HEALTH OR BEAUTY?

A sneeze, a cold! A cold, a running nose, a fever, and la grippe! La Grippe and inattention, pneumonia! Pneumonia, home ties and the family care they are more inattention, tuberculosis! Tuberculosis, neglect, death! Death-?

That is in a synopsis the brief course it is possible for a life to run when those climatic periods come making one more than ordinarily susceptible to colds. Care and attention then are the expedients to be employed to protect health.

But from observation the Emerald has found that students are the least careful mortals, and fortunate it is they live. The only explanation seems to be that (they are in the full flush of youth and chances are taken-and for no other their normal resistance and vitality are far superior to that of the average. Yet why this taking of a gambler's chance?

for recognition in a material way for the boys who bring the championship to the University.

The Emerald takes a good deal of pride then in announcing to the alumni the spontaneous spirit of the students in backing a movement for the purpose of raising money to buy little gold footballs inscribed with the player's name and fact that he was a member of the Coast championship football team of the season of 1916.

Hurrah' for Oregon's Coast championship football team!

Men's Club Will Tour Coos Bay Country.

Numerous Stunts and Musical Selections Will Comprise Program.

The Men's glee club will leave on their annual trip December 26, for Coos Bay county. The last few weeks they have been preparing the two or three stunts that are mixed in with the musical selections, all of which promises to be exceptionally good. One of these stunts called, "An Extract of Grand Opera," will be put on by Graham Smith, Bobbie Burns, Curtis Beach and Algie Wein-Who will take the feminine they take less precaution to guard roles will be known when the home concert is given. Holsman, Mille and Ralston are to entertain for a few minutes with "Syncopated Spasms in Song." It may be that a third skit will be put on by Moores, entitled "Optical Allusions." An attractive program is promised with piano, violin and vocal solos by Burns, Scearce, Black and Vawter.

Mr. Lyman states that the home concert will not be given until after the trip has been taken, and in this way it is expected that this concert will be much better than those of other years.

Clara Wold Contributes Good Work to the Portland Spectator.

Clara Wold, University alumna, proved herself one of the best critics on the Pacific coast in her book review of William Dean Howells' "Leatherwood God." out in the cold world, some perhaps which appeared in the Thanksgiving number of the Spectator, according to Mrs. M. H. Parsons. Mrs. Parsons says that her work is that of an assured hand, and that it can readily be placed on a level with the work which appears which will prevent the cough and sneeze in the Dial and the Nation.

CATERS TO WOMEN.

Special attempts to get the women undergraduates of Cornell interested in basketball are being made by the athletic authorities. A specially designed outdoor basketball court, one of the best of its kind in the country, is being placed on the grounds back of Prudence Risley hall, the girls' largest dormitory on the campus. This sport, with field hockey, will give the women the exercise deemed
