part of any administration to curb Japan."

"The only protection is to be prepared to fight if we have to."

"One man who has had more money than he knew what to do with has sent lecturers over the United States to advocate peace—peace of any kind. And do you know our spirit of patriotism is almost destroyed and in some places the flag is looked upon simply as a piece of bunting? In a military sense we are laughed at the world over."

The Hughes' contingents are poorer while their friends the Wilsonites have the "inner man" appeased at their expense. Such is the wisdom and foolishness of pre-election betting.

BUILDING COMPLETED

Education Hall Finished and All Rooms Assigned.

The Education building is now finished and the rooms have been assigned. The main floor of the new building will contain all the classrooms and offices of the school of education and the classroom used by Dr. J. D. Barnett. The school of law, which will occupy three class rooms, five offices and a library room; the extension division, which will fill the north wing, and Dr. Barnett's office are to be moved to the upper floor of the same building.

The assignments vacate several rooms in the library. Room 5, left by Dr.

periodical room by the library. Dr. George Rebec will occupy room 36 and the office vacated by Dr. Sheldon. Dr. C. E. Robins will hold his classes in room 35, formerly used by Prof. F. C. Ayer, and Dr. J. H. Gilbert will use Dr. Ayer's former office.

The small wooden building in the rear of McClure hall, left vacant by the extension division, will be used entirely by the school of journalism. One of the large rooms, which has been in use as a journalism class room for some time, will continue to be so used. The former extension office room will now correspond to the local room of a newspaper, containing typewriters, the telephone and some newspaper files. One of the four offices is assigned to Mr. DeLay. Another is a morgue and museum room, where old paper files will be kept.
