ORDNANCE MEN MAY GO TO ARSENAL IN TEXAS

FIVE WEEKS' INSTRUCTION IN PA-PER WORK IS PLAN; CLASS TO FINISH HERE NEXT WEEK

Members Will Visit Industrial and Commercial Plants in Portland.

As soon as mustered in, it was learned here unofficially this week, the men now registered in the ordnance stores course, School of Commerce, will go into the government arsenal at San Antonio, Texas, where they will receive five weeks' instruction in ordnance accounting paper work.

Prof. C. C. Jeremiah, instructor in the course, was officially notified by telegram from the War Department on Monday morning to organize a second class in stores handling about November 15.

This means that the second class will be formed and begin its work immediately upon the completion of the course by the present class.

The War Department apparently has not determined whether or not to limit the second and future classes to 50 members, as was done in the first class. Professor Jeremiah now is in communication with the officials of the department at Washington, D. C., and hopes to secure a decision on this point within a few days.

Could Fill Class Twice.

As a matter of fact, he has more than enough applications to fill the class twice over if the present axiom is to be retained. More than 115 applications had been received on Monday morning, with new inquiries TWO coming in with every mail. Professor Jeremiah believes that he can handle a class of from 75 to 80 men here on the campus, provided the Government furnishes an additional instructor. It is understood that a commissioned officer will be sent from Washington to assist Mr. Jeremiah in some of the details of the work before the next class is started.

The present class virtually will complete its work on the campus by the end of next week. After that period most of their time will be taken up with visits to industrial and commercial plants in Portland and with preparations for their departure for active military service.

To Inspect in Portland.

Professor Jeremiah was in Portland last week and arranged for an inspection by the class of the following place, where the method of receiving goods, storing them, distributing them, and shipping will be carefully studied:

The Willamette Iron and Steel Works; the Albina Shops of the Union Pacific R. R. System; the Center Street Shops of the Portland Railway, Light and Power Company; the Assembling Plant of the Ford Motor Co.; Fleischner & Mayer, wholesale dry goods; Meier & Frank, department store.

Visits to Begin November 5.

The men will begin their visits to these plants on Monday, November 5. The class will be divided into six groups. Each group will spend half a day in each plant. The groups will rotate from plant to plant so that at the end of three days every man will have visited each of the institutions. Professor Jeremiah will accompany the class to Portland and will have general supervision of them while there.

The men will return to Eugene on the completion of their work and will receive their final instructions, physical examinations and class room texts, and will then be mustered into federal service. It is probable that this latter ceremony will be performed by one of the local recruiting officers.

PLAYING CUPID HARTHAN'S LATEST ROLE

Scene of Possible Action Is Portland Spanish Class.

Professor Harthan DeFell, instructor in Spanish at the University and also in Portland for the extension division of the University, may have acted in the role of Dan Cupid last Saturday while he was in Portland to hear his class.

Mr. Webb is one of Professor Harthan DeFell's students in Portland. Miss Cobb is another. The professor introduced them: "Miss Cobb, Mr. Webb."

"Mr. Webb fell for Miss Cobb the first time he spied 'er," says Professor Harthan DeFell.

MARKET SPECIALIST IS GUEST OF UNIVERSITY

DR. W. L. BEERS, OF MONTANA,
INQUIRES AT SCHOOL OF COM-MERCE AS TO SELLING
METHODS IN OREGON

After Visit to Farming Sections, He Plans to Make Report at Missoula.

Dr. W. L. Beers, market specialist for the University of Montana, visited the campus Monday morning and inquired at the School of Commerce regarding marketing methods used by Oregon producers.

Dr. Beers is making a survey of marketing conditions and marketing practices throughout the Northwestern states, and hopes from the knowledge that he gains to apply an effective marketing system in Western Montana, where, he says, immense quantities of fruit and vegetables annually go to waste, because they can not reach the consumer.

Interested in Prune Drying.

Western Montana, he reports, has not yet developed a modern and effective means of drying and preserving horticultural and garden products so successfully used in Oregon. He is particularly interested in a prune drying system in use in the Willamette valley, and also expects to study the vegetable and fruit drying plants more recently established at The Dalles, at Salem, and elsewhere in the state.

