VICTIMS OF VIOLATED CONFIDENCE.

To what lengths the radical element of the National Woman's party will go to gain an audience before the women of the country was aptly demonstrated by the action of Miss Anne Martin and Miss Iris Calderhead, who last night attempted to involve women of the University in a campaign for National Suffrage, the methods of which have not only been scorned but condemned by loyal men and women throughout the United States.

It is probable that there is no group of women in the country who are stronger supporters of woman's suffrage than are the women of the University. They believe, and in that belief they are supported by practically every other student on the Oregon campus, that the National suffrage amendment should be enacted and as soon as possible. But they do not believe in the methods which Miss Martin and her supporters have been practicing and advocating in their attempt to force President Wilson to foster the amendment which they would have congress pass. They feel that these methods have not only harmed the cause of suffrage, but that they have been nothing short of treasonable in some instances.

When Miss Martin came to Eugene she was aware that herself and her actions were in strong disfavor here. Miss Calderhead, her advance agent, had been refused a place in which to hold Miss Martin's proposed meeting and the women of the city had made it very evident that she need not look here for support. Her reception might well be called cold and this, in a measure, was probably one of the things which prompted her fraternity sisters to show her such courtesies as they could without implicating themselves in a campaign to which they were heartily opposed.

Miss Martin and Miss Calderhead were invited to the chapter home of the former's fraternity as social guests. In asking them to share in their hospitality the girls expected them to come as fraternal sisters, not as representatives of the Woman's party. All this Miss Martin must have known before she accepted the invitation but, granting that she did not know it, she at least should have shown her hostesses an equal courtesy and refrained from continuing a discussion, which they opposed, some of them to the extent of leaving the room, at the outset.

That the women of the University completely repudiated Miss Martin and flatly refused to so much as consider any of the suggestions she had to make is commendable. They were victims of the worst form of deceit—deception and trickery in one by whom their confidence should have been respected: one whose selfish instincts for a cause have allowed her to lose sight of a cause far greater and more important.

SOCCER CONTEST NOV. 10

With Father Moran coaching the soccer players every night, every effort is being made to round out a team capable of holding its own with O. A. C. when the two teams meet November 10 at Corvallis. The game comes really before the Varsity will be ready for it, but O. A. C. has had about the same amount of practice and it is as fair for one as the other.

Father Moran wants more men to come out and wants them badly, for but 18 or 20 have been turning out so far. As 11 men are on a side, it is impossible to play a game. At least five positions on the team are open to new men. Freshmen are eligible the same as upperclassmen as the one-year rule does not include soccer. Anybody who comes out that displays any ability at all stands an excellent chance of making the trip to Corvallis. O. A. C. will play a return game on the local campus November 17 as a curtain-raiser to the Oregon-California contest.

Games with Multnomah are still up in the air, because the club is uncertain whether to have a team or not. It is possible a game with the Vancouver army post may be arranged.

Saturday at 1:30 o'clock a game will be played between two picked teams to get a line on what material is out. Everybody will get a chance before the game is over.

Election of a captain will take place before the game.

What? Let a Fiji Go With My Daughter?

Mother Warns Her Child That Foreigners Must Not Be Trusted

The Phi Gamma Delta men have always been considered perfectly tractable and highly desirable adjuncts to the University, but their reputation seems about to be shaken. While no appreciable falling off in the popularity of the house has been noticed it is feared by the men, that there is grave danger of it. Carl Knudson is back of it all.

It seems that Knudson and a University girl spent an afternoon up the mill race. They returned and the girl, thrilled with her outing, mentioned to her mother in her next letter home that she had spent an afternoon up the race with a Fiji and told her mother, in detail what a thoroughly likable chap he was.

The next mail from home brought a letter from mother, not chiding in spirit, but tactfully warning the girl to be a little more discreet. The mother realized, she wrote, that a co-ed was naturally forced to be democratic but that she must be at least careful about going out with foreigners. That one could never tell just what a Fiji might do and that the best thing to do was to leave these islanders alone.

Now when the Phi Gamma Deltas hear a ukelele they shudder.

FROSH TO PLAY INDIANS

The freshmen team will go north on the same train with the Varsity tomorrow to play Chemawa in the first game on their schedule. Coach Dean Walker intends taking 16 men with him and maybe one or two more.

In Chemawa, the frosh will find a worthy opponent as the Indians barely escaped winning from the O.A.C. rooks, the Corvallis lads nosing out by a 9-6 victory. Only the whistle saved the Corvallis lads from defeat as the Indians were pounding their line for long gains on every down. Last year the frosh succeeded in piling up a score of 42-0.

