

TWENTY-FIVE VISIT STATE INSTITUTIONS

Class in Social Agencies Takes Trip to Salem Yesterday.

Describe Adventure as Interesting, Instructive and Worth While.

Interesting, instructive, and well worth their time and money, was the trip of the 25 students who made the journey to the state institutions at Salem, in the as part of the work conducted by Dean Elizabeth Fox in her course in Social Agencies.

The class left Eugene on the 7:35 a. m. Oregon Electric and arrived in the Capitol City at 9:45. Miss Fox met the party at the depot, and all were bundled into seven machines which were placed at the disposal of the class for the entire day. The first stop was made at the Deaf school where under the supervision of Mr. E. S. Tillinghast, over 96 children, varying in age from 6 to 22, are learning to speak, write, and to make chairs, tables, cabinets, bird houses, and various forms of fancy work and knitted garments.

The state hospital in conjunction with the newly built receiving ward, for women, are models of cleanliness and efficiency. Fifteen hundred and seventy-one inmates are held in these huge buildings. The criminally insane, 20 in number, paced the floor behind heavy iron bars. Inmates do all the baking supervised by an experienced cook. The women's receiving hospital contains all the latest appliances for surgery as well as electric soothers for colds, patent shower baths and numerous other contrivances.

Four hundred men are in the state penitentiary. The class saw some in a ball game in the yard, others at work in the flax mill, laboring in the fields and at various other occupations. A touch of real pathos was experienced by all, when the prison band of 20 pieces, arose and played the national anthem with much fervor and feeling. Dinky cells, inadequate fire protection, and poor ventilation were only a few of the arguments brought forth by Warden Murphy in his appeal for a new penitentiary.

Freedom, absence of armed guards and prison stripes were the outstanding features of penitentiary life as viewed by the outsider.

The Tubercular Hospital is a six mile ride from the penitentiary. Close to 60 patients, including men and women of all ages, are housed in the near-open-air hospital. The state owns a farm of 1200 acres within the proximity of the hospital which is worked by 300 of the less afflicted inmates of the insane hospital.

The Boy's Training school is all that the name implies. Here some 135 boys varying in ages from 10 to 18 are being schooled in the class room and trained in industries as few more fortunate boys are. At one end of the building youths were busy with cobbler's tools, close by several boys were busy working sewing machines, making garments, and uniforms, and still others were engaged in bread making.

The Girl's Training school and the institution for the Feeble-Minded are within a stone's throw of each other. The former contains about 50 girls committed for delinquency and other crimes. The latter has about 400 inmates, most of them utterly helpless, both physically and mentally. Marguerite Rankin, a graduate of Oregon in the class of 1914, is an attendant at the school for the Feeble-Minded.

The last institution visited was the Blind School which has 50 patients. Several selections including piano and organ solos, and recitations were given by the blind.

Miss Bertha Dorris, an alumna of Oregon and former Eugene police matron, conducted the class on their trip through the state institutions. She is now connected with the Girl's Industrial school at Salem.

Junior Week-End

ion McClain, Dean Elizabeth Fox and Roswell Dosch.

The Junior class float, in charge of Leonard Floan, is a secret scheme; but it is to be strictly within the limits and spirit of the entire week-end.

Shy Huntington holds sway over a crew of Freshmen who will be marched to the top of Skinner's in squad formation early Friday morning to give the famous "O" its eighth annual yellow coating. There have been other yellow coats, but only to cover the smirch of orange which sometimes appeared before the O. A. C. football tangles.

The boys will mix their own paint, and for good and faithful service will be duly awarded their O's, applied in the usual place. Brick Mitchell, Joe Denn, Chuck Tisdale and Clarke Thompson will help keep order in the ranks.

Two bread lines doing out food to 1000 hungry people doesn't sound much like a quiet, homey Junior week-end, yet that is but half the number served Homecoming day last fall. Seven hundred and fifty will be students; 250 will be alumni and guests. The usual things and then some, will be served in huge lots from each booth, and the band will play during the luncheon hour.

