DOPE VS. THE OREGON FIGHT.

For the first time in nearly 15 years a University of California football team comes to the Oregon campus this week-end. Behind the visiting aggregation lies a string of victories that cause them to be mentioned as the most likely candidates for the 1917 coast championship. All that lies between them and that goal is Coach Bezdek and his eleven inexperienced, light men, with whom they will give battle on Kincaid field Saturday afternoon.

California is going to invade Eugene confident and optimistic. Their idea of the outcome of the game will admit nothing but victory, and they will be the stronger for their confidence. But because all of the dope favors the visitors and because practically every sport writer on the coast predicts "easy pickings" for the Bear Staters, Oregon is not yet beaten. Because Coach Bezdek piles on the gloom, and says we will be lucky to hold the invaders to two or three touchdowns is not saying that Oregon has no chance to kick the bottom out of the dope bucket and hold the Blue and Gold to a tie, no matter what the prospects may be, no matter if we are swamped 100 to 0, Oregon students have no license to give up the ghost and crawl off into a hole and hide. A defeat—yes, a drubbing—at the hands of Coach Andy Smith and his proteges would be no disgrace to the lemon-yellow. Bezdek's team is admittedly wear: Bezdek admits it, the students admit it and the players themselves admit it. But no degree of weakness, no degree of inexperience on the part of the men who make up the team, no degree of adverse dope can excuse Oregon and her students for losing their spirit and their fight.

Time was when California football teams were regular visitors to the Oregon campus and it was during those times that they learned to fear Oregon's football teams and the Oregon Spirit. The Bear Staters learned, as have other colleges on the coast, that dope counted for little when pitted against Oregon Spirit and Oregon fight. Teams coming to the campus, while always treated with the consideration due true sportsmen and gentlemen, have time and again been forced to bow down to the Varsity's determination that "Victory must be ours."

Let every Oregon student do his or her part this week. The skin of the Golden Bear is not sacred, but it's tough. It can't be had without a fight. Has Oregon become "too proud to fight?"

ORCHESTRA AT WORK

Alice Vander Sluis President of Organization Which May Take Trip South.

The University orchestra of this year promises to be up to the standard of those of previous years. Twenty-three members are now playing in the organization and under the direction of Miss Winifred Forbes, special music is being practiced for the annual concert, which will be given some time in March. It is hoped that a trip might be made and plans for one into southern Oregon have been taken up.

The officers of this year's orchestra were elected at a recent meeting: president, Alice Vander Sluis; business manager, John Houston; secretary-treasurer, Gail Roberts; librarian, Byron Garrett.

The members with their instruments are: first violins, Alice Vander Sluis, Genevieve Rolley, A. McClain, Gail Roberts, Alberta Potter; second violins, John Houston, Ada McMurphy, Byron Garrett, Maude Largent, Jennie McGuire, Dale Humbert, Edna Rice; cello, Glen Macey; bass, Mabel Cochran; French horn, Robert Lees; cornets, Morris Morgan, Renel Moore; flute, Frank Badollet; tympan, Joe Hammersley; trombones, Walter Grebe, Earl Voorhies and Walton Parsons.

ORDNANCE STUDENTS PICKED FOR COURSE

Second Class of Fifty Chosen by Professor Jeremiah to Begin Work Friday, November 16.

FAMILIAR NAMES IN LIST

Old-Time Oregon Men and Prominent Figures Included; New Instructor Added.

Prof. C. C. Jeremiah, instructor in ordnance stores handling, in the School of Commerce, has completed his selection of students for the second class of future munition handlers, and their work on the campus will begin Friday, November 16.

These men, 50 in number, have been carefully selected from a list of 137 applicants in various parts of the Pacific coast. Nearly every one of them is a college graduate, and many have had actual experience in accounting and purchasing work in various commercial and industrial institutions.

Included in the list are several former Oregon students to whom the University community doubtless will give a glad welcome, when they return to the campus on Friday. The following names will be recognized by nearly everyone:

Robert W. Earl, F. H. Heitzhausen, Fred E. Kiddle, Ira F. Barrett, Ralph D. Moores.

Four Men From Campus

Four of the students now on the campus have decided to drop their other work and enter the ordnance course in the hope of seeing early action on the fighting fronts in France. They are: Maynard H. Harris, James F. Howell, Lynn S. McCreedy, Harold J. Wells.

The work of the new class will consist of six weeks' practical study in ordnance accounting, on the campus under Prof. Jeremiah, and about ten hours a week of intensive training in military and conversational French, under Dr. V. B. DeLory, who gave the same work to the first class.

In addition to this work, a course in ordnance paper work will be given by Ordnance Sergeant Erwin W. Kild, who now is on his way from the government arsenal, at Rock Island, Ill. Sergeant Wild has been despatched to Eugene especially for this purpose, and is reputed to be one of the most successful and most efficient ordnance officials in the government service.

Men to Be Mustered In

Prof. Jeremiah has just received the authorizations for the enlistment of the men, who completed the work in the first course. These authorizations have been forwarded to the men in their respective homes, and they will proceed at once to their nearest recruiting stations and be mustered into the government service. They will go then to the arsenal at San Antonio, Texas, for a final session of practical ordnance work before proceeding to the American front in France.
