SPURN PIG - KNITTING

Triple C Insists Red Cross Has First Claim on Wool.

Plying of Needle for Other Than Soldiers Is Branded as Disloyal.

Pig-knitting was branded as unpatriotic when, Thursday afternoon at the Bungalow, the Triple C girls went on record as favoring the disappearance of the so-called knitting. Pig-knitting is what its name implies, knitting for yourself something out of bright-colored yarn.

As the 25 or more girls sat around the fireplace and their hands were busy with knitting soldiers' sweaters, Mrs. Albert R. Sweetser, the Red Cross instructor in knitting for the University girls, gave a few words on pig-knitting. She explained that the scarcity of wool which has kept the University girls from knitting for the Red Cross during the last two weeks, is due to pig-knitting. "Of course it seems hard that, although we have the money and the time for this knitting, we still should not buy the yarn," said one co-ed as she struggled over a dropped stitch, "but nevertheless, I disapprove of pig-knitting. As long as there is a demand for the brightly-colored yarns, the factories will continue to supply the demand, thus diminishing the output of wool for the soldiers."

The junior girls decided that it is unpatriotic to be knitting other than for a soldier, and a resolution was passed to read, "Be it resolved that Triple C set a good example before the University girls and place the stamp of disapproval on pig-knitting." Resolutions against pig-knitting have also been adopted at the University of Washington.

Plans were discussed for making a monthly visit to the county poor farm, the girls taking candy and magazines with them. Each girl is donating a little something to the making of the candy and say girls who were not at the meeting and wish to contribute something are requested to hand their names to Kathryn Hartley, Essie McGuire, or Harriet Garret. The girls will meet at the Delta Gamma house the Sunday afternoon before Thanksgiving, at 3 o'clock and make the candy. The girls who are here Thanksgiving, plan on going again to the poor farm and singing a few old melodies.

After the business meeting, a social hour followed and tea was served by the following: Caroline Alexander, Helen Anderson, Elizabeth Aumiller, Nanna Axtell, Marie Badura, Dorothy Bennett, Mildred Black and Ruby Bogue.

Your first and biggest duty is to help Uncle Sam win the war in order to make peace. Food conservation in every American home means an abundant supply for the men at the front, and for famine-stricken France. Are you doing your share?

FEWER BOOKS TAKEN HOME

Library Charging List Falls Off When Freshmen Discard Ethics.

A decrease in the number of books taken out for home reading has been experienced by the circulation department of the University library during the month of October this year as compared with the month of October last year. More reserve books, however, have been used this year than last. The decrease is attributed by M. H. Douglass, librarian, to the fact that fewer freshmen are taking the practical ethics courses this year. These courses require home reading.