In fact, the band is going to feature strongly in things this year; it's to be everywhere at once, and will play for everything but the Prom and the painting of the "O."

At 1:30 Friday the Junior Week-end parade leaves the Administration building, the newest feature inaugurated. Still more new ideas will be introduced and divulged later, and it will be one of the biggest things ever staged.

One of the features of the parade will be the incorporation of the women this year in the form of a Red Cross corps. Every woman in college is urged to come to the campus luncheon in white or light dresses. After the luncheon they will be furnished with red crosses by the girls of the parade committee. Every co-ed is expected to take part in the parade this year as well as the men. If the women have guests they cannot leave let them put on light clothes and march with the girls, say the committee. Every woman out, is the slogan.

Of the Prom Saturday night, Kenneth Bartlett, general chairman, and Kenneth Moores, class president, have this to say: "The men aren't getting dates the way they should." It's their one great complaint, and whether its war or something else that's responsible for the situation, they want it remedied. Ken Bartlett says:

"If the fellows are afraid of being called out for military duty any time, and are waiting on that account, the girls will excuse them in case they are called. There will be a lot of guests at the fraternity houses, and alumnae at the sorority houses; everybody will probably be going. But those dates ought to be fixed up."

Medals and cups won by the various fraternities at track and baseball, and the canoe fete prize, will be awarded at the Prom; the glee clubs will sing, Hyde's ten-piece orchestra will play, flowers are tabu and the tickets are $1. The Junior sponsors think it's a good combination.

Sunday of the week-end will probably be a day of open-house and informal greetings over the campus.

SENIOR EXAMS WILL NOT BE DISCONTINUED

Committee Reports Decision Due to Disorganized Condition of Campus.

Faculty Considers Withdrawal Petitions and Frames New Entrance Requirements.

Senior examinations will not be eliminated this year at the University of Oregon. At a faculty meeting Thursday the committee on senior exams reported that the present disorganized condition of the University made it inadvisable to discontinue the finals for the seniors. The committee felt that since those seniors who have dropped regular work to enroll in military courses would have to take final examinations in the latter, which are for the most part lecture courses, it would be difficult to discriminate between these and regular courses. Also, since the Oregon pageant has been postponed, extra pressure from that source will not be felt during the examinations.

The report of the committee was accepted and no change will be made in the examination requirements this year.

Petitions from students wishing to withdraw from the University to engage in agricultural and military activities were brought before the faculty, and a committee of which Dean E. W. Allen of the school of journalism is chairman, will consider the petitions and make an early report.

Other faculty business included the passing of a new English requirement for entrance to the University. Next September Freshmen will be required to have complete three years of English, preferably one year and a half of English composition and a like amount of English literature. Also a faculty committee was appointed to report on the attitude to be taken by the University of Oregon in applying to the Carnegie foundation for the pension of retired University professors for a fund to be placed at Oregon.

DISCUSS FIELD DAY PLANS

Women's Athletic Association Hears Reports From Department Heads.

Plans for a big field day to be held May 25 were discussed at a meeting of the Women's Athletic association held in Dr. Schmidt's lecture room at 5 o'clock this evening.

Eyla Walker, president of the association, had charge of the meeting and the heads of the different sports talked on the ways and means of holding the big event for women and what the different trophies will go for. The chief speakers were Mary Chambers, canoeing; Caroline Alexander, tennis; Gladys Wilkins, golf; Ada Hall, archery; Esther Furuset, baseball, and Claire Warner, track.

The last baseball game between the different women's fraternity houses and clubs will be played on that day to decide the championship.

The women will have to turn out in large numbers in order to furnish enough material to make the affair a success and they must do so immediately with less than three weeks to get in shape for the meet, is the verdict given out by Miss Mabel Louise Cummings, director of the women's gymnasium department.