Under Walker's capable tutelage, the freshmen have built an eleven which is fully up to the standard of last year's aggregation. The line charges fast, and the backfield has a world of driving power. Blake, Masterson, Chapman and Jacobberger are as evenly balanced quartet as you would wish to find anywhere. In Jacobberger, Walker has a punter and place-kicker of no mean ability. Blake is the find of the season. He is a hard plunger and a wonder at backing up the line.

The line has been tested practically every night in scrimmage with the Varsity and more than once have held the lemon-yellow with no gain.

MORTON TO TEACH BIBLE

FORMER DEAN OF COMMERCE IN BOSTON ON LEAVE OF ABSENCE

After telling Bible students at the Boston School of Theology "just what the average preacher doesn't know about business," D. W. Morton, former dean of the University School of Commerce, will return to the profession of teaching, next semester. Mr. Morton will continue his work at Boston University, at the same time.

Mr. Morton has been given a year's leave of absence from the University faculty and is now in the employ of the Industrial Service and Equipment company, of Boston, as head accountant, as well as doing part time work at the University. The company manages the administration end of a number of small business firms. Mr. Morton is expected to return to the University of Oregon next year and again take up his position as head of the School of Commerce.

While in Boston, Mr. Morton is making a study of teaching methods at the Boston University and while teaching his class of preacher-students will not abandon his work for the Industrial Service and Equipment company. The former Oregon dean is an ordained minister.

HOUSE HEADS MEET DEAN

Food, Dress and Time Economy Chosen For Discussion by Women's League

The first of a series of monthly meetings between the housing committee of the Women's League and Dean Elizabeth Fox will be held at the Pi Beta Phi house Thursday night at 7:30.

The housing committee, which is composed of the heads of the different houses, met several times last year. "This year we expect to become better organized, and will probably adopt a different name," said Dean Fox Thursday.

At the meeting, conservation of time as well as of food and simplicity of both dress and menus will be discussed. The question of Red Cross work will also be brought up.

UNIVERSITY SENDS PASTOR

Tells of Accommodations For Foreign Students at French School

An indication of the far-sighted policy of the University of Paris is seen in the receipt by President Campbell yesterday of a poster from the University telling of the accommodations for foreign students.

The poster is written in French and bears the address of a committee of wives of University professors, and four professors to whom prospective students may write concerning accommodations. The address of the committee is "Bureau des Renseignements de la Sorbonne, Paris."

And just as you say that you will not change your style of living a starving baby dies in France.

SCHEDULE OF GAMES FOR FALL SPORTS WILL BE ANNOUNCED THIS WEEK IT IS EXPECTED

Coach Walker Says Change Must Come Because So Many Old Men Are Gone From Houses

Coach Dean Walker of the "Frosh" football team announced yesterday that instead of having inter-fraternity fall athletics, as was originally intended, inter-class games will be held instead. Walker will work out the schedule of games for announcement this week. The change from the original plans was made necessary by the late opening of the University and the fact that so few of the old men returned that the fraternities were unable to make their plans in advance.

Walker also intends to form an inter-class soccer league. The athletic department of the University, will co-operate with the classes in getting equipment and will provide officials for all the games.

The regular inter-fraternity basketball league will be in full swing again this fall and while no schedule has been drawn up, all of the houses on the campus will undoubtedly be in line when the season starts. It is also intended, says Walker, to have a handball tournament with entries from the various fraternities.

When you open an account with a bank you are furnished with a check book and a pass book. In the pass book your deposits are entered. You are also required to sign a signature card.

When making a deposit you fill out a deposit slip, entering the different items as currency, silver, gold and checks, filling out the amounts and adding them, and entering the total at the bottom of the slip. This slip is presented to the Receiving Teller who checks it up and verifies its accuracy. He then enters the amount of your deposit in your pass book. You should always fill out your own deposit slip and never ask the employes of the bank to do so, as that is really your statement of the deposit to the bank.

Each of the Tellers has a number and a rubber stamp with that number on; he stamps your deposit slip and each of the checks with that number. The checks, after being entered in the individual ledger, are placed in an envelope bearing your name, to be returned to you when called for. The deposit slips are gathered together each day and made into a package and preserved. It is sometimes of great assistance in tracing our transactions to have the number of the Teller stamped on these slips and on the checks, as a transaction can be traced to the individual Teller.

Every check or draft deposited by you should also be endorsed by you. No matter if it is payable to "Bearer" or has previous endorsements in blank—this is for two reasons: One is to make you responsible for the check in case it is not paid, and the other is to locate the person who deposited the check. Some times the maker of the check is hard to find, and if the bank has a perfect record through the endorsements the check can be traced back and the maker located and collected from. The bank should have a perfect record of every transaction that passes through it and should be able at any time to get a complete history of any transaction as far as the bank is concerned.