Before returning to Montana he will visit some of the agricultural communities of Eastern Washington and will embrace all his observations in a comprehensive report soon to be submitted to the university of his state. "This report," said Dr. Beers, "is to become the basis of a recommendation to the farmers of Western Montana, who expect to have an effective means of utilizing their by-products before next season's crop is harvested."

Former Clergyman Now Farmer.

Dr. Beers is a former clergyman, but ill health a few years ago forced him to take up life on a ranch. Having been a student of economics and sociology all his life, and a graduate of Brown University, his talents naturally caused him to view with more or less concern the utter lack of marketing organization among the Montana farmers, he says. Consequently he was persuaded by officials of the University to make a special study of this subject. He advises that the need for scientific activity in this line is so great that he may possibly devote a large part of his future life to the work.

Dr. Beers is a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity and was entertained at luncheon on Monday by the members of the local chapter.

STUDENT NISSONARY VOLUNTEERS ELECT

Eight Members of Last Year's Group Back; Thienes, President.

At a meeting of the student volunteers for the foreign mission field, held at Miss Goldie Wells' residence, 828 East Twelfth street, the following officers were elected: Clinton Thienes, president; Goldie Wells, vice president; and Helene Reed, secretary-treasurer. Reorganization is under way, and in a short time work will be taken up.

"We have about half of last year's organization back," said Clinton Thienes. "Six have gone to war, two are now teaching, and two have entered medical schools; but there are eight old members back to assume the work of reorganization. So far we have received one application for membership, but expect more in the near future."

The object of the student volunteers is to stimulate an interest in the work of the foreign missions and lend a willing hand in its support, according to Mr. Thienes.

club. He will be the accompanist this year and also give piano solos. Arant is a senior in the University, having attended Pacific University before going to teach at Monmouth.

Floyd Ellis, a freshman member of the club, is a saxophone player, and McClain, another new man on the club, is a violinist.

Henry Eickhoff, who this year entered the University from Stanford, where he played lady impersonation parts in plays for three years, will do the impersonations for the club this season. Eickhoff is also a saxophone player and plays any kind of TAK EPLACE OF 11 OLD MEM.

Three possible trips are under consideration for the club this winter, according to Don Roberts, manager. One plan is to follow the route through southern Oregon which was played successfully by the girls' glee club last spring. Another would include Portland, Astoria and the military camps around the mouth of the Columbia, where many old Oregon students are now stationed, especially at Fort Stevens. The third route proposed is to The Dalles, Pendleton, Baker City and other eastern Oregon points.

Eastern Trip Favored.

Sentiment of the club favored the eastern Oregon trip at a meeting of the club last Thursday afternoon, when Roberts first mentioned the proposed routes. No definite action has been taken.

Members of the glee club this year are as follows:

Second Bass—Harold White, Irving Rowe, old men, and Norval Thompson, Maynard Harris, Perry Arant and Stanley Fenton, new men.

Baritone—Curtiss Peterson, of last year's club, and Jack Montague, Paul Spangler, Julian Leslie, Henry Eickhoff and D. McClain, new members.

Second Tenor—Don Roberts, Melvin Solve, Thurston Laraway, Floyd Ellis, Arnold Koepke and John Flinn.

First Tenor—William Haseltine, William Morrison, Harold Grey, Merle Moore, and Graham Smith.

jured. Neither Hunter nor Macey could show up for practice last night.

The whole squad came back in pretty poor condition, as they had only three weeks to get in shape for the game. Besides Hunter and Macey, "Dot" Medley and Arthur Berg are still on the hospital squad. Medley's hip was so bad at Pullman that he did not even don a uniform. Berg's shoulder is still giving him trouble.

Eleven Win Letters.

Letters were won by eleven men Saturday. Only one man—Bas Williams—won his second letter. The other players all secured their "O" for the first time. The fortunate ones are: Dow Wilson, Anderson, Williams, Nelson, Macey, Maddock, Leslie, Hunt, Steers, Couch and Cook.

Hunter, Tregilgas and Berg will have to either play one full half or parts of two halves to get the coveted emblem.

Little is known of the Idaho team other than that they weigh about the same as the 'varsity and are pretty fast. O. A. C. beat them by a score of 26 to 6 last week, which would seem to give Oregon an even chance.

Bezdek will have to build his team over again before Saturday, however, on account of the men out from injuries. George Cook will probably get a chance at fullback if Hunter is unable to get in the fracas, and McCready or Tregilgas will occupy Macey's place at guard.
