WINNING OR LOSING.

Today Oregon meets Oregon Agricultural College in the annual contest for the state championship between the two schools.
A splendid spirit of clean and keen rivalry has taken the place of the bygone bitterness. Neither side now has a chip on its shoulder.
And with the growth of a more fraternal spirit between the two institutions keener rivalry has developed over student body spirit. The psychology of student support to the teams is more true today than it was yesterday.
Aggies we are coming to win today! But if we lose—congratulations.

PASADENA NEXT.

By an overwhelming vote the faculty took favorable action yesterday afternoon in the matter of the Varsity going south New Years Day to play the University of Pennsylvania.
This is an opportunity Oregon has been looking forward to since Coach Hugh Bezdek took up the coaching reins. We admire Coach "Bez." He stands first for the institution. The payroll is a secondary matter. Scouting is taboo with him. He loves a player who is a fighter. Here is what he said following the Oregon-Washington State game in Portland two weeks ago: "We were fighting for that little old institution in Eugene."
They were fighting for Oregon indeed, for somehow they each and all have a little spot in their hearts that says, "Oregon first." The players are not playing football on a salary. They were not coaxed to Eugene. They came because they wanted to and they are just as much interested in their classroom work as any other student.
And when the Varsity meets Pennsylvania in Pasadena, January 1st, we do not know what the score will be. But we do know that the Oregon team will be representative of the state's best in youth and coached by a coach whose heart and soul is in the game.

The faculty's action was wise indeed.
Up north in Everett, Wash., and Seattle some scribes got their wires crossed and gave out stories to the effect that the University of Oregon had cancelled its game with O. A. C., and was bickering for a Turkey Day contest with the Everett high school. And a fool is born every minute!

ON TO CORVALLIS!

Oregon imported the Aggie poultry farm last week, and will take it home again this morning. So much then for cockiness.
