

BROAD BASIS OFFERED IN HOME ARTS WORK

AIM OF DEPARTMENT IS SERVICE AND DEVELOPMENT AS PART OF LIBERAL EDUCATION.

WAR TIME FOOD COURSE IS POPULAR

Registration in All Classes Smaller than Expected, Due to Conflicts in Schedule.

The first classes in the new department of Household Arts met yesterday with Miss Lillian Tingle, head of the department, with an average enrollment of fifteen. The class in Food Economy in War Times, which is the most popular of the courses, according to the advance enrollment of approximately twenty, will meet for the first time Monday at one o'clock.

The registration in all the classes is not so large as was expected, but owing to the difficulties of arranging the schedules, many who originally signed for the courses, have found that they could not take them. Most of these, however, can be accommodated in the next quarter. The courses are planned and adapted to meet the individual needs of the students, and are therefore of special interest.

The courses include a class in Elements of Cookery, Monday and Wednesday at three and Friday at one, with a laboratory period Tuesday from one to four; Elements of Food Economics, Monday and Friday at ten, and Thursday at nine; and the Food Economy course Monday and Wednesday at one.

Miss Tingle is hopeful about the prospect of the future of the new department. "It is really much better to start a department on a small scale as we are doing here, and feel each step of the way, developing gradually," she said yesterday, "than to start out with a fully equipped department." Miss Tingle likes the temporary quarters in Mary Spiller Hall, because they are so compact. The present unit contains Miss Tingle's office, a lecture room, which can be used as a dining room when necessary, a laboratory which will accommodate fourteen, a dressing room with lockers, and a store room. The present unit combines the advantages of a practice house with those of an ordinary laboratory.

The primary aim of the Household Arts department is service and the general development of the young women as a part of a liberal education. "Wherever there are women in a college," says Miss Tingle, "there should be a home economics department. The purpose of the course at present here will not be to train young women to teach home economics, that is, not directly, but will give them a foundation for preparing for more intense study, at the same time the girls will be getting the broad education which is necessary for a teacher of home economics. The trouble with home economics teachers has been that they have not had a sufficiently broad education; there is a field for the properly trained teacher, and this department will give the young women wishing to be teachers a good foundation."

GIRL HOCKEY PLAYERS BEGIN WORK

Peggy Crim, Experienced in English Style of Game, to Help Coach.

Hockey practice for women began Thursday evening with a vim, about a dozen women reporting for work. Peggy Crim, manager of hockey, has had some experience in playing English hockey, and will work with Ed Shockley in coaching the team.

All upperclass women, especially those who have had some experience in the game, are invited to come out to the field on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings at four o'clock and on Tuesday and Thursday at five. According to Miss Crim, some excellent back material has already appeared, but she is still looking for girls for forward players. Any freshmen who have played the game or want to play and are physically able will be welcomed.

"We have good promise of enough players for two teams," said Miss Crim. "When we get them organized we can have some real live practice."

HONOR STUDENTS' LIST TO BE OUT NEXT WEEK

The diplomas for honor students are to be made out stating the honors received: "John Smith is graduated with honors in Greek and with honors in general scholarship."

The list is expected to be completed by the middle of next week at the latest, giving the number and names of the students who seek honors for the coming year.

The University of Nevada had 267 students enrolled the first week of the fall semester.

STILL RETURNS TO COLLEGE

Lloyd Still, '20, returned to the campus, Friday, and will enter the University. Still left Eugene a week ago to enter the economics department at Stanford, but the classes were filled when he arrived. Stanford has a larger enrollment than last year, according to Still.

The University of Nevada had 267 students enrolled the first week of the fall semester.

Y. W. C. A. EMPLOYMENT BUREAU SUCCESSFUL

RECORD IS MADE IN SECURING WORK FOR MANY U OF O. WOMEN.

Wages and Classes of Work Are Announced for the Coming Year.

"More applicants for the services of University girls have been received, and more applicants have been supplied, this fall than at this time any previous year," said Miss Tirza Dinsdale, general secretary of the University Y. W. C. A., and chief recipient of applications of employers and girls desiring work. "With calls coming in continually from persons wishing assistance, and being able to handle almost every call, we are naturally very encouraged over the results of our work and believe that we are making the employment undertaking a success."

At a late hour yesterday afternoon 12 persons had telephoned the Bungalow asking for girls to aid them in different ways, and nine of the parties had been supplied.

In an effort to acquaint the people of Eugene with the fact that there are a great number of University girls who are anxious to work outside of school for wages set by University authorities, the problem of securing employment was put before the Eugene Chamber of Commerce, and officials at the bungalow are of the opinion that the plan was not unsuccessful.

We would advise girls who desire to come to college and at the same time wish to do odd work, to have at least $100 when they step on the campus," said Miss Dinsdale. "Many obviously do not understand that they need any money with which to start, and as a result one girl had to return home. She, however, expects to return to the University next year."

Housework, clerking, demonstrating, waiting on table, and work of a similar nature, is the preferred and commonly ogered type of work for college women, according to the secretary.

The following is a list of the work desired by college girls, and the respective prices to be paid for their service:

Twenty-five cents an hour for washing, ironing, sweeping and cleaning; 20 cents an hour for sewing and dish-washing; 14 cents an hour for afternoon care of children, and mending; 10 cents an hour for care of children for dinner hour and evening; $1.00 for serving a meal and washing the dishes; 75 cents for assisting at an evening party; 25 cents an evening, plus transportation when necessary, for care of children after children have retired. In case of late hours, it is suggested that the girls stay over night.

The prices listed above have been set by authorities of the University and have been published on a bulletin for the benefit of prospective employers of University help.

which eliminates the necessity of searching for a kicker.

The team as it stands now is light woefully light. Probably it would average in the neighborhood of 160, eighteen pounds under last year's men. Realizing this the coach is calling for speed and more speed. Jogs around the track are frequent to develop wind.

The first scrimmage of the season is set for this afternoon. The first and second teams and the frosh will
