HAWLEY DISCUSSES "NATIONAL BUDGET"

Addresses Special Meeting of Faculty Colloquium Wednesday Afternoon.

Congressman Expresses Himself as in Favor of the Budget System.

A special meeting of the faculty colloquium was held in Guild hall Wednesday at 4 o'clock, to hear Congressman W. C. Hawley discuss informally the subject of "National Budget Making."
Mr. Hawley's talk was the result of a question submitted by faculty members last spring regarding the possible advantages of a budget system over the present financial system employed by the United States.
Doctor Schafer went to Salem last spring to discuss the question with Mr. Hawley, and today's meeting is one outcome of that trip.
Mr. Hawley in opening the discussion, made a summarizing statement of the nature and history of the budget system, which he says is an old one. In ancient times poor financial systems corrupted the public, and the army, and civil service officers went unpaid. So Europe adopted the budget system, and in the adoption, two distinct aims were apparent, namely, to avoid corruption and to separate the public and the private purses, which under the old plan had been virtually one.
The speaker then explained his attitude toward the question. "I am supposed," he said, "to take the negative side of this argument. But understand me—I think the plan in itself a commendable one, and it has been successful to a certain extent."
According to Mr. Hawley, the plan is in general this: The executive body first determines the sources, the amounts and the expenditures of revenue, trying to strike a balance between the sources and expenditures. Then the imports are classified alphabetically, and each item is put through a questioning as to how much is imported, its necessity, how much taxation is possible without stopping the importation, and similar points. The conclusions reached determine whether or not the item shall be put on the tariff list. The idea the committee works on is to get the largest amount of revenue possible without hindering importation.

Citing instances of state sources of revenue, such as the inheritance tax, and the tax on business occupations, Mr. Hawley said, "I believe the government is getting into the tax rights of state."
He believes a change in the financial management of the country is desirable, but thinks such a change should be one favorable to the whole country.

To make the budget plan beneficial he considers a complete reorganization of the national system necessary. The cabinet would have to have power to levy taxes as well as dispensing with the money received. To place such a power in their hands would increase the authority of the executive and minimize that of the legislative. Furthermore, the cabinet officers would have to be reformed, for they are more expensive than congress. "They follow the scriptural injunction, and ask largely," Mr. Hawley said. That must be changed if the system is to be economical and efficient in the United States. Always asking for more than is necessary, yet all the short comings fall on congress.

"I favor the budget system, and can see a great deal for it, and very little to criticize, generally. But the fundamental question is whether or not we shall attempt the constitutional amendment necessary to put tax levying power in the hands of the cabinet."

OREGON SOCCER TEAM PLAYS AGGIES TODAY

Return Match Will Be Held in Corvallis at 10 O'Clock on Lower Campus.

English Game Is Arousing Much Interest; Thirty at Monday's Turnout.

After a week of hard practicing the soccer team left for Corvallis at 7:35 this morning to meet O. A. C. in a return game. The contest is slated for 10:00 o'clock on the lower campus.

Last week's game brought out the fact that the Varsity was short of wind and unable to keep up a fast pace for two 35 minute halves. To correct this Coach

Dyment has been keeping the squad busy every night until darkness made further play impossible.

Wednesday and Thursday games were held between the Blues and Corinthians, or putting it plainly, the first team and scrubs. The scrubs kept the Blues on the run most of the time although the first team was handicapped by having to go uphill. Wednesday the Blues won 4-1 and last night the score was 2-2.

Since the encounter with the Aggies, interest in the English game has taken a firm hold on the students. Monday 30 were out, the largest turnout of the season. The Leslie brothers both of whom have played before showed fine form in handling the ball, and with a little practice would make the regulars rustle to keep their jobs.

Captain Campbell is not figuring on winning from the Aggies so easily again. Now that freshmen football is over, Lodell will be able to take care of one of the fullback positions. He was a member of the championship Jefferson high team a couple of seasons ago and possesses a tremendous kick. Besides Lodell two or three more of the rooks are soccer sharks and may be seen in action tomorrow.

The same lineup will undoubtedly start for Oregon that performed here. By arrangement with O. A. C. two substitutions may be made during the contest. The sixteen men making the trip include, Kennon, Capt. Campbell, McDonald, W. Sheehy, Heywood, Hedges, Hartley, J. Sheehy, Tuerck, Nelson, Fox, Sengstake, Houston, Hinson, Kelleher and Haseltine.

The next game after Saturday is with Multnomah to be played on the local grounds Thanksgiving Day.

ARCHITECTS WILL MEET.

The convention of the American Institute of Architecture will meet in Minneapolis on December 5th. The Associated Schools of Architecture, represented by the deans of 13 schools will hold a conference there at the same time. Dean Lawrence of the school of architecture is planning to attend both conferences.
